SAORSTAT EIREANN.
HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE—IN BANKRUPTCY.
In the Matter of
MICHAEL and FELIX MURPHY, Drumgool, County Louth, Cattle Dealers, Bankrupts.
DATE OF ADJUDICATION, 23rd FEBRUARY, 1912.

A public sitting in this matter will be held before the Registrar at the Law Courts, Inns quay, Dublin, on Wednesday, the 30th day of May, 1934, at the hour of eleven o'clock, forenoon, for the proof and admission of the debts of all creditors on the joint estate of the bankrupts and also on the separate estate of Felix Murphy and for the vouching of the Official Assignee's account.

A creditor may prove his debt at the sitting, or send his affidavit of debt in the prescribed form, or his detailed account, to the undernamed Official Assignee, four days previously to the sitting in order to have same admitted.

Owing to the destruction of papers in the burning of the Four Courts all proofs of debt and records of claims sent to the Official Assignee before May, 1922, have been destroyed, and, therefore, a creditor who sent in a claim before that date must now send in a duplicate, otherwise the court can have no knowledge of his demand.

A man
to succeed

An adventurous-minded, self-willed character, impatient of tradition and custom, and eager for freedom and modern ways; with the mental flexibility, fertile imagination and self-assertiveness of youth, love for the thrill and excitement of risk and daring, a strong dramatic sense, and much of the opportunist in his mental make-up. Means to succeed, and probably will, but life has much to teach him.

The above is a Delineation of a reader's character from his handwriting. See others in the Weekly Irish Times

FLOWERING SHRUBS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—Although the claims of these interesting subjects have been repeatedly brought under the notice of our readers, it is very rarely we meet with a really choice selection, except in our public gardens or some of our larger establishments. We were, therefore, very much interested in a display of these beautiful hardy subjects, brought together on the occasion of a recent meeting of the Irish (Professional) Gardeners' Association held in Dublin. Specimens of practically all the early-flowering shrubs were in evidence, among which were some enormous sprays of Magnolia conspicua, Jasminum primulinum, Amalanchier canadensis, Cydonia japonica, in its best forms of scarlet, pink and orange flowers; Flowering Cherries, etc., in great variety. It seems a pity people will not plant these beautiful permanent features of the garden more generally, considering the pleasure derivable from them at a minimum of cost or trouble.

GRIT AND WATER.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—The supply of grit is an important matter, even for small chickens. A little coarse sand can be spread on a board or a piece of canvas where they are fed while they are small. Later on a box of flint grit, broken small, should be placed where they can pick at it. It is most important that the water given to chickens should be kept perfectly clean, as impure water causes diarrhœa and other ills. It is also important that the water should be kept out of the sun. A saucer or other small vessel of water should be placed in a position where the chickens are not so likely to run over it, and if a cup or small jam pot is placed in it they are not so likely to do so. When they are older a large flower pot can be placed in the dish of water. For the first few days after they are hatched a little warm milk can be given to them. They like it, and it is very good for them. In fact, where milk is to spare the more they get of it the better.

DUBLIN TRADER'S BANKRUPTCY.

WIFE A PARTNER IN BUSINESS.

In the Bankruptcy Court yesterday, before Mr. Justice Johnston,

Patrick Tallon, a bankrupt, was examined by Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle), for the Official Assignee, as to his assets.

Mr. D. J. Collins (Messrs. E. F. Collins and Son) appeared for the bankrupt.

The bankrupt's unsecured creditors were returned as at £3,598, while his estimated assets were £448.

In answer to Mr. McCarthy, the bankrupt said that he owned 12 Moore street, Dublin, and that he carried on the business of general grocer there fore five or six years. His turnover was between £200 and £300 a week. He owned shares in Guinness, which were bought seven or eight years ago in the joint names of his wife and himself. The business also was in their joint names, and that was embodied in a document which had been drawn up by a solicitor. He did not know where that document was at present.

Mr. McCarthy—Don't you know that your creditors are suggesting that your allegation about your wife's partnership is false?—No.

Your wife claims half the assets?—Yes.

The witness admitted that he had been drinking heavily at the time, and that his wife made him make over half his assets to her. He had a shop at 124 Drumcondra road, which was purchased in September, 1931, for £1,750, and that was held jointly with his wife. She received £300 out of the proceeds of the sale of stock before he filed his petition. When he got married in 1916 his wife had about £150. His creditors always believed that the entire business was his, but his wife signed cheques. The stock in the Drumcondra shop was value for about £100, and his weekly trade was about £80.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tallon, wife of the bankrupt, in reply to counsel, said that she claimed half interest in the business, under a settlement made about five years ago. She had not notified the creditors of the change. She brought her husband about £40 when she married. When the partnership document was signed, her husband had previous to that been drinking and was seldom sober.

The examination was adjourned generally.

Mr. McCarthy—Behind your husband's back you endeavoured to get all he had transferred to your own name?—There might be something in that.

Because he was foolish you, in order to protect yourself and without his knowledge or consent, did that?—He consented.

Was he sober?—He was very seldom sober at that time.

Don't you think it right now that all the property should be available for the creditors? I acted for the best.

The Official Assignee said that Mrs. Tallon had offered to give up everything except certain furniture.

The examination was adjourned generally.

LAND COMMISSION APPEALS.

The Appeal Tribunal of the Land Commission sat in Dublin yesterday. Mr. Justice Wylie, the Chairman, presided, and Commissioners Browne and Mansfield were also in attendance.

In the matter of the Countess of Portsmouth estate, there were fifty-four appeals against standard purchase annuities, thirty-eight of which were mentioned on behalf of the owners. Vinegar Hill was one of the holdings considered. The question of the proximity of some of the holdings to the town of Enniscorthy was raised on behalf of the owners, and complaints of trespass were made by the tenants.

Mr. F. Fitzgibbon, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Huggard, Brennan and Godfrey), appeared for the owners, and Mr. B. McGuckin, K.C. (instructed by Mr. J. A. Sinnott and Co.), for the tenants.

In the matter of the estate of Miss Fanny Loughrey, Co. Donegal, there were sixteen appeals against standard purchase annuities by the owners, for whom Mr. McGonigal (instructed by Messrs. Miller and Badington) appeared.

Judgment was reserved in both cases.

Opening of the Holiday Season.

The Attractions of the Emerald Isle.

HOLIDAY time is here again. Those who have taken the risk of an early vacation, in the climatic uncertainties of an Irish May, find that the sun is shining on their venture. It may be that the others who follow later will find that the early birds have caught all the sun—one hopes not—but, at least, the prospects are good.

There used to be three kinds of Irish holiday-makers—those who stayed in their own country, those who crossed to Great Britain, and those who went even further afield, to the Continent. Things have changed since then, mainly through the vagaries of international finance, and now, although there are still three clearly-defined categories into which holidays fall, the old Continental tour has been superseded in the list by the ocean cruise.

Whatever the rival attractions, however, of other kinds of holiday, there is no doubt Irish people are growing more and more attached to the idea of spending their holidays in Ireland. For a variety of reasons, and to a great extent through the propagandist activities of the Irish tourist associations, it has become realised that Ireland is a land worthy of exploration, rewarding the explorer with a rich store of interest and charm, and possessed of a variety of attractions, such as it will take the ordinary citizen, tied for fifty weeks of each year to the small corner of this varied isle, many years of wandering to discover.

SEEING IRELAND FIRST.

Let no Irishman think of the home country which, for patriotic reasons, he intends to "see first" as being a land either of twenty-six counties or of six. Patriotism does not go that far. Rather does it compel him to forget an artificial border-line and to feel equally at home in all parts of the island, including historic Derry in his itinerary among the Hills of Donegal, rejoicing alike in the Glens of Antrim and the wild landscapes of Kerry.

What a feast awaits those who have yet to discover Ireland, and what years of varied interest those who vow to exhaust the interests and beauty of Ireland before turning their feet towards lands within less immediate reach. Where would such a pilgrim start?

It depends, of course, so largely on individual idiosyncrasy. For those who love Nature at its wildest, displaying its primitive beauties in high, rugged crags and mournful heath, the choice is wide, ranging from Donegal, whose hills have inspired music, to Connemara, where man cannot fail to feel his inferiority to such natural grandeur, and thence down to Kerry, which for varied delights is, perhaps, without a peer among them all. As an additional attraction for a large number of Irish people—and for the people who come from outside to visit the country for the first time—there is in all these areas, and particularly in Connemara and Donegal, the interest of the Gaeltacht and the natural idiom of the pure Irish speech.

KERRY AND KILLARNEY.

Mention of Kerry, of course, makes one think of its most famous centre, Killarney, and one hesitates to think that any attempt to press Killarney's claims will inspire a vigorous counter-claim from the people of Sligo, who regard their native spot as the superior of that in which Moore saw "nature's home" and "nature's reflex." It would be too thorny a dispute for any outsider to attempt to settle. Certainly, Sligo can show majestic mountains rising in pleasant countryside, the serenity of silvern waters, and archeological store, which puts it in the same category as Royal Meath and glorious Glendalough, mysterious and enchanting. Glendalough adds a crown to the magnificent County of Wicklow, rich in restful scenery.

Antrim rivals Wicklow, with its glens and its unforgettable coast road, running from Belfast right round to the marvellous Causeway, which has been spoken of as a "miracle in stone." Nor must one neglect the shaggy moorlands of Cork, the rugged coast of Clare, or—but the list is too long to go into fully. Apart from the search for pure beauty, there is the call of the sea to be considered, and the restful ease of a holiday beside the breakers, revelling on golden sands.

AT THE SEASIDE.

If Ireland's seaside resorts do not offer the same varied entertainments as many of those across the Channel, there is, at least, an infinite choice of pleasant little spots where, given good weather, city and inland dwellers can glory in seaside charms. They form an unbroken cordon around the whole coast, and one has only to instance the fame of such places as Bundoran and Portrush in the north, and of Courtown and Youghal in the south, as well as the legion of resorts along the eastern seaboard, to testify to the regard in which Irish seaside towns are held by visitors from outside the country. Not only do they appeal to the parent of a family, but to those who choose golf as a means of making holiday, either as an exclusive relaxation or as part of their scheme.

The coast, in its many aspects, appeals to such a number of sides in our nature that there are several considerations to be borne in mind when selecting the ideal seaside resort. Most of us would be content with such a spot as Tramore, with its beautiful strand and pleasant situation. Others who require a comparatively active holiday and the opportunity for seeing nature's charms reflected otherwise, as well as in its scenery, might find their spiritual home at Rosslare, which has the special distinction of being the "jumping-off place" for the Saltee Islands, the famous bird sanctuary, where the birds are now gathering for the breeding season.

Almost all kinds of holiday-makers meet at Ennis, the county town of Clare, which, apart from being one of the inevitable resting places for those who tour the country—being half-way between Killarney and Galway, and within easy access of the West Clare beauty spots—provides facilities for hunting, shooting, fishing and golf, while it has the further irresistible appeal in the form of hotel accommodation such as cannot be surpassed in any other town of Ireland.

Dubliners are particularly fortunate, as compared with the dwellers in most other cities, by reason of the fact that they have so many holiday haunts lying almost beside the city. To the north there are such places as Skerries, Portmarnock and Howth; to the south, the long chain of resorts which might be said to begin with Dun Laoghaire and then to continue, past Dalkey and over Killiney Hill, into Bray, Greystones and yet further beyond.

HIKING AND CYCLING.

How are all these delights to be attained? Many of our young people to-day have solved the question of deriving the greatest enjoyment in the shortest time by taking to "hiking," and, to a somewhat lesser, but still appreciable, extent, to cycling. Once the starting point has been reached, perhaps by train or 'bus, they take to the road and wander where they will, exploring all that lies on either side of the beaten track. For this form of travel, what country offers greater scope than is to be found in Ireland?

Not all of us, however, are in the position of these youthful travellers, sturdy and unencumbered. For the exceptions, there are all kinds of travel facilities, including those of the Great Southern Railway, whose schedule of cheap fares testifies to their endeavour to induce holiday travel in the present stringent times. The company's holiday literature suggests a week's stay at any of their hotels—situated at Killarney, Kenmare, Parknasilla, Galway, Mallaranny, and Sligo—at an inclusive charge for rail and hotel accommodation. There are rail and motor coach tours in the South and West, which include by road many miles of travel through the most beautiful scenery. Run-about contract tickets can be obtained for ten shillings, and these enable the tourist stopping at a holiday centre to travel daily and see the country over a large area.

"ALL-IN" TOURS.

The best of the company's arrangements appears, however, to be nine "all-in" tours. All trouble for the traveller is obviated by this system, as the cost of the ticket includes rail travel, hotel accommodation, and some road travel and sightseeing tours. The company is also giving this year, instead of the old sixteen days' period tickets, "summer excursion" tickets at the same fare, which will be available for one month.

Most of this article has been written from the standpoint of the urban resident who wishes to find change at the seaside or country. There are many rural dwellers, however, whose idea of a holiday is to spend their leisure in the unaccustomed bustle of a big city, finding surcease from the comparative monotony of their normal life in the round of excitements which the big centres of population have to offer. Dublin is the ideal city for holidays—with its stately architecture, set in an encircling rim of lovely hills, its historic gems and associations, its manifold entertainments, and the constant series of social and sporting events which keep up the interest of the summer season.

ACROSS THE CHANNEL.

There remains that appreciable section for whom a holiday means a visit to some place beyond Ireland's shores. Well, their choice is vast, indeed. Excellent shipping services from Dublin, Belfast and Rosslare will carry them across the Channel, and all of Great Britain and the Isle of Man is within some hours' reach.

Irish accents are to be heard throughout the summer season at all the resorts of the Isle of Man, so popular is that compact little island, with its pleasantly-assorted variety of attractions, set conveniently in so small a space, among the people of the larger isle. Many Irish people, indeed, may be said to have narrowed their list of possible resorts to Douglas, Ramsey and Peel.

Somewhat similar is the attitude of many of our people to the North Wales resorts, which, on account of their scenic settings, must have a peculiar attraction for every Celtic people. Mountains and a rugged coast set off such places as Rhyl, Llandudno and Aberystwith so perfectly that it might not be far wrong to say that, outside Ireland, the British Isles has nothing finer to show.

The plaintiff claimed damages for injuries stated to have been caused to her by having been struck by the defendant's motor car at the corner of Cabra road, Dublin, on the 9th April of last year; and the consent provided for payment by the defendant to her of £175, in addition to £36 for hospital and medical fees, and £20 as costs.

CARLOW MAN SENT TO JAIL.

CHARGES BEFORE TRIBUNAL.

REFUSAL TO PLEAD.

BEFORE the Military Tribunal, sitting at Collins' Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, Daniel Sullivan, of Muinebeag, Co. Carlow, was found guilty on the following charges:—Possession of a bullet, intimidation, riotous assembly, refusing to give an account of his movements to a Civic Guard, contempt of court.

He was acquitted on the counts of conspiracy to assault Michael O'Reilly and possession of a bullet to endanger life.

He was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment.

The prisoner declined to answer to his name or plead to the indictment, and, by direction, not guilty pleas were entered on each of ten counts.

Mr. Wm. Black (instructed by Mr. J. S. O'Connor, solicitor to the Attorney-General) prosecuted, and said that he was not concerned in any way whether the prisoner recognised the Court. He was not charged with that offence, but with refusing to recognise the law of civilised society.

On March 11th Nicholas O'Reilly, of Muinebeag, was coming out of Mass when he was assaulted. He summoned the people concerned, and the accused man with eight or ten other men, wearing masks, went to O'Reilly's house, where prisoner produced a bullet, and told O'Reilly that he would have to withdraw the assault charge, otherwise he would put the bullet through him. One of the raiders attempted to go upstairs, but was prevented by a fifteen-year-old daughter of the household.

The view taken by the State was that that kind of terrorism could not be tolerated. The law did not make any distinction between rival thinkers in politics, and in matters of that kind did not regard offences—cowardly outrages—committed by one side as boyish pranks.

"WOULD PLUG HIM."

Mr. O'Reilly swore that prisoner and other men came to his house and asked for his son. The prisoner said that if he or his friends got jail through a prosecution witness's son was bringing, he "would plug him." The prisoner then produced a bullet.

Mrs. O'Reilly gave corroborative evidence.

Rita O'Reilly said that when her father asked "Who'll plug him?" a man replied: "The I.R.A."

Asked by the President of the Tribunal if he wished to call any witnesses or make a statement, the prisoner said: "I refuse to plead."

TRIAL FIXED.

The trial of James J. Dwyer, of Ballinure Hill, Ballinure, Co. Tipperary, before the Military Tribunal, has been fixed for Thursday next, when charges of possession of firearms and ammunition with intent to endanger life will be preferred against him.

CRUISING HOLIDAYS

What to Wear while at Sea.

YEAR after year the popularity of cruising grows, fostered by the fact that each person who indulges in this form of recreation one year not only goes again the next, but induces as many of his friends as possible to do so, too. Considering the number of persons who now speak with personal knowledge of the sights of Madeira, the Mediterranean coast, and the Land of the Midnight Sun, it is difficult to realise that cruising is a fashion, generally speaking, which has grown up only in the last two years.

So successful was the experiment of 1932, when the big British ports began to pour out holiday ships, carrying all-human cargoes, to the north and south, that this form of holiday has already ousted the Continental tour from the thoughts of many people who had previously scorned any other method of spending their vacations. Largely this is the result of circumstances—the great fight which the shipping companies were making to preserve themselves from ruin and the fortuitous factor that sterling was at a sudden disadvantage in the money markets of the world. Whatever may have been its origin, however, cruising has won its spurs.

IN MARK TWAIN'S TIME.

Cruising, of course, existed in Mark Twain's days. The present British shipping lines for many years have been in the habit of running cruises, out of the ordinary holiday season, up the coast of Norway, but the new departure lay in the inception of cruises during all the summer months at extraordinarily cheap rates which extended to so low a level as £1 a day for a fortnight of long-distance foreign travel. For those who would prefer rapid glimpses at many aspects of the world's life to a complete and penetrating survey of one, cruising has obvious advantages over the ordinary holiday on land; and, as most people come within this category—naturally, devoting their holidays to amusement and relaxation rather than instruction—is it any wonder that cruising has taken them by storm.

JOLLY COMPANIONS.

Life on board ship has other advantages over life on land. It offers jolly company which has not to be sought, but is ready at hand as soon as the ship sails. Many a courtship that begins on board ship nowadays, indeed, develops into a romance. Above all, however, there is the consideration that those who go down to the sea in these holiday ships cast from them the moment they step on board all the ordinary worries of everyday life. They can spend their days in complete rest, reclining in a comfortable seat, or they can break their idleness by indulging in games and exercise whenever the urge comes; never do they need to consider the thousand-and-one matters which in ordinary life arise from our absolute subservience to the tyranny of the clock.

Generally, a cruising liner carries only one "class" of passenges—they may be first-class or they may be "tourist," this depending as a rule on the degree of luxury on which the ship is equipped. It was the provision of ships in the second class which really formed the great development in regard to cruising in 1932, although most, if not all, of the companies found that the increase in one class of traveller brought a corresponding increase in the other. So far as fares are concerned, the "tourist" class is based on a daily rate of about half or two-thirds of the other, while the length of a "tourist" ship's trip tends to be less than that of one of the more aristocratic vessels.

ENDLESS VARIETY.

The variety which the cruising holiday offers is almost endless. For the wealthy, with time and money to spare, there are long trips to the West Indies, the East Indies, and on to Australia, or, for that matter, voyages of several months' duration which circle the globe. For most persons, however, there are two broad classifications—the kind of cruise, lasting up to a month, which will take one right around the shores of the Mediterranean, touching Egypt and the Holy Land, or else to Iceland or Russia; and the shorter cruise, generally of about a fortnight's duration, or rather less, which will enable the passenger to see some of the nearer ports of the Mediterranean or the Baltic, or to touch at the Canaries or the Norwegian coast.

THE CLOTHING PROBLEM.

For the women, of course, the clothes that will be worn on board will be almost as much fun as the cruise. Although much has been written about the so-called problem of what to pack, the matter is really very simple—the first essential being a certain amount of common-sense when the packing is being done. There should be some light frocks, of course, and a couple of evening gowns; shoes for the deck and for shore, as well as for evening wear; some protective clothing for the evenings, when the sun has gone down and the sea breezes strike cold; a shady hat, and, no doubt, a bathing costume. These are the essentials; there may be various additions in the form of unconventional attire for deck wear. Men, of course, will have little difficulty in selecting their dress, bearing in mind that they will be subject to hot days and sometimes chilly evenings, and that it is the practice to dress for dinner.

Sometimes anxiety marks the last days of a cruise owing to anxiety as to the correct amount which should be spent in tips. It is usually accepted that the total amount should approximate to about ten per cent. of the cost of the cruise. Working on the basis of giving the largest tips to those from whom one receives most service, one could apportion this in the ratio of about one-third to the table steward, one-third between the bedroom steward and stewardess, and the remaining one-third between all the other attendants.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT.

INJURED IN 'BUS COLLISION

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT AND A JURY.)

Mrs. Christina Flynn, 16 Whitehall cottages, Rathfarnham, Dublin, sued Louis E. McNally, Pearse street, Dublin, proprietor of the General Omnibus Company, to recover £300 damages for personal injuries and loss occasioned by the alleged negligence of the defendant's servants in the management of an omnibus.

The plaintiff stated that she was a passenger in the 'bus, which collided with another 'bus, the property of the defendant. She was thrown to the floor, and she sustained injuries to her shoulder and legs, in consequence of which she was incapacitated from carrying out her household duties, and had to employ a woman at 15s. a week to do her work.

Medical evidence was that a bad state of neurasthenia resulted from the accident, and that the plaintiff had developed curvature of the spine in consequence.

The defence was that the plaintiff's claim was excessive, as the actual physical injuries were insignificant. It was also claimed that the employment of the woman at 15s. a week was excessive.

The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, and assessed the damages at £106.

Mr. M. C. Walker (instructed by Messrs. Stewart and Orr) appeared for the plaintiff.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

THOUGHT OF A BATH.

FOUND DROWNING.

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

John Dooley, a labourer in the Great Southern Railways Works, living in Donohue road, Inchicore, was bound over for twelve months, himself in £20 and two sureties of £10 each, or, in default, two months' imprisonment, on a charge of attempted suicide.

Guards B. Kilkenny and Mt. Corway stated that on the 6th May they saw a man in the River Liffey at 4.10 a.m. Guard Kilkenny threw him a lifebuoy, which the man put over his shoulders, and was towed to the steps. He was then taken to Jervis street Hospital, and kept muttering: "How did it happen?" and "How did I get in?"

Guard Dooley, who had charge of the defendant in hospital, said that he noticed nothing wrong in the man's demeanour.

Defendant, in evidence, said he did not know how he got into the water. He had had some drinks, and he might have thought of having a bath, being a bit warm.

ASSAULT WITH AN EGG.

Leo Driscoll, 61 Upper Dorset street, Dublin, was fined 40s. for assaulting his landlord, Patrick McGivern, same address, by striking him in the eye with an egg.

It appeared that defendant's wife, in passing in and out through the hall, banged the door so much that goods were knocked off the shelves in plaintiff's shop. When plaintiff called out, "Please don't bang that door" he was struck by Driscoll.

Driscoll denied the assault, saying that he did not see McGivern at all on the occasion.

STREET OBSTRUCTION.

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

A fine of 5s. was imposed on Patrick McEnroe, The Coombe, for preventing the free passage of the public on the footway at the corner of Hanover street and The Coombe.

It appeared defendant, when asked for his name and address by Guard Fahy, refused to give it, and threatened "to see Bob Briscoe about it."

"The Committee of Management of the Royal Hospital for Incurables desire to place on record deepest sympathy with their colleague, Mr. Henry J. The draft of the annual accounts for year ended 31st March, 1934, was read and adopted, together with Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co.'s report on their audit of same.

The ordinary expenditure of the hospital amounted to £13,473 12/1, and the ordinary income to meet this heavy outlay £9,374 15/8. The year ended with a bank overdraft of £7,602 0/11, which emphasises the need for further financial assistance if the beds are to be occupied to the fullest capacity.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

The American Language : A Drogheda Artist : Mrs. Robert Flaherty : An Easter Tour.

Mrs. Robert Flaherty.

I found Mrs. Robert Flaherty having a much-longed-for rest in the Shelbourne Hotel the other afternoon before her departure for London, where she is to join her husband. What the next picture will be, and where it is to be made, is still a secret; but Mrs. Flaherty doubts if she and her husband will find another picture so absorbing and thrilling in the making as "Man of Aran."

Irish hospitality she describes as "overwhelming," and, although quite devoid of that awful "Celtic twilight" sentiment with which visitors to this country are so prone to endow us, she has a very lively and sympathetic conception of the Irish character. The Aran folk she describes as "finely bred," with an natural ease of manner and breeding that nothing could destroy. Though she is very reticent about her share in the production of the "Man of Aran," those in the know have a high opinion of her technical knowledge and skill in production. She is credited with many of the best "shots" in the picture. Like her husband, Mrs. Flaherty is a born wanderer, and life to her is always an adventure, whether she finds herself in New York, an igloo in Lapland, or the rocky coast of Aran. Of the three Flaherty daughters, two are at school in Dorset. Mrs. Flaherty is no great admirer of the English public school system, and prefers for her daughters a school where individuality is considered more important than type. Her eldest daughter, Barbara, is at present working with Mr. Sean Keating on the Hospital Trust painting for the Derby draw.

Horses for India.

I see that Captain Crawford, a director of the British Bloodstock Agency in London, is at present in Ireland. His mission, I believe, concerns horses, and he is likely to acquire a number for the foreign market—chiefly India. He has been making a round of the stables at headquarters, and attended the Curragh Races. There he purchased the two-years-old brown gelding Whiskey Peg, by Mascot out of Peggy O'Neill, for £30. Whiskey Peg was put up for auction after the race for the Brownstown Selling Plate. Captain Crawford is a veterinary surgeon. Another sale this week was Mauve, a brown filly (1932), by Salisbury, who won at the Park last month in the name and colours of Mr. Michael Cuddhy, a noted Dublin cattle exporter. Mauve was purchased by Mr. J. T. Rogers, and may possibly go abroad.

Terraplane, a 3-years-old chestnut filly, by Essexford out of Dulcie Bridge, was also put up for auction at the Curragh to dissolve a partnership. I believe that this filly was knocked down to Mr. E. J. Byrne, and that she has joined Ruttles' string.

The American Language.

The note which appeared here on the American spelling of some English words prompts a correspondent to draw attention to the difference in meaning between some words as used in America and the same words as used this side of the Atlantic. My correspondent gives as an example the word "chiseler" or "chisseler," as used, for instance, in Dublin. Here in Dublin it is a familiar equivalent for "youngster," and is, perhaps, a purely Dublin term corresponding to "gossoon," borrowed from the Gaelic into English as we speak it in Ireland. Its precise shade of meaning would be nearly that of the French gamin. In the United States, on the other hand, it has a signification corresponding to its slang use in England—namely, a cheat, one who takes advantage of another person. In American politics its use in this sense is common, and even in the most staid journals it is applied to obstructionists and reactionaries, especially when they are wielding the financial "axe."

A Strange Telegram.

My correspondent continues with a story he tells against himself, and I can vouch for its accuracy, as he has sent me the material evidence. Some days ago he received from a friend in Glasgow a telegram which read: "Shall be at large until Tuesday." As he had left Glasgow only a few days before, and at that time his friend was quite well and healthy in mind as well as body, he was puzzled as to what to make of this mysterious message. Several answers to his self-questionings occurred to him, but all were rejected as either incredible or inapplicable and unsatisfactory. Despairing of finding an explanation without communicating with his friend, he was about to tear up the telegram when he thought it well to take one last look at it. And thereupon to his amusement and to his contentment as well, he found that as sent and as received by the Post Office in Dublin the last letter of the third last word was S, but somebody in the Post Office had superimposed upon it in pencil before sending the telegram out for delivery the letter E. His friend, in fact, had gone for a few days to Largs, a watering-place on the Clyde. Plainly the Irish Post Office's sense of what it considered the right thing was greater than its knowledge of the geography of Scotland.

An Easter Tour.

I was interested to hear that several Trinity "Rugger" men took part in the Easter tour in Wales of the Dolphin (Cork) team. The latter had been given the Easter Monday fixture with the far-famed Llanelly Club, which includes no less than nine Welsh internationals in its XV., and had invited a few "outside" players to strengthen their side. Mr. T. J. O'Driscoll, the Trinity wing forward, and Mr. R. McCall, the Trinity scrum half (who are natives of Cork City), both played on the Dolphin team, also Mr. Noel Mahony, of the 2nd XV. Pilot-Officer Igoe, who plays out-half for the R.A.F. team, appeared as seven-eighth for his old club and gave a brilliant display, the Cork team actually leading at half-time by nine points to three. Subsequently Llanelly, ably led by Ivor Jones, the famous Welsh wing-forward, took command of the game, and ran out winners by sixteen points to nine points. The return match will be in Cork in October, and there is a prospect of the Llanelly team coming on to Dublin to play Trinity. The match would, I feel sure, be a great attraction in Dublin.

A Drogheda Artist.

An artist's first one-man show is generally of special interest, and I am told that art lovers and critics are looking forward with keen expectation to the exhibition which Miss Nano Reid is holding at the Stephen's Green Gallery at the end of this month. Miss Reid is a young Drogheda lady, who studied first at the Metropolitan School of Art in Dublin, and held a scholarship there. One discerning critic whom I know says that, in his opinion, some of her work is very good, indeed, "much more interesting than many of the paintings which are so much in the public eye." She has been "hung" for several years past at the Royal Hibernian Academy, and has exhibited at the Tailteann Games and in the art section of the Chicago World Fair. Two of her paintings have been sold in New York. After Dublin Miss Reid studied in London and Paris, and she has painted in Holland as well as in Donegal, Achill, Antrim, Connemara and Louth-Meath. She is a member of the Dublin artists' group, and a couple of years ago she joined with two others in a Dublin exhibition. She is now holding her first show on her own, and I gather that it will be fully representative of her painting and drawing. Both paintings and drawings will include portraits. At the moment, I hear, Miss Reid is sitting for her portrait to one of the most distinguished of Irish woman painters, a pleasing example of good comradeship among fellow artists.

FAIRVIEW CARNIVAL FEATURES.

PIGMY HORSE AND GIANT PIG.

Among the attractions at the carnival being held at Fairview Park, Dublin, in aid of Marino Church and Schools are a pigmy horse and a monster pig.

Princess Ubangi's pigmty horse is a perfect specimen of horseflesh not many inches high, and shod with silver shoes.

The weight of the pig is stated to be half a ton, and he has an appetite which accounts each day for four cases of apples, sixteen cabbages, seven buckets of milk, two bushels of pollard, bran and crushed grain, with a liberal supply of turnips.

IRISH AUTHORS AND COMPOSERS.

Mr. P. G. Kavanagh, Barrister at Law, presided at a special meeting of the Irish Authors' and Composers' Association, which considered questions affecting the rights of some of their members, who were broadcasting and recording artistes, and particularly as to the statement by the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs as to the discontinuance of the present sponsored programmes.

It was hoped that more Irish artistes would be engaged, and that they would get an opportunity for broadcasting the works of the Association's authors and composers, and, in particular, some of the composers' arrangements of Irish traditional music.

The chairman reported to the meeting that the Minister for Education had been informed that many of the Association's members were first-class composers and arrangers, and would give every assistance in complying with the Minister's request about arranging old Irish melodies for schools.

GLIDING IN IRELAND.

Interest in gliding was going to manifest itself here, and it might be the lot of Ireland to add another page to gliding history, declared Mr. M. A. Doyle, B.Sc. TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES.

SOME INTERESTING VISITORS.

A NEW LECTURERSHIP.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

THE appearance of the undergraduate magazine, T.C.D., is one of the signs that the full activity of the term has been renewed.

The first number of the paper for Trinity Term appeared on Thursday, revealing, as usual, the name—hitherto known only to the initiated—of the editor for the previous term.

Owing to the resignation of the first editor appointed, two names appear this week in the report of the Editorial Sub-committee, which sits in judgment on the performance of each term's editor, and issues a report in the first number of the ensuing term. The names are Mr. T. G. Tyrell and Mr. J. M. Beaumont (Sch.), Mod., B.A.

Mr. Tyrell, by common consent, wrote in his first number of the paper one of the most brilliant editorials of recent years, and Mr. Beaumont has been largely responsible for the publication of the extremely humorous articles which have enlivened T.C.D. during the past few terms. Mr. Tyrell has, while still a student, achieved the distinction of having a play accepted for production by the Gate Theatre. Its appearance will be looked forward to with much interest.

The dinner held last week in London by the T.C.D. Dining Club was a brilliant success. Close on 150 members were present, the guests including the Vice-Chancellor (Sir Thomas Molony, Bart., LL.D.), the Provost, and Sir Geoffrey Rothe Clarke, C.S.I., President of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Great Britain. The Auditor of the College Historical Society (Mr. Arthur G. Quirke, B.A., LL.B.) was a guest of the club as representative of the student body. The speeches by the Vice-Chancellor and the Provost stressed the flourishing state of the University, which is evidenced by the record number of new entrants and of students.

An important change has recently been made in the regulations for the conferring of degrees jure dignitatis. In future the Board's graces for degrees jure dignitatis will come before a special meeting of the Senate to be held in February each year for the purpose of considering graces for honorary degrees. Hitherto they have been proposed to the Senate and conferred on their recipients at one and the same meeting. The degrees are confined to graduates of the University who have attained a distinguished position in public life, and represent the highest compliment which such graduates can receive from their Alma Mater.

They are, in consequence, jealously guarded, the consent of two-thirds of the members of the Board being required for their bestowal.

SOCIETY MEETINGS.

A full programme of society meetings has been arranged for next week. On Monday the D.U. History Society will meet at 3 p.m. in the G.M.B., when Mr. R. B. McDowell will read a paper on "John Fitzgibbon, Earl of Clare." The speakers to the paper will be Messrs. K. M. Walmsley and J. Thornton. On Tuesday night at 8 o'clock the Experimental Science Association (the president, Mr. K. C. Bailey, Litt.D., F.T.C.D., in the chair) will meet in the Museum Buildings to hear communications from Mr. J. Harding (Sch.) on "Clouds" and from Mr. D. Mitchell on "The Technique of Auditory and Visual Aesthetics."

On Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the G.M.B. the College Historical Society will meet (Professor Brontë Gatenby, M.A., Ph.D., in the chair) to debate the motion, "That this house approves of Herr Hitler's attitude to women."

On Thursday afternoon, at 5.30 in the Museum Buildings, the annual general meeting of the Dublin University Biological Association will be held, the business including the election of president and officers for the coming session. On Thursday night, at 8 o'clock, the Philosophical Society meets to hear a paper by Mr. J. Nash on "Mechanism and the Scientist." Meetings held last week included that of the Metaphysical Society, yesterday afternoon, when Mr. V. J. P. Meally (Sch.), Mod., B.A. (University Student), read a paper on "Indian Philosophy."

A notable visitor to the College during the week has been Mr. Edward Hawkshaw Powell, B.A., B.A.I., of the Indian Railway Service. Mr. Powell was formerly secretary of the Dublin University Co-Operative Society, and took an active part in the establishment, in 1920, of the Co-Operative Society's buffet. Mr. Powell is a brother of Professor Ashley Powell, M.A., Reid Professor of Constitutional and Criminal Law.

Interesting visitors to the Library during the week have been the Earl of Rosse, whose grandfather was Chancellor of the University, and Mr. Sacheverell Sitwell, the poet. A prominent figure who has returned to College is Mr. E. D. Camier (Sch.), Mod., B.A. (Univ. Stud.). Mr. Camier has just completed his post-graduate course at the University of Heidleberg, and has been appointed temporary Lecturer in Mathematics.

It has been proposed to endow an annual Lecturership in Science in honour of the late Professor John Joly, F.R.S., F.T.C.D. A committee has been established to make the necessary arrangements for the receipt of subscriptions towards the memorial fund. The Memorial Discourse delivered every year on Trinity Monday will this year not be given in the College Chapel at the Festival Evensong held on that afternoon, but in the G.M.B., when Professor W. F. Trench, M.A., Litt.D. (Professor of English Literature), will deliver an address on "Thomas Moore." This interesting break from precedent ought to attract many visitors to the G.M.B., on an occasion when the University annually remembers one of its illustrious sons.

In connection with the forthcoming annual dinner of the T.C.D. Association on Saturday, 16th June next, it should have been made clear in the Notes last week that considerations of space preclude the invitation of guests by members. Subscriptions to the dinner should reach the office of the Association, at 5 Trinity College, not later than Tuesday, 12th June.

The select preacher to the University to-morrow will be the Rev. R. M. Gwynn, B.D., F.T.C.D.

NEW FILM SOCIETY.

An interesting innovation in the round of University "diversions" is the proposed establishment of an Amateur Film Production Society. A notice appeared this week in the G.M.B. inviting those who are interested in amateur film production to meet in No. 2 T.C.D., yesterday afternoon. The sponsors of the new society are Mr. Michael Farrell and Mr. S. B. Sachs. Mr. Farrell is a prominent member of the Dublin University Players, and was the producer last year of the play, "Will Shakespeare." Mr. Sachs is a medical student from South Africa.

A meeting of the Captains' Committee will be held in No. 5 Trinity College on Tuesday, May 22nd, next, at 5 p.m., to decide upon the awarding of the University colours—the coveted "Pinks." The suggestion has been made from time to time that the colour of the latter might be altered, but no steps seem likely to be taken in this direction for the present.

The athletic event of next week will be the D.U. Harriers' Championship on Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the College Park. Given fine weather a large crowd may be expected to be present. Mr. R. J. Sandys, last year's Tennis Club captain, gave a splendid display against another Trinity man, Mr. T. G. McVeagh, the triple internationalist, in the final of the Irish Hard Courts Championships on Saturday last. He was defeated, after four sets, 6-1, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3. The Swimming Club drew with Queen's University, Belfast, 2-2 on Saturday in the final of the Irish Section of the British Inter-University Championships. The re-play is on Wednesday.

Mr. G. M. Campbell won the Doyle Cup in the Leinster "200," held at Skerries last week. The Cricket XI. meet Phœnix in the Phœnix Park to-day.

IRISH-POLISH CIRCLE.

FIRST MEETING IN DUBLIN.

OBJECTS OF THE NEW SOCIETY.

AN "Irish-Polish Circle" was inaugurated yesterday at the Gate Theatre, Dublin. A number of people desirous of giving concrete expression to the historical sympathy which has so long existed between Poland and Ireland assembled, and, under the presidency of the Earl of Longford, decided to form a society for the promotion of mutual understanding between the peoples of the two countries.

The meeting was the outcome of efforts on behalf of the project made by M. Dobrvzynski, the Polish Consul-General to the Free State; Dr. Denis J. Coffey, President, University College, Dublin; the Earl of Longford, Captain D. A. MacManus, and Colonel J. J. O'Connell.

Lord Longford explained to the meeting the intention of the movement in Dublin, and how a similar circle might be formed in Warsaw for the promotion of sympathetic relations between Ireland and Poland.

M. Dobrizynski addressed the meeting and welcomed the movement to form an Irish-Polish circle as a means of spreading knowledge of both Ireland in Poland, and Poland in Ireland. In his experience there was a strong sentimental attraction between the two nations.

Mr. Barry Browne moved that an Irish-Polish circle be formed.

Lord Longford was elected president.

A constitution of the society was adopted and a committee appointed.

TELEGRAMS TO POLAND.

It was decided to send telegrams to President Mosciski and Marshal Pelzudski, Warsaw, conveying expressions of respectful feelings.

Among those present were:—Dr. Myles Keogh, Deputy Lord Mayor; Mrs. Reddin, the Countess of Longford, the Rev. Coyne, Major A. T. Lawlor, Miss Kelly, Miss A. Davenport, Sir Joseph and Lady Glynn, Mrs. T. Bodkin, Miss Milieska, Miss Roche, Mr. F. M. Summerfield, Mr. Geppart, Commercial Counsellor, Polish Embassy, London; Miss K. Kelly, Miss A. Drumgoole, Major and Mrs. McKinney, Madame and Miss Dobrzynski, Mr. T. O'B. Kelly, Lady Christopher Nixon, Miss Nixon, Mrs James MacNeill, Mrs. McGonigal.

EX-SERVICE MAN'S EVICTION SEQUEL.

MOTION BY SAILORS' AND SOLDIERS' TRUST.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BALLINA, Friday.

In Ballina Circuit Court to-day, Judge O'Donnel, in a considered decision, dismissed a motion by the Sailors' and Soldiers' Trust to transfer the hearing of an action to the High Court in which John Cluirke, ex-soldier, Ballinasloe, Galway, claimed to be put back into possession of a cottage from which he was evicted.

The judge decided that the Circuit Court, Galway, was the appropriate tribunal in which the hearing of the case should take place.

Mr. G. O'Sullivan, barrister-at-law, said that the case affected 10,000 ex-Service men in the Free State and funds amounting to one and a quarter million pounds, and no matter how the case was decided in the Circuit Court there would be an appeal. The title of this large sum was being challenged.

Mr. Micks (for Cluirke) said that the main contention in the case was that the relationship between the plaintiff and the Trust was not one of landlord and tenant, and the plaintiff was asking for a declaration that concerned the Trust only.

The judge also granted an injunction preserving the status quo pending the hearing.

SIR EDWARD ELGAR'S WILL.

The will of Sir Edward Elgar, published yesterday, contains the following clauses:—

"I regret that, owing to the sudden collapse of everything artistic and commercial, I have found it necessary to revoke the will which I had previously made, and to make this present will.

"I leave nothing to any charity, as I have given everything possible during my life, and I much regret that it is now necessary for me to cancel the legacies which it had been my purpose to leave to servants and friends and institutions."

RATHFARNHAM DRAMATIC SOCIETY.

The Rathfarnham Dramatic Society gave a repeat performance of their entertainment, which includes three one-act plays, in the War Memorial Hall, Terenure, last night. Several musical items were also included in the programme.

DUNDALK RACES.—Mrs. J. H. Murphy presenting the Macardle Memorial Cup to Mr. A. P. Harris, who won it with Avondale at Dundalk Races yesterday. Behind is Mr. T. J. Kelly, Manager and Clerk of the Course.

GOLF and billiards, two games with an enormous following, are represented in the programmes to-night. Tom Newman, the billiards champion, is expected to talk about "Four-figure Breaks," from Daventry at 6.30. Golf will be dealt with by Bernard Darwin at 9.12, when he will give an eye-witness account of the second day's play in the Walker Cup match. Mr. Darwin is one of a committee of five, appointed to select the British players competing against U.S.A. for the cup.

Other talks which are recommended include one by C. K. Eyre, entitled "The Belfast Congress," in the Dublin programme at 9.15, and a Gaelic talk by Seamus O'Duirinne at 7.15.

Listeners with time to spare should tune in to "Time to Spare," which is a series of talks planned to show the plight of the workless. It does one good to be brought into contact with those less fortunate than themselves. When one is inclined to feel discontented there is no better cure than to take a walk through one of the large hospitals. Last week an unemployed man came to the microphone and told his story in his own way; to-night the wife of one is to do the same. The truth of these stories are vouched for by responsible persons who know personally those who speak (Daventry 7.5).

For our enjoyment Carroll Gibbons and the Savoy Orpheans will give an entertainment hour, and the play, "Pursuit of Adonis," starring Ernest Milton, which was given on Thursday, will be repeated.

An orchestral concert from Belfast, to be relayed from the Ulster Hall, will be given by the Belfast Wireless Symphony Orchestra (conducted by Godfrey Brown). Also taking part is the Civil Service Choir (conductor, Herbert T. Scott) and Johanne Stockmarr (pianoforte).

All through the week the Smetana anniversary celebrations have been kept up, and most of the best work of the famous Czech composer has been heard from Prague and other European stations. To-day is the anniversary of the death of Smetana, which took place fifty years ago. On this account his opera, "Libusa," is being performed at the State Opera House, Prague, from whence it will be relayed at 7. "Libusa" is described by Smetana himself as a "solemn festival picture," and he desired that it should only be presented "on festivals which touch the whole Czech nation."

TO-MORROW.

DUBLIN: "Is Life Worth Living?" Talk by Rev. Father James, O.M.Cap., M.A., 9.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: "The Merchant of Venice," 5.30.

NORTH REGIONAL: The Merseyside Orchestra, 9.5.

VIENNA: Concert version of "Jabuka" (Joh. Strauss), 8.

HEILSBERG: Konigsberg Orchestra, 10.30.

ONE suspects that the producer of to-day's Shakespearian play are hoping for the worst—that is, in the way of weather; for, although these plays are produced in the best possible manner by the B.B.C., there is no doubt that "The Merchant of Venice" would reach more ears if Sunday proved to be a "soaker" instead of hot and sunny. This is where the portable has the advantage. One could imagine any lover of Shakespeare, or even a big school boy or girl just arriving at the time when they are taking their English literature seriously, enjoying this performance immensely in a quite out-of-door sport. The play will be produced and has been adapted for broadcasting by Cyril Wood, who himself spent seven years on the stage and six as a producer before he came to the B.B.C. The parts of Shylock, Portia, Launcelot Gobbo and Bassanio are taken by actors of experience both on the stage and before the microphone, and the performance promises to be specially good.

In the series of continental composers conductors' concerts the second one will be given to-day. Oscar Straus for this occasion has accepted an invitation to conduct the B.B.C. Theatre Orchestra in a programme of his own music. The first to come was Emmerich Kalman, and it is hoped that later in the year Franz Lehar will be the visitor.

In spite of the fact that Beethoven's Ninth Symphony was broadcast from one of the continental stations a few days ago, it should be noted that an outstanding performance of the same work is promised from the Concertgebouw, Amsterdam, under the conductorship of Mengeberg (Hilversum 9.55).

NAPOLEONIC WARS RECALLED.

BRITISH SOLDIERS' REMAINS UNEARTHED.

Two English soldiers who perished in an attack on the island of Spiekeroog, in the North Sea, during the Napoleonic wars more than one hundred years ago, have just been buried there.

A piece of European history has been unearthed by men of the Spiekeroog Labour Camp while building an aerodrome, writes Reuter from Berlin.

They dug up a human skeleton in a sand dune. By its side were a piece of lead shot, a uniform button, and a metal object thought to have been part of a cutlass.

Island tradition linked the find with a British assault on the island in 1812, when it was occupied by Rhine Federation troops under Lieutenant von Soden. In spite of repeated onslaughts on the garrison the British were beaten off, leaving one dead and several wounded on the field.

An old islander remembered that, according to the story handed down to him, one of the English wounded had later died and been buried there. A few days later a second skeleton was found in the dunes.

The pastor of the island, Dr. Reimers, a noted expert in East Fiosian history, conducted the Burial Service, and German labour volunteers took part in the ceremony.

FROM THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

The Budget : Labour and Nationalists : Fair Rents : City Extension : Unemployment Decrease : Railways : Export Credits

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

THE Northern Minister of Finance is to introduce his Budget next Wednesday. There is a good deal of speculation in political circles in regard to this year's Budget, and the question is being asked if Mr. Pollock will be able to follow the Chancellor of the Exchequer at Westminster in all his remissions and reliefs to the taxpayers and the unemployed. In some respects this will be a critical Budget for Northern Ireland. The 6d. reduction in income tax is certain, and the unemployment "cut" restoration on the lines of Great Britain is also certain, but some of Mr. Chamberlain's other concessions are not so obvious. In fact, the time has arrived when Northern Ireland is going to find it difficult to keep in step with Great Britain in regard to motor taxation, restoration of salary "cuts" and other matters. The business of Parliament this week was largely confined to the estimates of the respective Ministries for the coming year. The Labour Ministry group, which shows a reduction of nearly half a million sterling owing to the improvement in employment, had some gratifying features, and it is hoped that employment will further increase within the next few months. The decision of the Labour Party to apply for the issue of a writ for the election in Belfast Central raised a storm between two of the Opposition groups—the Nationalists and Labour—which caused no little amusement on the Government benches. In view of the fact that the Nationalists of Central were engaged in the process—apparently a difficult one—of selecting a candidate to succeed Mr. Devlin, the Labour Party would have been better advised to wait a short time longer before pressing the motion for a writ.

FAIR RENTS.

The proposal for the establishment of Fair Rent Courts to protect tenants of uncontrolled houses between £8 and £26 valuation, which was discussed in the Northern Parliament this week, has much to commend it, although it is doubtful if it would form any real solution of the housing problem. There are many cases of hardship where exorbitant rents are charged and other conditions imposed upon tenants, such as payment for key money and furniture, which would not be imposed if the houses had remained controlled. The most glaring cases of overcharging, however, apply not in respect of houses, but in the sub-letting of vacant rooms by tenants of houses. In many cases more is charged for one room than is paid by the tenant for the whole house. The real solution of the difficulty is the provision of more houses at cheap rents, and it is along this line of policy that the Government and the local authorities are working. There is some doubt if the subsidy method which they are operating—£25 from the Government and £25 from the local authority—is the best. More might be achieved if the Government and local authorities took more direct control of housing by a housing authority operating with the advantage of a Government guarantee for loans to enable money for building to be obtained at a cheap rate.

CITY EXTENSION.

The proposal to extend the Belfast City boundary has now advanced so far that it is possible to indicate the general outline of the extension. It has been decided by the Corporation to promote a bill in the next session of the Northern Parliament to extend the boundary to include Whiteabbey on the north; Glengormley, and about half a mile beyond it, on the north-west; Dunmurry on the south, and Dundonald on the south-east, and up to the present boundary of Holywood urban district on the east. There is no desire either on the part of the Government or the Belfast Corporation to so extend Belfast's boundary that the city would completely dominate the whole of the Northern area. But the city is rapidly extending outside the present boundary, inside which there is little available building ground. It is to meet this natural growth and to provide city amenities, such as gas, water, electricity and transport, and at the same time control the type of buildings that are being erected that an extension has become necessary. Belfast's population will probably exceed half a million when the boundary is extended.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

A gratifying feature of the report issued by the Northern Ministry of Labour is the steady decrease in unemployment during the past two years. It is estimated that there are over 2,150 more persons in insurable employment than there were a month ago and almost 12,000 more than there were a year ago. There are still over 60,000 persons registered as being without work in Northern Ireland, and this figure, although formidable, is the lowest recorded during the past two years. The steady decrease in unemployment would indicate that the trade improvement is well established and further decreases in unemployment may be recorded. The recent improvement is not confined to shipbuilding, but is spread over the building, distributive, food and drink, and the linen trade groups. The number of registered unemployed in Great Britain is also falling and will soon reach the two million mark. It is falling at a greater rate than in Northern Ireland, and this fact should have an important bearing upon the finances of the Northern area under the reinsurance agreement. When the second reading of the new Unemployment Bill is moved in the Northern Parliament the unemployment position in the North, in comparison with Great Britain, will be fully explored.

RAILWAYS.

The agreement which has been reached between the management of the Great Northern Railway and the Northern Counties Railway (L.M.S.) and their employés should help the railways to recover some of their former prosperity. A period of peace has been secured free from disastrous disputes that would hamper any efforts to secure recovery railway unions realise that it is as much in their interest as that of the railway companies that a sound basis of operation should be reached in order to meet other transport competition. The new agreement entails concessions from both sides The companies will be able to carry on efficiently, and the employés generally are better off than they were before the War, even allowing for altered conditions.

The Northern Government is awaiting the report of Sir Felix Pole before introducing a comprehensive transport bill which it is hoped will co-ordinate all methods of transport, eliminate wasteful competition, ensure to the shareholders of railways and 'bus companies a fair return upon their capital, and at the same time be so framed as not to impose additional burdens upon industry and commerce. Already several Chambers of Commerce have put forward objections to the proposed legislation, but the general public will expect the Government to act fairly to all interests and keep prominently before them the fact that transport must be designed to serve the general interest of the community and the ultimate prosperity of the province.

DESERVING CLASS.

In the multiplicity of facilities provided for workers under the Unemployment Insurance Act, the Health Insurance Act, widows' and orphans' pensions, the needs of a most deserving class in the community—the "black-coated" worker—are inclined to be overlooked. Clerks, draughtsmen, buyers and a host of other workers whose salaries are slightly above £250 per annum are excluded from unemployment and health benefits, and their widows and orphans receive no assistance from the State. Senator T. J. Campbell, K.C., in the Northern Senate this week, drew attention to the plight of "black-coated" workers, and there will be general agreement with his suggestion that they should receive consideration in the forthcoming Unemployment Bill. He instanced the case of ships' officers who are idle in every port, musicians who have been thrown out of employment in large numbers, and the case of many clerks is one of absolute despair. The Northern Government would be doing a great service to this deserving class if they impressed upon the British Government that "black-coated" workers should be brought under the Unemployment and Health Insurance Acts, and be entitled to larger benefits than those now provided, on condition that they pay larger voluntary contributions. It is believed that the Unemployment Acts will never reach stability or finality until the "black-coated" workers are included. They would strengthen rather than hamper the working of the scheme.

EXPORT CREDITS.

Northern manufacturers, especially those in the machinery business, are taking a keen interest in the new exports guarantee scheme of the Imperial Government, which also applies to Northern Ireland. One of the principal features of the scheme is the Export Credits Guarantee Department, which is a comprehensive insurance scheme, by which exporters of goods might cover themselves against losses due to failure of customers overseas. This scheme of the Department of Overseas Trade has enabled British and Northern Ireland firms to secure large engineering orders which otherwise they might have hesitated to accept. The importance of such facilities to hasten trade recovery cannot be over-estimated. The Department also assists exporting firms with a mass of information in regard to foreign markets. It has at its disposal information from all parts of the world, enabling it to watch foreign accounts and to issue warnings of any sign of danger that may appear in a whole market or in an individual importer's affairs. Northern Ireland has full advantage of the whole information not only of this Department, but the entire British Consular Service abroad, and this has proved in the past, as in the present, of inestimable benefit to the engineering, linen, tobacco, rope manufacturing and other Northern industries.

THE FINLAY LECTURE.

The second annual Finlay Lecture will be delivered in University College, Dublin, on Wednesday, 16th May, at 4.30, by Professor Bertil Ohlin, of the High School of Commerce, Stockholm. The lecture will be entitled "The Mechanism of Expansion," and will deal with the capacity of an individualist society to adapt itself to the conditions of progress. Professor Ohlin, who speaks English fluently, is the author of the most important modern work on International Trade, which is regarded by professional economists as an epoch-making contribution to the literature of the subject. The chair will be taken by Dr. George O'Brien.

WAVERLEY NOVEL FOR BLIND.

Scott's "Quentin Durward," which is to be produced in Moon type by the National Institute for the Blind, will be the only Waverley novel available to sightless readers of Moon. "Kenilworth," which was published in Moon many years ago, is now out-of-print.

Reproduction of dialect, whether in Braille or Moon, always presents difficulties to the less experienced reader, and the choice of "Quentin Durward" was made because of its freedom in this respect. The Moon type face is based on a form of letter resembling the Roman capital. It is more easily read than the delicate dotted Braille, and is used largely by the aged blind and those who lose their sight late in life.

SURVEYORS' SALARIES.

HIGH RATE OF MORTALITY.

WORK ON NEW DISTILLERIES.

THE high mortality rate of members of the Association, the strain imposed by responsibility for dealing with the greater part of the total tax revenue of £24,000,000, and the long service required before members of the Association become eligible for their posts, were among the principal points given in evidence by members of the Association of Surveyors of Customs and Excise at yesterday's sitting of the Civil Service Commission at the Department of Agriculture, under the presidency of Mr. J. Brennan (Chairman).

A memorandum supplied to the Commission stated that the candidate was not eligible to apply for a post until he had completed seventeen years approved service, and examinations, the standard of which was as high as the final examinations for the professions, were held at irregular intervals of about three years. The surveyors were given very wide discretion. There were 44 surveyors, who supervised 510 officers, 80 clerical officers, 55 preventive staff and 70 minor grades.

Since 1923 there had been no increase in the number of surveyors, notwithstanding increase of work. Attention was directed to the enormous number of surveyors who had died during that period. The creation of a senior officer grade would have taken from the burden on the surveyor.

Mr. T. Walsh, who, with Mr. E. O'Connor, gave evidence on behalf of the Association, in reply to the Chairman, said that the revenue collected by the surveyors was about £22,000,000 of the total tax revenue.

As regards the proposed new distilleries, he added, there would not be a penny revenue, but the surveyors would have to maintain close control over their operation to prevent diverting of the product for drinking purposes.

The surveyors were grievously overburdened with work at present, and the establishment of a senior officer grade would relieve them to some extent.

Further questioned by the Chairman, Mr. Walsh said seven surveyors had died since 1923 while actually working.

Mr. O'Connor, in evidence, said he believed the mortality was due to the heavy strain on men of middle age. Seven was an abnormal number to die while at work. The age of the men was about 50, and they had died in various districts.

The present salary scale was £500 to £600, but the new authorised scale was only £415 to £500 for those who entered since 1923. Surveyors were underpaid in comparison with managers of banks, insurance companies and others who arrived at their scale of salary at a earlier age. They claimed their salary scale should be £500 to £700.

DIOCESAN GIRLS' SCHOOL.

A most successful display of drill and dancing was given yesterday afternoon by the pupils of the Girls' Diocesan School, Adelaide road, Dublin. The badges and prizes for proficiency were kindly distributed by Miss Berry, M.A.

The manager's prize for best all-round work was won by Patricia Walsh and Madeline Epstein.

After the display the visitors had an opportunity of viewing an interesting show of work done by the pupils of the drawing classes and the domestic economy classes.

At the close of the proceedings Rev. W. Mayne distributed the prizes gained by the pupils of the school at the recent Scripture examinations held by the Society for the Propagation of Christian Knowledge and the Presbyterian Assembly.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK.

THE TRUTH ABOUT RUSSIA.

BOLSHEVISM IS STATE CAPITALISM.

A History of Bolshevism from Marx to the First Five Years' Plan. By Arthur Rosenberg. Translated from the German by Ian F. D. Morrow. Oxford University Press. 12/6 net.

WHAT is Bolshevism? What is Communism? The words are thrown to and fro in controversy by persons who seem never to have sought more accurate knowledge than imagination supplies. We have young men who pose as Communists and form societies with jargon from the Russian news; they shock their elders successfully, but they would find themselves regarded with unveiled contempt if they landed in Russia, that land of unsentimental realism, of hard work and ruthless rule.

On the other hand, we have folk of more grave years who are quite indiscriminate in their denunciations of Bolshevism; who rightly detest its irreligion, but seek to rouse opposition to what is evil in Russia to-day by statements which are unfounded. They affirm that Bolshevism has brought all Russia to starvation. That is not true. When the falsity of the statement is proven, the truth that Russia is spiritually wretched tends to be doubted, too. Thus, loose denunciations actually help the friends of Bolshevism.

Dr. Rosenberg, visiting Fellow in the department of Modern History in the Liverpool University, has written a heavily-documented book on the rise and achievements of Bolshevism which will correct errors on both sides. He begins with Marx, and describes the progress, down to Lenin's day, of that creed of historic materialism on which Socialism is based. The theory of Marx looks forward to complete internationalism, when all our familiar institutions will be removed, and there will be universal equality.

Lenin, the greatest social revolutionary whom the world has seen—so he seems to friend and foe—was Mohammed to the Allah of Marx. He made a religion of Marxism, infected others with his zeal, developed a technique of revolutionary action which was as highly original and efficient as Napoleon's technique of war, and so pulled down an empire. A fervour of pure Communism ran over great Russia, and horrors followed like the horrors that the theorists brought down on France; but the Russian terror was on an immeasurably greater scale than that of 1793. Chaos was threatened; but then, in 1921, Lenin produced his "New Economic Policy," which was nothing other than State capitalism.

THE WORLD REVOLUTION.

Since 1921 Russia has lived under a system which Lenin himself described as "Capitalism under the control and regulation of a proletarian State"; a system which others might call slavery. An effort was made to provoke world-wide revolts, modelled on that of Russia, the result of which would be to destroy the capitalist and aristocratic classes, and to vest the machinery of capitalism in the control of the cloth-capped insurrectionaries. The world revolution did not come to pass. In England, the general strike was a fiasco; in China, a conservative national spirit refused to surrender to drab modernism. Fascism showed a large part of virile Europe moving in the opposite direction from the Bolshevist ideal.

Russia now stood alone. Stalin rose to power, a man worthy of his name, which means Steel. This "spoilt priest," this Georgian, to whom Russian was an acquired tongue, carried on Lenin's new policy with all the greater success because he was not associated, like Lenin, with the former movement for pure Communism. He built up a powerful Russia in despite of the Communists, now a minority in the Bolshevist order; and thus the Socialist ideal was overshadowed.

> In order that Soviet Russia should be truly Socialist there are at least three preliminary conditions that must be fulfilled: Industry must be organised into great industrial associations under the free control of the producers; agriculture must be organised in a similar fashion; and production must be regulated solely by demand and not in accordance with market and trade interests.
> Soviet Russia to-day does not fulfil any one of these three preliminary conditions. Although industry is organised into the modern big industry system, the producers have no part in the management and no voice in the determination of industrial policy.

Trotsky and some "die-hard" Communists opposed Stalin, but were defeated. Russia did not want a return from its relative security to the revolutionary welter. The Five-Year Plan was adopted and was carried to success, on State capitalistic lines.

A MODERNIST CIVILISATION.

What is the outcome? Russia is a land to-day where nobody is hungry, but where nobody is free. It is ruled by calculators and economists; its art is ugly, religion is persecuted where it is not dead. Dr. Rosenberg writes thus:—

> State capitalism is for Russia an excessively modern form of social and economic organisation. Such an organisation of society demands a modernist civilisation . . . . .
> The complete intellectual freedom that is characteristic of a true Socialist society is certainly not to be found in Soviet Russia, where the ruling party dictatorship could not continue to exist without a rigidly dogmatic doctrinal system known as Leninism, which all citizens are compelled to believe in.

Such is the true Bolshevism of to-day, a rigid State capitalism, based on mass production, with a minimum of personal liberty. Communism, save as a name, has disappeared from practical politics. Let us beware—this is the moral which the reviewer finds in Dr. Rosenberg's book—lest, while we denounce the bogey of Bolshevism, we fall into the reality.

WILD LIFE.

The Naturalist on the Prowl. By Frances Pitt. London: "Country Life." 5/- net.

MISS FRANCES PITT, who is already well known to many readers for her attractive writings and photographs of wild life in Great Britain, has written this book chiefly with the object of offering practical advice to the novice who is disposed to join the increasing circle of nature students. She gives judicious advice on the subject of personal equipment in the field and the correct methods of carrying out observations, together with some helpful hints on the camera and how to use it to best advantage in the field. The whole is supplemented with interesting and entertaining accounts of some of Miss Pitt's personal experiences in searching for, watching, and photographing beasts and birds in their native surroundings. The book is beautifully illustrated with a number of her photographs of wild life in Britain, including studies of the red deer, otter, grey seal, grey-lag goose, Slavonian grebe, dotterel, greenshank; and among some of the more familiar birds are some charming studies of the dipper at home.

DACOITY, PILGRIMS AND THE OCCULT.

The Wheels of Ind. By John W. Mitchell. London: Thornton Butterworth. 12/6 net.

AS an official on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, Mr. Mitchell has had full opportunities to observe a huge area of India and its teeming millions. His is a wide, all-embracing study of the land, its inhabitants and wild beasts. He tells graphic tales of dacoities on the vast railway systems, of clever thefts that baffled even the most expert investigators, and of brutal robberies. The dancing girls trail their gem-laden arms from the carriage windows in order to get a little respite from the baking heat: a swish of a sharp weapon, and a member ringed and hung with costly gems and armlets falls tinkling by the way.

His account of the railway systems themselves and of the enormous stretches of country that they traverse, is not the least entertaining portion of the book. He tells of the great coalfields of the Jharia area, and the lives of the toiling multitudes there and in other of the industrial districts of modern India. He has studied the religions of the country, and gives sympathetic descriptions of the pilgrim-laden trains and the immense throngs that journey thousands of miles to pay their pious respects to the shrines and holy places, and to gain some little merit.

Mr. Mitchell is a keen naturalist, and many stories of large and small beasts, including snakes, find their way into the book.

TWO MODERN HISTORIES.

Canada. By A. S. Walker. South Africa. By J. A. I. Agar-Hamilton. Modern States Series. London: Arrowsmith. 3/6 net each.

THE most frequent cause for complaint against history and geography books is that they are out of date. This "Modern States Series" aims at bringing our knowledge up to the moment, and these two books are the third and fourth volumes of their kind. The historical sketches in both books are very well done, and considerable space is devoted to recent events—that is to say, happenings in the present century. Mr. Agar-Hamilton deals with several important aspects of South African life, including the problem of the "poor white" and the native. He also discusses the difficulties which will face the Dominion when its diminishing store of mineral wealth is exhausted. The conflict of the agricultural western provinces and the industrial east of Canada, and its bearing on recent problems in Canadian politics, are surveyed by Professor Walker, who succeeds in giving an admirable précis of the history of the North American unit of the British Commonwealth.

LISZT.

Liszt. By Sacheverell Sitwell. London: Faber and Faber. 15/- net.

LIKE some legendary colossus, the figure of the Abbé Liszt dominates almost the whole of the art world during the major part of the last century. Take him as you will. Romantic lover, showman virtuoso, great pianist, and the friend and honoured associate of such men as Lamennais, Chopin and Wagner, he towers in every milieu, and arrogates to himself a position of the very first rank by the sheer force of his personality. He is a tremendous figure, and the diverse threads of his life are so varied and richly hued that to weave them into a harmonious pattern suitable for a biography is no mean feat. Other things must have been studied beside music. History, literature and the social life of an age that teemed with intellectual giants all have their place in this remarkable man.

Born in Hungary, the son of a steward to the noble family of Esterhazy, Liszt was so naturally an aristocrat that in after life he took his position as a matter of course in the very highest society—a position, incidentally, which he could never have maintained if he had not been a man of widest culture and possessed of rare conversational gifts. The great danger in dealing with Liszt is that his musical life tends to become obscured to some extent by reason of the extreme interest of his social existence; but this major difficulty is well overcome by Mr. Sitwell, who blends the varied ingredients with remarkable skill. He quotes extensively and with wise choice from such delightful writers as Amy Fay, and deals with the artist's connections with other eminent musicians of the period. The fruition period at Weimar, when Liszt laid the solid foundations of that great school of modern pianism, is accorded due prominence, and the author takes the opportunity to discuss the debatable question of the precise position occupied by Liszt as a musician among the great composers, as well as his services to the musicians of his day, who, struggling for recognition, enlisted the help of this most generous partisan of romantic art. Sketches of his great contemporaries are also given.

It is difficult to see how this eminent figure could be better presented, surrounded with all the trappings that made his life remarkable. The book is finely illustrated and well produced.

THE WAR AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS.

Spahlinger contra Tuberculosis, 1903-1934; An International Tribute. Edited by Sir Lynden Macassey, K.C., and Dr. C. W. Saleeby, F.R.S.E. London: Bale, Sons, and Danielsson. 12/6 net.

HENRY SPAHLINGER is one of the prime benefactors of mankind. He renounced a brilliant career as a lawyer for the alleviation of human suffering; he spent his whole private fortune in his efforts to achieve that end, often maintaining his patients, as well as treating them free, and he has withstood, in the cause of his work, a considerable amount of opposition, calumny and misrepresentation. When we add the fact that he has succeeded in immunising cattle from tuberculosis, and has treated successfully many human cases of the disease, some incurable by other methods, we begin to see the real stature of the man.

The charm of his methods lies in their simplicity. The tubercle bacillus leads the simple life in captivity, and produces none of those toxic substances which flow from it when in animals. Spahlinger provoked the bacilli to the production of these substances, and from them his sera are made. As to their efficacy, the result of the first official test will suffice. In 1932 the Ministry of Agriculture in Northern Ireland vaccinated eleven calves with Spahlinger's vaccine; they, with ten unvaccinated calves, were given a powerful dose of the disease. The vaccinated calves all survived, and were alive and healthy eighteen months afterwards. All but two of the unvaccinated calves died in about a month, the two exceptions being animals which had a high natural resistance to the disease. Financial considerations are the main reason why the campaign against human tuberculosis is not being prosecuted to the same success.

This volume, which is intended as a tribute to Spahlinger by a group of his important supporters, tells the story of his work clearly, concisely and without any unnecessary sentiment; the guiding principle of the contributors seems to have been to let the facts speak for themselves. That they succeed in this ambition will be the opinion of all who read it; and it is to be hoped that farmers and medical men who have not already done so will make themselves acquainted with the work of this remarkable man, whose story is so reminiscent of his great predecessor Pasteur.

ULSTER'S FIGHT FOR THE UNION.

THE CURRAGH MUTINY.

Ulster Was Right? By Henry Maxwell. London: Hutchinson. [illegible] net.

THE author of this history of the resistance put up by Ulster Unionism against Home Rule from 1900 until the Parliament of Northern Ireland was firmly established is a son of W. B. Maxwell, the novelist. In these pages he is by no means a purveyor of fiction, and, if allowance be made for a bias which sometimes cripples his judgment and for certain historical errors which he might easily have avoided, he can be credited with a readable and, on the whole, trustworthy account of one of the most determined and successful political-military movements conducted by a minority in modern times.

Mr. Maxwell's standpoint is defined candidly at the outset. His purpose "is to interest the rising generation in the problem which assuredly they will one day be called upon to face. . . . No one can read the story of Ulster's stand for the union . . . . without seeing at least two things. One is that the enemies of Great Britain strike at her through Ireland. The other is that such enemies may count implicitly upon the full co-operation of the Roman Catholic Church both in Ireland and abroad." Considering—as, of course, most of her own people do—Northern Ireland "as an outpost of Great Britain," Mr. Maxwell holds that "her footing in Ireland, beneath the hated flag of England, and under the odious banner of Protestantism, is not secure enough for her to bask in a fool's paradise. Secret societies, old sectarian prejudices, industrial unrests, the gods of Marxism and the gold of Moscow, are all useful levers in the hands of those who would gladly undermine the infant State."

AUTHORITIES.

In fairness to him it must be said that in the greater part of his story the author is more objective than these quotations would imply. Where his judgment appears most at fault is in his over-dependence upon, and his use of, his main, but second-hand, authorities — Professor Alison Phillips, Sir James O'Connor, and Mr Denis Gwynn's "John Redmond" He is on rather better ground with Lord Cushendun's "Ulster's Stand for the Union," and the material which he has got from Sir A. Wilson Hungerford, M.P., Secretary of the Ulster Unionist Councils. The most original, and, to the historian's view, the most important, section of his narrative is his fresh treatment of the attitude of the officers in the so-called "Curragh Mutiny." For this he has made excellent use of what he truthfully describes as Sir Hubert Gough's "illuminating personal records," with the notes made by other officers and comprised in the Gough papers. From these he concludes that "it is evident that at the interview with General Paget the officers were told that the proposed operations [against the Ulster Volunteers] were likely to lead to bloodshed in Ulster, and that, with this eventuality in view, the War Office had sanctioned the 'disappearance' during the operations of those officers actually domiciled in Ulster." From this, and from other evidence adduced here, the action of the Curragh officers is explainable. Mr. Maxwell, on the other hand, ought to know that Mr. Justice O'Brien's testimony, even from the judicial bench, upon the Catholic clergy, or Mr. Tim Healy's upon the Irish Parliamentary Party and Mr. John Dillon, or Mr. Denis Gwynn's upon President de Valera, is not the most trustworthy available. He gets much nearer the truth when he declares that the Ulster Unionists had "two major assets" of exceptional value—their unanimity and their leader.

SOME CORRIGENDA.

Among errors of fact which Mr. Maxwell could easily rectify may be mentioned the following: that "Sinn Fein" is translated by "Ourselves Alone"; that that particular organisation was an "underground" body in the period 1906-10; that the one-day general strike against conscription was "under the auspices of the Transport Workers' Union" (instead of the Irish Labour Party and Trade Union Congress, of which, indeed, the union mentioned was the main element); that Professor Eoin MacNeill's name is Seán MacNeill; that "Mr. Pierce Beazley [was] a member of the Council of the Irish Republican Brotherhood" in 1916; that all the men rounded up in 1916 "were subsequently examined by courtsmartial"; that the National Volunteers preceded the Irish Volunteers, instead of contrariwise; and that, after the National Volunteers became a separate organisation, "the Sinn Fein leaders thereupon seceded and set up a new force which they called the Irish Volunteers." It is reliance upon Mr. Denis Gwynn that makes him state that Professor MacNeill and President de Valera owed their lives to Mr. Redmond's intervention; it is from Professor Alison Phillips again that he gets the news that the Protestant North was "once the stronghold of Radicalism"; but it is his own rashly expressed opinion that "Roman Catholicism and Patriotism are at variance."

Despite its faults, this book really does explain Ulster Unionism, and it is a vigorous counterblast to much of what passes as nationalist history.

RECENT FICTION.

Mongrel. By Spencer Watts. Elkin Mathews. 7/6 net.

The Sancroft Sisters. By Beatrice Curtis Brown. Gollancz. 7/6 net.

PETER SEYMOUR, the "mongrel" of Mr. Watts's novel, realised very early in life that in the eyes of a large number of people half-foreign birth was synonymous with oddity, and that there was something slightly derogatory in having had a German mother. For the first seven or eight years of his orphaned life he lived in Germany and longed to live in England; then an English aunt sent for him, and he was brought up on orthodox English lines. Mr. Watts does not harp excessively on this theme, but it is the pivot of his plot, and the key to Peter's character in after life. It affects his career at school, in business, as a war-time soldier, as a lover and as a husband; and it is the root cause of most of his inner conflicts and struggles. Peter is such a delightful and charming person that readers will follow with interest the psychological intricacies of his character as if they had, in fact, known him since he was a child.

"The Sancroft Sisters" is a study of young women between the early twenties and the mid-thirties. Miss Brown has been at pains to show us girls maturing into women; but, although she contrives to make the "growing" seem real, she will surprise most readers by her omissions. It seems incredible to expect any group of young women in the early thirties to seem representative when they are unencumbered by husbands, houses and children. However emancipated women have become, it is difficult to find many over thirty who have not yet experienced wifehood and motherhood, and, although one of the Sancroft sisters is married, she is extraordinarily unmarried in her ways. It is not that all Miss Brown's young women are "bachelor girls," but that they seem so unaware of the everyday problems and interests of the vast majority of their married contemporaries. Their conversations, their love affairs, their jobs are all enthralling up to a point, but readers will feel inclined at times to remind these young women that they are no longer young girls.

Single Combat. By Agnes Mure Mackenzie. Constable. 7/6 net.

Homeward Journey. By John Macnair Reid. The Porpoise Press. 7/6 net.

"SINGLE COMBAT" is a romance which starts in revolutionary Paris of the 1840's, and is based on the friendship and antagonism which have existed between the French and the Scots for hundreds of years. It is the story of a Scotch girl, who loses her post as governess in a Paris family on account of the son's indiscreet love-making. Her subsequent poverty and her rescue by a kinswoman, Madame de Séranne, form the prelude to a very stirring and dramatic love story. Part of the story is laid in Paris and part in the remote Highlands of Scotland, and the love theme is a triangular one.

The story of "Homeward Journey" turns upon a "mother fixation," but we are not irritated by glib phrases or semi- and pseudo-scientific tabloid psychology. We are just made to realise through the story what David's dead mother stood for in his life, and to see in this relationship an explanation of his tactical methods with Jessie Adair, the little shop girl, with her sordid background and impossible ambitions. Mr. Reid is a Scotsman writing of Glasgow, but he does not betray the usual tendency of Scottish novelists to exploit the harsh and crude aspect of that industrial capital. The natural atmosphere of the city is admirably presented, with the normal everyday life of its youth. Mr. Reid has a keen sense of humour and a genuine gift for making us see both sides of a scene, whether it is a boyish adventure into night life or a domestic setting.

The Portcullis Room. By Valentine Williams. Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.

There is a Buchanesque flavour about the style of Mr. Valentine Williams's more recent work which makes it extremely attractive. The mise en scène of "The Portcullis Room" is on a Scottish island, where an impoverished laird maintains the traditions of an aristocracy that perished at Culloden. Hither come a young American millionaire, with a fidus Achates who proves to be an ingenious amateur detective; a Society beauty who grumbles because she cannot buy her favourite brand of face powder on a Hebridean island, a dissolute French nobleman, and a German Jew, accompanied by a pair of Chicago gunmen. The dramatis personæ is completed by a lovely Highland girl, a taciturn sea captain, and an old family retainer. There is a murder, recalling the age-old traditions of the House of Toray and everybody falls suspect in turn. Apart from the actual story, the book is notable for some fine descriptions of Highland scenery.

ORDER IN NATURE.

The Great Design. Edited by Frances Mason. London: Duckworth. 8/6 net.

THE purpose of this book is to put before the lay reader—and in so wide a field we are all laymen—an outline of every department of science, in order to exhibit the presence of order in nature. Since science is generally regarded as the domain of law and order, it seems at first as if this is begging the question; but one must remember that it is the business of science to see order where to the casual observer only chaos exists. The position is neatly expressed in Professor Macbride's essay on "The Oneness and Uniqueness of Life." Every contributor finds order everywhere in his special branch, but the intelligence which is inferred from the order is not so easy to find: there are serious philosophical issues here. In this connection, Professor Hans Driesch's account of the downfall of Materialism is especially valuable. Most people will probably value this book as evidence of order and design everywhere, and as showing that modern science, in exposing this order, instead of undermining religion, has laid a firm foundation for it.

Britain's War Debt.

There is reason to believe that Great Britain will be regarded as a defaulter by the United States of America if she makes only a "token payment" on next June's instalment of her War debt. No official statement has been issued on either side of the Atlantic, but it is understood that the news has been broken to Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador in Washington, for transmission to his Government. America's attitude is difficult to understand. Until quite recently she was, to all appearances, content with the system of token payments, and, though angry cries arose from the less enlightened members of Congress, the general feeling was that Britain had done everything in her power to avoid repudiation. She has made three token payments within eighteen months. They have been accepted readily by the Governments of M. Hoover and of Mr. Roosevelt, which were at pains to distinguish Britain's honourable recognition of her indebtedness from the frank repudiation of France and certain other nations. The plea of those nations was, unashamedly: "We cannot pay; therefore, we will not pay: do what you like about it." Britain, on the contrary, made several efforts to have the whole question of War debts reviewed, with the idea that they should be scaled down to a more practicable level. Yet, even when one series of negotiations had collapsed, and there was no immediate prospect that her request would be satisfied, she refused to imperil the reputation of British finance by a default. "We cannot pay," said her Government, "but we admit our debt; and, in evidence thereof, we shall pay you a percentage of it until you can see fit to discuss the matter in general."

It might be supposed that the United States, having accepted two token payments without any formal complaint, had condoned the expedient. The problem of War debts, however, and particularly of Great Britain's War debt, has been brought to the fore within the last couple of months by two occurrences—Congress's passing of the Johnson Act and the British Budget. The Johnson Act prescribed that no loans should be made to any foreign nation which was in default on its obligations to the United States. This embargo is not, at the moment, of great account to any European country, but its immediate effect was to bring into the limelight the question: Who are defaulters and who are not? Clearly, France and certain other nations were defaulters; but what of Britain? President Roosevelt himself was inclined to hold that she had adopted an honourable attitude, and could not be ranked as a defaulter. In all probability he would have brought Congress to his way of thinking; but, just while the matter hung in the balance, Mr. Neville Chamberlain produced his Budget, which showed a very satisfactory surplus, and gave not inconsiderable relief to the British taxpayer. At once the American ireconcilables seized their opportunity. They clamoured to know how a country which was not wealthy enough to pay its War debt instalments should be at the same time wealthy enough to show a comfortable Budget surplus; and it seems that they have driven President Roosevelt and the more clear-headed politicians into a corner. At all events, they seem to have contrived to rank Britain as a defaulter.

The news will be a heavy blow to Britain, who takes a legitimate pride in her financial integrity. In the American view she is no better than France and all the other countries which have repudiated their War debt without a blush; her consistent effort to maintain the principle of her indebtedness goes for nothing. The argument from the British Budget is lamentably unsound. As Sir John Simon points out, the fact that Mr. Neville Chamberlain has been able to take 6d. off the income tax really has no bearing on the subject of the War debt; for the British taxpayer, even with that reduction, still must bear more than twice as heavy a burden of taxation as his American counterpart. In all probability the United States will repent her action. Hitherto the average citizen of Great Britain has been friendly to the United States, regarding her as sharing the common heritage of the English-speaking peoples. Henceforward his friendship will be tainted with bitterness, and the result will be manifest when—if ever—normal trading relations are resumed between the two nations. One thing is certain—that the passage of the Johnson Act has given a severe set-back to all hopes of American commercial progress on the Continent of Europe. When the bill was passed several continental countries bestirred themselves to find out whether they could not make the amende honorable for their default on the War debts by means of a token payment. America's treatment of Britain now shows them that their hopes are vain; that all are equally dishonourable in American eyes, and that all are equally obnoxious. The result of the whole business promises to harm the United States more severely than any of her debtors.

Speed and Safety.

Those who have to deal with motoring problems never have been quite agreed as to the merits or demerits of a speed limit. Dangerous driving must be held in check by some means, but it is another question whether the ends of safety are well served by fixing a certain rate of speed beyond which a motor car must not go. The Standing Committee of the House of Commons, which is considering the new British Road Traffic Bill, has accepted the principle, but probably the later stages of the measure will provide a good deal of controversy. Apparently, the Committee itself was not very certain of its ground. It seeks to impose a speed limit of thirty miles an hour in built-up areas, but it accepted an amendment which provides that this may be reconsidered by Parliament at the end of five years. Opponents of the speed-limit clause pointed out that a motorist, if compelled to drive slowly in towns, might make up for lost time by driving dangerously fast outside them, and that the real cause of urban accidents was not speed, but congestion. To the latter argument the supporters replied that, in the City of London, the most congested area in the world, there was only one fatal street accident in the first six months of last year. Governments are no more in agreement on this question than are individuals—some have abolished the speed-limit, and some have not. The Free State and Northern Ireland are among the countries which have decided to do without it. We cannot judge yet if the abolition will prove a success here; but in the six counties there has been no limit for private cars for some years past, and the authorities seem to be quite satisfied with the result. The principle, indeed, is easy to attack. Slow driving, it can be pointed out, is not necessarily safe driving, and the experienced motorist can be less of a menace to life at fifty miles an hour than the tyro sometimes is at twelve. A more serious argument against the speed-limit is that it is almost impossible to enforce; for not one driver in a thousand ever thinks to observe it unless he suspects the presence of a "police trap." In an ideal community, there would be no need for such a check, and the authorities would recognise that the speed may depend on the circumstances. Unfortunately, the ideal community does not exist. Experience has shown that hundreds of those who qualify for a driver's licence will dash along the roads with a reckless disregard for everybody else, and there seems to be no means by which to prevent them except to fix a limit which nobody may exceed.

Menzhinsky.

Vyacheslav Rodolfovitch Menzhinsky, whose death is reported from Moscow at the age of fifty-nine, was one of the most remarkable and most baffling personalities in the Bolshevist revolution. Unlike most of his political associates, with the exception of Lenin himself, Menzhinsky was an aristocrat—a member of an old and highly-respected Polish family. He happened to be in London thirty odd years ago when Lenin broke away from the revolutionary party, and threw in his lot with the Bolshevist leader. After the October revolution in 1917 Menzhinsky was entrusted with important work in the intelligence service. He showed peculiar aptitude for this kind of work, and when the notorious Dzerzhinsky—who also was a Pole—died in 1926, Menzhinsky was appointed as his successor in charge of the O.G.P.U. He figured prominently in the case against the British engineers last year. While it was in progress he gave an order for the execution of thirty-five well-known Russians without trial of any kind, and generally he showed himself to be a man of the most ruthless character, who would stop at nothing in pursuit of his aims. Yet Menzhinsky was a curious contradiction. His private tastes were of a literary and artistic kind. Not only was he an expert philologist, having made himself a master of twelve foreign languages, but he also was a poet of some distinction, a magnificent pianist, and a mathematician of the first rank. It seems that there was something warped about Menzhinsky's mind. From his childhood he had been a semi-invalid, and his physical infirmity reflected itself in his mental outlook. He was at once the most highly-educated and the most unscrupulous of the Bolshevist leaders. He could sign half-a-dozen death warrants and then sit down at his piano and play Chopin for an hour, or compose a love sonnet in the intervals of experiments in the "Third Degree." Revolutions often throw up types of this kind; but there can have been few in the long history of political upheavals who were as cruel and as bloodthirsty as Vyacheslav Menzhinsky.

Soldiers and Sailors.

While those who served in the Great War have large claims on our support, we should not forget that the survivors of earlier battles have large claims also. The annual meeting of the Irish Branch of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society, which we reported yesterday, is a reminder of our obligations to those men. Founded thirty-four years ago, it is the oldest ex-Service men's charity in Ireland, and, as the Secretary stated, "carries on its work on behalf of the aged soldiers and sailors who have served in almost forgotten wars." Lack of funds prevents the Society from lending its aid to the ex-soldiers of the Great War, and it deals only with men who served either in the South African War, or in the period between it and 1914. Nobody else, except the Red Cross Society, is able to do anything for these men, and the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society, therefore, fulfils a very useful purpose. With the passage of years the number of cases inevitably becomes fewer, but those who are left alive become older and require more help than before. These the Society helps by providing for their rent (still one of the main causes of anxiety among the poor), and by finding work for those who are able to work. Its activities can be judged by the fact that last year it dealt with a total of 4,137 cases, issued 20,400 free meal tickets to 926 men, and obtained employment for 303 men. We are glad to see that the public continues to support the Society; for without subscriptions it would be unable to carry on its work. The administrative expenses are partly covered by a grant from the London headquarters, but the Society must rely on its own efforts to provide for relief expenditure, which is very heavy.

The meeting in the Synod Hall will be preceded by the celebration of Holy Communion in Christ Church Cathedral at 10.30 o'clock.

Members of the Chapters of Christ Church Cathedral and St. Patrick's will robe in the Chapter Room at 10.15, and will proceed to the west end of the Cathedral, where they will meet the Primate and the Bishops, who will have robed in the Bishops' Room at the Synod Hall. This Service is open not only to members (clerical and lay) of the General Synod, but to any Church people who may wish to attend.

SERVICE AT ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL.

The Service for the opening of the General Synod will be held in St. Patrick's Cathedral on Monday next, at 8 p.m.

The sermon will be preached by the Bishop of Cashel. The bishops will robe in the North Choir Aisle and the members of St. Patrick's and Christ Church Cathedral Chapters in the Lady Chapel.

The Dean invites the clergy to robe with the members of the two Cathedral Chapters and to join in the procession. Those accepting the Dean's invitation should be in the Lady Chapel not later than 7.50 p.m. Seats will be reserved for the robed clergy.

LONDON LETTER.

THE WAR DEBTS QUESTION.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The news from Washington regarding the intentions of the United States Government on war debts has not disturbed the Government here, and though it is agreed that a new situation has developed it is intended to wait and see what may happen. At the moment there is no intention of giving anything more than a token payment in June. A year ago Mr. Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons that Great Britain had paid the United States £355,200,000 for war debts, which was £162,800,000 more than had been received in repartions and war-debt payments from the Allies. Now that there are no more payments from the Allies it is impossible to resume payment on the former scale. It is thought, therefore, that President Roosevelt is considering some form of settlement which may be acceptable to this country and other debtors of the United States. When information of a more definite character has been received from Sir Ronald Lindsay (the British Ambassador in Washington), the matter will be considered by the Cabinet.

Mr. Macdonald and Geneva.

It has been rumoured during the past few days that Mr. Ramsay Macdonald was going to Geneva for the general Commission meeting of the Disarmament Conference on May 29th, but in view of recent developments it is concluded that, if he had entertained any such idea, it has been abandoned. The British Convention is now regarded as dead, and unless the British Government is prepared to replace it with something new there seems no reason why the presence of Sir John Simon and Mr. Anthony Eden should be supplemented by that of the Prime Minister. Hopes are still entertained that a way out of the present difficulties may be found, but no very grave importance is now attached to any breakdown. It is felt, however, that preparations for re-armament will have to be commenced without delay.

Mr. Eden's Mission.

The Lord Privy Seal, Mr. Anthony Eden, who had arranged to leave London on Sunday for the meeting of the League of Nations Council at Geneva, has changed his plans. He will leave to-morrow, and travel via Paris to Geneva with M. Barthou, the French Foreign Minister. It is possible that the unofficial conversations will be of greater importance than the subjects to be officially discussed at the Council meetings, and disarmament may play a larger part than appeared probable a few days ago. Sir John Simon will follow the Lord Privy Seal at Whitsuntide unless circumstances call for his earlier attendance at Geneva.

The Ogpu.

The death of Tyacheslav Menjinsky, the head of the Soviet Ogpu, recalls the fact that he was a Pole, like his predecessor, Djerzinsky. Probably he will be succeeded by another Pole, Yagoda, the Vice-President of the Ogpu. It will come as a surprise to many people to learn that there has never been a Russian at the Ogpu, and that since the death of Lenin no Russian of pure stock has occupied a leading position in the Moscow Administration. Yagoda has a reputation for severity equal to that of Menjinsky. The construction of the White Sea Canal, for which he was responsible, was carried out by gangs of political prisoners, who had to dig the canal under terrible conditions of life.

Liberals and the Land Tax.

Liberals opposed to the Government are organising strong opposition to the proposal that the land tax brought in by Viscount Snowden in 1931 shall be repealed. In a protest against the proposal the Liberals point out that the action now being taken is a recognition that the present Administration is no longer to be regarded as a national, but as a Conservative, Government. At the same time the Labour opposition in the House of Commons intends to move the rejection of the proposal on the second reading of the Finance Bill, and to propose a motion to this effect on the second reading next Wednesday.

Imports of Meat.

It is expected that the Government will listen to the urgent appeals of the beef producers, and will impose some drastic cuts on imports of meat from the Dominions and Argentina. Supplies of home-killed meat are usually scarce at this time of year; but, nevertheless, prices are falling, and the possibility of increasing them is out of the question at present. The Ottawa agreement, however, will expire in June, and the home producer is hoping that the Government may see its way to revising the existing export quota for chilled and frozen beef imported from the Dominions and South America, and will attempt by a restriction of supplies to improve the price for home-produced meat. Several members of Parliament representing agricultural constituencies have drawn up a scheme for the setting up of a Meat Commission, something on the lines of the Wheat Commission, and a bill has been drafted for submission to Parliament. It is proposed that there should be a levy of a penny per pound on imported meat, excluding pork, and it is estimated that this would produce a yield of between £6,000,000 and £7,000,000. This fund would be available for sellers of live-stock in this country, who would receive deficiency payments to bring their remuneration up to 48s. per hundredweight for prime beef and 55s. per hundredweight for mutton.

Empire Council Suggested.

Mr. J. H. Thomas is to be asked in the House of Commons next week whether, as the time is approaching for a reconsideration of the Ottawa agreements, he will find out from the Dominions if they would be agreeable to the setting up of a permanent Empire Council for the purpose of recommending means of developing the economic resources of the Empire as a whole.

"Man of Aran."

Two thousand young people are to be taken to see the Irish film, "Man of Aran," at the New Gallery to-morrow. Mr. Robert Flaherty, its author, may, perhaps, make a film in this country on somewhat similar lines, expressing some condition of British life. His success in such films has been so remarkable that his progress would be watched with the keenest interest. It is generally agreed in film circles that "Man of Aran" is one of the finest nature films yet seen.

LOCAL ELECTIONS.

CANDIDATES SELECTED IN COUNTY DUBLIN.

Twenty delegates representing United Ireland branches of Lucan, Blanchardstown, Clondalkin, Newcastle and Rathcoole and Palmerston attended a meeting of No. 2 District Executive, held in the Barn Café, Lucan, Mr. J. J. Reddy, Chairman, presiding. Messrs. R. J. Blake and J. Dowling, outgoing Councillors, also attended.

It was decided to put forward four candidates to contest No. 2 Area at the local elections as follows:—Mr. R. J. Blake, Cruck House, Lucan; Mr. P. Mangan, Castlewarden, Newcastle; Mr. J. Dowling, Newlands, Clondalkin; Mr. P. J. Nugent, Moyle Park, Clondalkin.

TO-DAY'S ENGAGEMENTS.
(See Page 10.)

MR. DE VALERA AND THE FARMERS.

REPLY TO MANSION HOUSE RESOLUTIONS.

THE CLAIM REGARDING ANNUITIES AND RATES.

NO TRIBUNAL OF INQUIRY NEEDED.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA has replied to the resolution passed at a meeting in Dublin, on May 2nd, of 600 farmers from all parts of the Free State. They met to consider the position of the agricultural community, and passed a number of resolutions, copies of which were afterwards sent by Mr. Patrick Belton, T.D., to Mr. de Valera, General O'Duffy and Cardinal MacRory.

One of the resolutions declared that the farmers considered that they had discharged their obligations to the full for land annuities and rates on agricultural land from the British special duties, and that, in the circumstances, the Government should finance local authorities to the amount that the product of these special duties exceeded the farmers' liability.

They asked Mr. de Valera to act on this view of the position, or to set up a competent tribunal to investigate the claim which they made, or to meet representatives of the Convention in conference.

They also suggested that meanwhile all proceedings or decrees for alleged arrears of rates and annuities should be stayed.

Mr. de Valera, in the course of his reply, states that there is no point in the request that the Government should finance the local authorities in the manner suggested by the Convention, and states the reasons for this view. He adds that, as the Government is being kept fully informed of the facts of the agricultural situation, it is not felt that a tribunal of inquiry is necessary.

The statement in Mr. Belton's letter of 10th ultimo, concerning the depreciation in the value of dropped calves, Mr. de Valera describes as "a fantastic exaggeration" in the circumstance.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA'S REPLY.

A Chara,—I am directed by the President to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant forwarding copies of three resolutions adopted at a meeting held in the Mansion House, Dublin, on the 2nd instant. He has considered these resolutions in conjunction with your letter of the 10th ultimo, already acknowledged.

With reference to resolution No. 1, the President notes the statement therein, that the sum of £4,552,000, the proceeds of the British special duties on Saorstat products for the year 1933-34, exceeds "the farmers' total liability both for annuities and rates." In this connection, he desires me to inform you that, prior to the reduction of 50 per cent. in land purchase annuities—which was made possible by the retention of moneys formerly paid to Great Britain—the total amount of farmers' annuities and rates was much greater than the drafters of the resolution appear to realise. In 1931-32, for example, the annuities amounted to about £4,000,000 and rates on agricultural land and buildings to about £1,750,000—a total of £5,750,000. It is evident, therefore, that there is no point in the request of the meeting, that the Government should "finance the local authorities to the amount that the product of the special duties exceeds the farmers' liability."

The President directs me to say that the Government does not propose, as requested in Resolution No. 2, to set up a tribunal to investigate the claim made by the meeting, that the farmers' obligations in respect of annuities and rates have been fully discharged through the British special duties. The obligation to pay annuities on land purchased under the Land Acts is an obligation to the Saorstat Government; the obligation to pay local rates is an obligation to the local authorities. No tribunal is needed to discover, that these obligations cannot be discharged by payment of duties levied by an outside Government. The President asks me to say further, that the Government is being kept fully informed of the facts of the agricultural situation by existing agencies, and it is not felt that any useful purpose would be served by the establishment of a tribunal of inquiry.

The President notes with satisfaction the declaration of the farmers present at the meeting, that they are prepared to meet all their obligations to the best of their ability, and that they deprecate any attempt by individuals or groups to evade their obligations. He hopes that this declaration will be taken to heart by the people in certain areas in the Saorstat who have been engaged in organising opposition to the enforcement of payment of local rates. He observes, however, that the declaration is accompanied by an assertion that farmers must not be called on to meet their obligations twice, and desires me to point out that they are not being called on to do anything of the kind. Even if the yield of the British special duties could be regarded as in any sense meeting the obligations of Saorstat farmers to the Saorstat Government and local authorities, the reliefs afforded by the Government should be taken into account as an offset. Several of these relief items were adverted to in my letter of the 4th ultimo, and it is only necessary to say here that the 50 per cent. reduction in land purchase annuities, the bounties on agricultural exports and the benefits of the scheme for the stabilisation of butter prices, taken together, exceed substantially the yield of the British duties.

With regard to the statement in your letter of the 10th ultimo that, since the present Government came into office, "the value of the dropped calf has fallen £2 to £3 per head," the President directs me to say that, outside a few restricted areas, the entire value of a dropped calf in 1931 or 1932 did not reach £2 on the average. In the circumstances he feels that your estimate of the fall in value may fairly be described as a fantastic exaggeration. He is equally unable to accept your assertion that the "loss on cow replacements has risen £2 to £3 per head of the whole dairy stock." With reference to your further statement that "the high price of butter here has turned thousands of working-class families to the use of margarine," he asks me to inform you that this is not borne out by the available statistics.

I am directed by the President to add, with reference to the third resolution of the Mansion House meeting, that the allocation of licences for the export of farm produce, where such licences are necessary, is a matter for the Department of Agriculture. He is having the resolution sent to that department.

DISTURBANCE AT BRAY.

BLUE SHIRTS ATTACKED BY CROWD.

Attempts were made to strip blue shirts and blue blouses from the backs of United Ireland Party supporters during a disturbance which followed a meeting, addressed by The O'Mahony, T.D., and Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, T.D., in the Town Hall, Bray, last night.

The meeting had been well attended, and as the people left the hall they were met with a shower of stones and eggs thrown from a crowd, more than five hundred strong, which had gathered in the street. Two or three members of a large force of Civic Guards on duty were struck by the flying stones.

Hand-to-hand fighting took place for several minutes between the attackers, the Blue Shirts and the Civic Guards, during the course of which two men were taken by the police to the local barrack.

As the disturbance subsided a party of about twenty Blue Shirts—men and women—marched away from the hall, but before they had gone a hundred yards more stones were thrown and further fighting took place, but nobody was seriously injured, although many of the participants sustained bruises and minor cuts.

The remaining candidates are postponed.

The remaining candidates are postponed.

SCENES AT BLUE SHIRT DANCE.

At Limerick yesterday John Cremins, Customhouse place, and James Nash, O'Donovan's lane, were each fined 40s. for riot and assault. The charges arose out of stone-throwing and other disturbances when a Blue Shirt dance was held in Limerick last Saturday.

BITTERNESS AND WANT OF CHARITY DEPLORED

DR. HARTY'S WARNING AGAINST COMMUNISM.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CASHEL, Friday.

Addressing the congregation in New Inn Parish Church, the Most Rev. Dr. Harty, Archbishop of Cashel, said that during this jubilee year the people were asked to pray for the blessing of peace and harmony and charity all over the world, especially in their own dear native land, where of late there had been so much bitterness and want of charity. Attempted murder, and even murder, had taken place.

"We all have a right to our own opinions regarding political matters," he said. "We have a right to our opinions, and in the exercise of that right no one should interfere with us. No person has a right to use violence or any unChristian methods, or in any way to interfere with our opinions."

In conclusion, Dr. Harty warned the people, especially the young men of the parish, against the dangers of the insidious Anti-God campaign, which had done so much damage to religion in other countires by striving to drive Almighty God out of the homes and the hearts and minds of men.

CLONMEL, Friday.

"It is sad to have to admit that hardly at any time in the history of the country has there been so much bitterness and ill-feeling," said the Most Rev. Dr. Kinnane, Bishop of Waterford, on the occasion of his episcopal visitation to Cahir Parish. "It began in the public life of the country," he said, "and now it seems to have spread into the homes and private life of the people."

Continuing, he said that a man had a right to give allegiance to any political group, provided that the principles and practices of that group were in harmony with the laws of God and the Church.

THE SLAUGHTER OF PIGS.

MARKETING BOARD'S WARNING.

The Pigs Marketing Board (Northern Ireland) states that it will not take steps to clear dead pigs from the market. The Board has repeatedly warned producers not to kill pigs until they have found an outlet for them. Farmers should not, therefore, they say, under any circumstances kill pigs unless they have made definite arrangements with curers to take them at the standard price.

The Board is proceeding as fast as possible with the organisation of its scheme for the purchase of surplus live pigs, and hopes soon to be in a position to bring at least part of this scheme into operation.

SEIZED CATTLE SOLD.

SIX MILCH COWS FOR £6 10s.

ENNISCORTHY SCENES.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ENNISCORTHY, Friday.

SIX milch cows, the property of Mr. William Humphries, Greenmount, Enniscorthy, which were seized by the Sheriff's bailiffs on Tuesday for unpaid land annuities, were sold to-day in Enniscorthy.

The auction took place in the pound, and it was carried out by Mr. J. H. Dale, assistant to the County Registrar.

About 200 farmers were assembled on the public road beside the pound, and about thirty Civic Guards, under Superintendent Carbery, Enniscorthy, were in attendance.

The cattle were put up singly and were knocked down to an unknown man. They realised £6 10s. in all, which was paid in cash.

There was a shout of: "Who is the buyer; we want his name?" There was no reply. The buyer, who was accompanied by two other men, entered a waiting motor car and drove away.

Civic Guards later accompanied the cattle to the railway station, where they were loaded and consigned to Dundalk.

The crowd was addressed by Mr. T. B. Coburn, of the Farmers' Defence Association, Blackwater, and by Mr. H. Warren, Enniscorthy. Both speakers advised the crowd to avoid anything that would bring them into conflict with the Guards, and to organise themselves in the Farmers' Defence Association.

Twelve cattle, seized by Mr. J. McCarthy, Waterford County Council, rate collector, on the lands of Thomas Whittle, Ballinavilla, Tramore, in respect of arrears have been lodged in the Waterford pound. The animals are stated to belong to several owners.

S. RHODESIAN REQUEST.

WANTS FULL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

PREMIER TO VISIT LONDON.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

SALISBURY (S. RHODESIA), Friday.

A RESOLUTION requesting full responsible government was passed by the Parliament of Southern Rhodesia today.

The Premier, Mr. Huggins, told the House that leaders of the three parties had reached a sufficient degree of understanding on the matter of reservations to strengthen his hands for his visit to England, but they disagreed in regard to native reservations.

The Reform and Rhodesian Parties, he said, were agreed that until the Colony had a Second Chamber they could not expect control over native affairs. The Labour Party, however, maintained that the time had arrived for the complete removal of reservations in regard to native affairs.

The text of the resolution is as follows:—

"In the opinion of the House, the time has arrived when the Colony of Southern Rhodesia is well fitted to enjoy the benefits, rights and privileges of full responsible government. With this end in view the House requests the Government, first, to take into consideration the introduction of legislation to amend the relative provisions of the Southern Rhodesian Constitution Letters Patent of 1923; secondly, the House asks the Imperial Government to amend the Letters Patent constituting the office of Governor, instructions passed under Royal Sign Manual and Signet to the Governor, as amended from time to time, and the Statute of Westminster, 1931."

[Note.—It is learned in London that Mr. Huggins has already indicated his intention of coming to London in connection with the request for full responsible government. Southern Rhodesia at present enjoys responsible government under Letters Patent granted on October 1st, 1923. It has a Legislature consisting of a Legislative Council and an elected Legislative Assembly of thirty members. There are, however, reservations as to the alteration of the Constitution and legislation in relation to native affairs and certain other matters].

SCENES AT LEITRIM MEETING.

MEMBER WALKS OUT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON, Friday.

The introduction of what was alleged to have been politics led to scenes at Leitrim Agricultural Committee meeting to-day, when the committee met to consider means of distributing equitably among poor farmers in the county a sum of £1,000 given by the Free State Minister for Agriculture, following his recent visit, to provide artificial manures for their potato crops.

Mr. M. Carter presided.

Mr. Gildea said that there were two noted fairs in Mohill. He had attended the 8th of May fair, and he met one man who had a certain number of cattle.

Here several members objected to cattle fairs or prices being introduced.

Uproar followed a remark by Mr. Gildea.

Mr. Connolly (loudly)—This is not a political meeting, and you have tried to introduce politics by bringing in the thin end of the wedge about fairs. I see your point all right; this is all being done for the purpose of propaganda.

Mr. Gildea—Everyone knows the colour of your shirt.

Mr. Connolly—It is not a blue shirt.

Pandemonium now reigned, several members being on their feet engaged in exchanges.

Mr. Gildea eventually left the meeting.

THE PRICE OF PETROL.

NO CHANGE.

The National Petrol Distributing Companies announced yesterday that the retail prices of petrol will be maintained, and that there is no justification for the suggestion that they will be decontrolled.

The companies also announced their intention to resign their membership of the Motor Trade Association.

After recalling their relations with the Association, the companies added:—

"There is no justification for the statement of Mr. Garnon (Secretary of the M.T.A.) that prices will be decontrolled.

"The National Companies have no such intention. On the contrary, they intend to maintain their official retail prices—as published in the Press from time to time—in accordance with the conditions printed on the companies' invoices."

FATAL FRACAS IN ENNIS.

MURDER CHARGE SEQUEL.

INCIDENTS ON NIGHT OF SHOOTING.

ENNIS Courthouse was again crowded yesterday, when Sean McNamara, of Upper O'Connell street, Ennis, director of the League of Youth in Clare, appeared for the second time in custody, charged with the murder of James Glynn by shooting at him with a revolver on Sunday night, April 29th. A force of Guards and detectives was on duty in the courthouse and precincts.

Five witnesses were examined, including Patrick Smythe, a local shop assistant, who had been with the accused man on the night of the shooting. He stated that when they came near the I.R.A. club in O'Connell street someone shouted: "Come out here and mob them." After this a crowd numbering thirty or forty rushed out from the I.R.A. club, and a good number of them carried batons, something similar to the legs of a kitchen table. These men shouted: "Give it to them; let them have it."

At this time the crowd was within five or six yards of McNamara, who pulled a gun, and told the crowd to get back. The crowd stood for a moment or so, then rushed again.

THE FIRST SHOT.

McNamara fired a shot in the air, and the crowd cleared from the street into the doorway of the I.R.A. club. Shortly afterwards the crowd rushed back again, and McNamara fired a second shot over the heads of the crowd. Two men named John Coffey and John O'Loughlin exchanged blows, after which Coffey attacked a man named Crowley, whom he hit twice with his clenched fist. The third shot was fired about this time, and the crowd were shouting all the time. Someone shouted, "Bring out the rifle," and the accused man then fired the fourth shot.

Witness saw Patrick Glynn, the deceased man, in the crowd, and he had what appeared to be a baton in his hand. Detective Officer Galvin arrested McNamara, and witness went with him to the barrack, as he thought it was safer for him (witness) to do so.

Before the shooting occurred both he and the accused man, whom he met accidentally that night, were going home in a peaceable and orderly manner.

Mr. James Lynch, State Solicitor, who prosecuted, said that the beginning of the fatal fracas was an incident which occurred in the local picture-house between a youth employed by the mother of the accused man and another man.

MISSING WITNESSES.

Mr. Lynch added that seven other witnesses had been summoned to attend the court, but they had not turned up. They had refused to make any statement in connection with the affair, although three of them had been present when the shots had been fired. He asked for warrants for their arrest.

District Justice Gleeson said that he would issue the warrants, but he could see the difficulty of the men giving evidence, as, on the case made by the witnesses so far, there seemed to be a prima facie case of unlawful assembly. He thought that Mr. Lynch should submit the matter to the Attorney-General and take his direction on it.

Mr. Lynch—I have been instructed to apply for warrants for these seven witnesses: John Kennedy, Clonroadmore; Joseph Connellan, Lifford; Peter Flynn, Lifford; James Harrison, Old Military Barrack; Bernard Shaughnessy, O'Connell street; John Coffey, Cloughleigh, and Bernard Hassett, Cloughleigh.

The Justice issued the warrants and remanded the accused man in custody for a further week.

After the Court proceedings the accused man was removed in a motor car followed by two other cars in which there were detectives to Limerick Jail.

Mr. G. Kenny, Barrister-at-Law, instructed by Mr. E. Monahan, solicitor, appeared for the prisoner.

ROYAL ULSTER SOCIETY'S SHOW.

MR. WALTER ELLIOT'S VISIT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

Mr. Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture, will be present at the opening of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society's Show at Balmoral, Belfast, on May 30th next, when the Duke of Gloucester will be on a State visit to Northern Ireland.

Increased entries have been received in virtually all sections of the Show, and, excluding the jumping competition entries, they total 2.215, as compared with 1,874. At to-day's Council meeting of the Society the Secretary reported that he had been compelled to return more than a hundred other entries which had been received too late for inclusion in the catalogue. He also stated that a new self-contained poultry hall had been prepared, and additional accommodation would be provided for the large entries of cattle, horses and pigs.

THE LAURENTIC'S BULLION.

SALVAGE OPERATIONS TO BE RESUMED.

From Our Own Correspondent.

DERRY, Friday.

Salvage operations are to be resumed on the Laurentic, the White Star liner, which was torpedoed in the mouth of the Swilly by German submarines in January, 1917, when carrying five millions of gold bullion to America from England. The Attendant, the salvage boat, arrived today at Buncrana, fifteen miles from the spot where the vessel was sunk. The Government first carried out salvage work five years ago, when they recovered the greater part of the bullion. They then handed the work over to a private company, under Commander Rivers Malet, owner of the Attendant, which will begin work early next week. The divers will have to work at a depth of 130 feet. The work will be carried on while the good weather continues.

This is the third attempt of this company, who may also salvage some of the valuable parts of the Laurentic.

The Laurentic was chased into Lough Swilly by a German submarine, and was leaving again when it was sunk three miles off Fanad Head.

NEW GOVERNOR OF JAMAICA.

The Colonial Office announces that Sir Alexander Ransford Slater has tendered his resignation of the Governorship of Jamaica, on grounds of ill-health, and that the King has approved the appointment of Sir Edward Brandis Denham, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of British Guiana, to be Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of Jamaica, in succession to Sir Ransford Slater.

CHANGES IN THE CONSTITUTION.

NEW BILL IN THE SENATE.

PROVISION FOR A REFERENDUM.

INCREASED POULTRY BOUNTIES.

By Our Political Correspondent.

THE text of the bill which was introduced last Wednesday in the Senate, entitled Constitution (Amendment No. 25) Bill, has now been circulated. It is a short bill of only two sections, and is intended to make provision by which all bills amending the Constitution may be referred to the electors for approval before they become operative.

Article 50 of the Constitution, as it at present stands, provides for the making of amendments to the Constitution "by ordinary legislation" for a period of sixteen years from the date of the coming into operation of the Constitution.

THE NEW SECTION.

To this Article Senator Douglas proposes to add the following:—

> "But any bill so amending the Constitution passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of the Oireachtas within the said period may be suspended for a period of ninety days on the written demand of not less than two-fifths of the members of Dail Eireann or of a majority of the members of Seanad Eireann presented to the President of the Executive Council not later than seven days from the day on which such bill shall have been so passed or deemed to have been so passed. Such a bill shall be submitted to a referendum of the people if demanded before the expiration of the said period of ninety days either by a resolution of Seanad Eireann assented to by three-fifths of the members of Seanad Eireann or by a petition signed by not less than seventy-five thousand voters then on the register of voters and no such bill shall become law unless a majority of the voters on the register shall have recorded their votes on such referendum and either the votes of a majority of the voters on the register or two-thirds of the votes recorded shall have been cast in favour of such bill."

The bill, which is also backed by Senator S. L. Brown, K.C., and Senator J. T. O'Farrell, may come up for second reading in the Senate on Wednesday next.

TARIFFS MADE PERMANENT

Emergency Imposition of Duties (No. 30) Order, 1934, made by the Executive Council, and issued yesterday evening revokes the whole of ten of the Emergency Imposition of Duties Orders issued in the course of the years 1933 and 1934, and certain paragraphs of an Order issued in 1932. The revocation of the Orders is a necessary procedure, as the articles which were the subject of the revoked Orders are all covered by the Financial Resolutions passed by the Dail on Wednesday, and in due course will appear in the Finance Bill of 1934.

Emergency Orders lapse after a certain period unless confirmed by Act of the Oireachtas, and the effect of this new Order is to include in the permanent tariff code the matters referred to in the revoked Emergency Orders.

EGGS AND POULTRY.

INCREASED BOUNTIES.

Increased bounties on eggs and dead poultry exported from the Free State will come into force as from Monday next.

It is estimated that the effect of these changes will result in benefit to the producers of about £500,000.

The increased bounties are:—

Dead poultry and turkeys from 3d. to 5d. per lb.;

Guinea fowls from 2d. to 4d., and other varieties of dead poultry 3½d. to 5½d.

Eggs generally will have the bounty increased by 2s. per great hundred—thus:

Extra selected, 2s. to 4s.;
Selected, 2s. to 4s.;
Medium, 1s. 7d. to 3s. 7d.;
Pullets, 1s. 3d. to 3s. 3d.;
Ducks, 1s. 7d. to 3s. 7d.;
Preserved eggs, 1s. 7d. to 3s. 7d.

BUDGET SURPRISE EXPLAINED.

The reference in the Budget statement of the Free State Minister for Finance, to the effect that the allowance of one-sixth for repairs of buildings would be discontinued, because the owner-occupier was receiving the allowance "on the double," has puzzled many householders.

An inquiry in an authoritative quarter yesterday elicited the information that income tax assessments under Schedule A on buildings are based on the poor rate valuation, and that as an allowance for repairs and maintenance is made in arriving at the valuation there is no justification for making a deduction from the income tax assessment in respect of the same items. It is for this reason that it is now proposed to discontinue the deduction formerly allowable.

No alteration is being made in the existing practice in assessing lands, farmhouses and factories.

UNREST ON IRISH RAILWAYS.

MANY MEETINGS OF MEN TO-MORROW.

Meetings will be held under the auspices of the National Union of Railwaymen tomorrow in all parts of Ireland. Representatives of the Executive Committee of the union will be in attendance at all the larger centres for the purpose of explaining the union's proposals regarding wage rates for the year commencing May 1st.

Mr. J. Henderson, president of the union, will address a mass meeting at the Independent Labour Party Hall, York street, Belfast, and Mr. C. D. Watters, Irish secretary, will speak in Dublin.

In view of the demand on the part of a section of the men for the repudiation of the proposals and for strike action, the meetings are regarded as being of much importance.

THE WHEAT CONFERENCE.

NO AGREEMENT ON MINIMUM PRICE PLAN.

The Wheat Conference of representatives of twenty-one countries, which has been meeting at the Board of Trade in London, failed yesterday to reach agreement on the minimum price plan.

The Argentine was the one country which did not accept the agreement.

The Wheat Advisory Committee has appointed a sub-committee, consisting of representatives of Great Britain, France, Germany, the United States, Canada and Australia, to meet forthwith, and fully to consider possible alternative plans to stabilise and improve wheat prices.

BRITAIN IN DEFAULT.

IF ONLY TOKEN PAYMENT.

REPORTED U.S. WAR DEBTS STATEMENT.

It is understood, says Reuter, that Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador in Washington, has been informed by the United States Government that Great Britain will be considered to be in default on her war debt instalment, due on June 15th, if she makes only a token payment.

It was authoritatively explained at the White House last evening, says a Washington message, that while the United States is willing to enter into discussions concerning the revision and readjustment of the existing debt funding agreements with single nations, she would not join in any general debt discussions.

Despite the authoritative information given out that several debtors have been informed that token payments will no longer ensure exemption from the provisions of the Johnson Act, the President still feels that the United States has not laid down a rigid policy on this matter.

The possibility of France's seeking some way out of her default on war debts to the United States is the subject of speculation and rumour, says a Reuter message from Paris.

The French Cabinet will shortly debate the question. For the present, official circles are unwilling to comment on Thursday's Washington communiqué, according to which token payments would be accepted without altering the fact that such payers will be considered defaulters. If ever there was any possibility of France offering a token payment, it must now be considered out of the question, in view of this interpretation of the Johnson Bill.

Although Sir John Simon at Manchester yesterday referred to American criticisms of the Budget surplus, he said that he must not be taken as making any sort of announcement as to Government policy.

There seemed, said Sir John, to be some commentators—the irresponsible ones—on the other side of the Atlantic, who overlooked the fact that the argument based on the Budget surplus was entirely fallacious, for two reasons, so far as the American debt was concerned.

The first reason was because that which lay at the very back of the difficulty in connection with these vast international payments was not the question as to whether a particular country had a Budget surplus.

It was the injury done to world trade and world recovery as a whole, if they were to contemplate the transfer of enormous quantities which they, indeed, received in the form of goods, but which they were asked to pay back in the form of money.

Secondly, it must be borne in mind that, in relation to national wealth, British taxation last year was at least twice as heavy as corresponding taxation in the United States.

GERMAN DEBTS SUGGESTIONS.

A possible outcome of the protracted private debts conference in Berlin now being suggested is said to be: (1) A two-years' moratorium on debts payments; (2) a supply of raw materials on a credit basis to meet the requirements of Germany's industry for the next two years.

In the meantime, a stiff fight is understood to be going on behind the scenes between the different groups of delegates over the utilisation of scrip for additional reports. While Holland and Switzerland appear to support Germany's desire to increase additional exports on a scrip basis as much as possible, Sweden and the United States are said to oppose this solution of Germany's debts problem.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

PRESIDENT AND WAR DEBTS.

The Times, in a leading article on "The President and War Debts," says:—The United States Government have made it clear that countries which make only token payments on June 15, when the next war debt instalments become due, will be "in default" in the sense of the Johnson Act, which denies to defaulting nations the facilities of the American money market. They have thus cleared away what little doubt there may have been about the way in which the White House would, in practice, interpret the Act. But the official pronouncement hardly affects the main problem. The President has not yet disclosed whatever proposals he may have in mind for a settlement of war debts. It is easy enough to understand his manifest reluctance to move towards any settlement for which he could not hope to obtain the approval of Congress.

No one would accuse Mr. Roosevelt of any resemblance to the man who, asked why he was trailing behind a band of rioters, explained that he had to follow them because he was their leader. It is in a very different sense that Mr. Roosevelt is the leader of the American people. All the same, he is careful never to forget that he is their leader, not their ruler, and that to lead effectively he must keep in close touch with public opinion. He must maintain his influence over Congress—which means that he must take into account every current of feeling by which it is swayed, and must be content to compromise and to manage where he cannot convince. This is a task at which he is supremely competent, but there are indications that it is becoming increasingly difficult.

Amid so many causes for anxiety over the situation at home it is scarcely to be expected that the President should create further difficulties for himself at this moment by taking up an unpopular attitude on the question of War debts.

INJURED INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALLER.

E. D. R. Shearer, the Corinthian and Irish amateur footballer, who was removed to a Londonderry nursing home following a mishap while playing for Derry City on Thursday, was stated last night to be suffering from a fractured bone at the base of the spine.

MR. BALDWIN ON DISARMAMENT.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin, addressing a women's Conservative demonstration in London yesterday, made a clear statement as to the Government's policy on disarmament in the event of no agreement being reached under the present negotiations.

He declared that "the only proposals which hold the field to-day are the proposals of the British Government for the limitation of armaments.

"My statement in the House of Commons on behalf of the Government stands—that, in the event of no agreement being come to, and particularly of no agreement in the air, this country will be satisfied with no less a position in the air than a position of equality with the greatest power within fighting distance of our shores."

LAND ACT OF 1933 CHALLENGED.

HIGH COURT APPLICATION.

SHERIFF NOT TO PROCEED.

COUNSEL REFERS TO "ALLEGED STATUTE."

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

AN application on notice was made in the Dublin High Court yesterday, on behalf of Thomas Halpin, farmer, of Meeltanagh, Ardagh, Co. Longford, for an interlocutory injunction in his action against the Attorney-General and Denis Kerrigan, Under Sheriff of County Longford, restraining the latter from acting on a warrant issued by the Irish Land Commission and purporting to authorise the Under Sheriff to levy on his goods in respect of a land annuity instalment alleged to be due by him. The Land Commission warrant purported to be issued under the authority of Section 28 of the Land Act, 1933, the validity of which Act was impeached by the plaintiff.

Mr. A. K. Overend, K.C., Mr. F. Lynch and Mr. Gearoid O'Sullivan (instructed by Mr. Bernard Connolly, Longford) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C., and Mr. T. G. Marnan (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the Attorney-General; and Mr. Kevin Dixon (instructed by Mr. T. W. Delaney, State Solicitor, Longford) for the Under Sheriff of Longford.

Mr. Bernard Connolly, solicitor, stated in an affidavit that, on or about the 18th April last, the plaintiff received by post a notice purporting to issue from Denis Kerrigan, the Under Sheriff for Longford, requiring him within fifteen days from the date of the notice to pay to the Under Sheriff the sum of £5 19s. 2d., together with a further sum of 7s., and stating that, in default of payment, the Under Sheriff would proceed to recover the amount by distraint. Mr. Connolly considered that the notice was issued without legal authority and was null and void. Distraint on the goods of the plaintiff in pursuance to the notice would entail "irreparable loss and damage to the plaintiff's credit and reputation." No loss would ensue to the Under Sheriff or to anyone consequent on an injunction being granted restraining the Under Sheriff from proceeding with distraint pending the hearing of the action.

JUDICIAL POWERS.

This affidavit was read by Mr. Overend in support of his application for an interlocutory injunction. Counsel said that the Land Commission notice and the warrant issued to the Under Sheriff were another indication of the whittling away of judicial powers by the Executive. For many years the Courts had dealt with proceedings taken by the Land Commission for sums due to them, but, according to what he would have to call the alleged statute of 1933, someone somewhere in the Land Commission, possibly a junior clerk, issued a warrant to an Under Sheriff commanding him to make a seizure without any hearing of the case and without any judicial proceeding of any kind. If that was not an usurpation of judicial power, it would seem there could be no such thing.

Mr. Justice Johnston—Is this motion going on now?

Mr. Overend—I am only asking for an interlocutory injunction pending the hearing of the action.

Mr. Justice Johnston asked if the Attorney-General agreed to that.

Mr. Gavan Duffy—I could not possibly agree. The consequences would be far-reaching, and would hold up the work of the Land Commission all over the country.

Mr. Overend agreed that the matter was very serious. If, he said, a wrongful seizure were allowed to take place, all rights of action by the plaintiff would be taken away. The Under Sheriff and the County Registrar were so protected by statute that, if an illegal seizure was carried out under their warrant, by Court Messengers, they were protected from any action whatsoever by the person injured. That made the matter serious, and it was on account of the grave invasion of the constitutional rights of the plaintiff that he asked that this irreparable damage should not be done by a seizure for which there would be no remedy.

"ALLEGED STATUTE."

Continuing, Mr. Overend read the terms of the notice served on Mr. Halpin demanding payment within fifteen days of £5 19s. 2d. and a sum of 7s. The notice did not say what the 7s. was for. The only option given by the notice against a seizure in the case of non-payment was that the person to whom it was addressed should be able to declare that he was not the person liable or that he did not owe the money. The notice purported to be issued under a Land Commission warrant which the plaintiff had never seen. A section of the alleged statute of 1933 purported to place that warrant in the same position as a warrant of a Court, and to deprive the person against whom it was issued of his constitutional right to bring his position to the notice of the Court and to ask for a stay of execution. All that took place behind backs, and the first thing the person affected knew was to get a notice from an Under Sheriff which was not a statutory notice. Counsel had no idea how this procedure came to be devised, unless the authorities came to the conclusion that the statute of 1933 was so doubtful that it should be heel-tapped in some way by the issue of notices before seizures took place. Since the reign of Henry VI. every statute should be enacted by the three estates of the Realm, and that procedure was continued in the Free State Constitution. But the paper writing called the Land Act of 1933 had not been enacted by anyone; there was no enacting clause.

NO ENACTMENT.

Mr. Justice Johnson—Was that a slip or deliberate?

Mr. Overend—I think it must have been a slip, because a most interesting thing has happened in connection with it. The Court was aware that every statute in England, when signed by the Crown, must immediately be endorsed by the Clerk of Parliament with the date, which becomes part of the statute. In this country that provision was incorporated in the Interpretation Act of 1923. This alleged statute of 1933 purports to bear the date 13th October, but all words of enactment were left out of the bill when it passed through Dail Eireann. There were no words of enactment anywhere. During the preparation of the Irish version of the alleged statute, somebody must have discovered that the vital part of the statute had been omitted, and, when the Stationery Office purported to publish the statute with its Irish version, they put in the missing words and did not alter the date. The words "Be it enacted" were not in the document when it purported to be signed, and were subsequently put into it by somebody who thought he was entitled to do that.

Mr. Justice Johnston asked if the Act as signed was being produced by the Clerk of the Dail.

Mr. Overend said that the proper officials, with the official records, would be produced at the hearing of the action, and it would be seen that the vital words were not in the bill as passed by Dail Eireann, and were not in the statute printed and signed by the Governor-General.

Mr. Gavan Duffy objected to this statement, and said that it would be shown in due course what the Governor-General signed.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that he had been handed two copies of the Act (38) of 1933, both purporting to have been issued by the Stationery Office, and both differing.

Mr. Overend—In a vital particular.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that the matter might reasonably be investigated.

ISSUE OF WARRANTS.

Mr. Overend—If my contention is right, there is no Land Act of 1933, because essential words have been left out. These were not in the bill as passed by the Dail and Senate and signed by the Governor-General.

Quoting Section 28 of what he called the alleged statute, Mr. Overend said that it purported to give the Land Commission power to issue warrants if and when it thought proper, notifying the names of defaulters in the matter of land annuities. That meant that, without any judicial hearing whatever, the Land Commission could, whenever the humour seized it, issue warrants against defaulters.

Mr. Justice Johnston remarked that the amount involved was small, only £5 19s. 2d. If it were lodged in Court, they might get over the difficulty and let the action go for trial.

Mr. Overend said that they had no objection to lodge the money, but they wanted to prevent the seizure.

Mr. Gavan Duffy—It would meet the case admirably.

Mr. Justice Johnston—I suggest that the money might be lodged in Court.

Mr. Overend—On the plaintiff undertaking to do this, the injunction would be granted?

Mr. Gavan Duffy—Oh, no.

Mr. Overend—Then you must restrain the Sheriff from acting on the warrant.

Mr. Justice Johnston—Yes.

Mr. Gavan Duffy—You cannot grant the injunction if the money is lodged in Court.

Mr. Justice Johnston—I do not think there will be any necessity.

Mr. Gavan Duffy said that, if the money was lodged in Court, they would undertake that the Sheriff would not seize. They were anxious to proceed to a decision.

Mr. Overend said that he would try to expedite the case.

Mr. Justice Johnston eventually made an order that the motion should stand adjourned until the hearing of the action, the plaintiff undertaking to lodge the money to the credit of the action, and the Attorney-General undertaking not to proceed further with the execution pending the determination of the action. Costs of all parties would be reserved.

Mr. Gavan Duffy mentioned that, as a matter of procedure, it should be the Sheriff who would undertake not to proceed with the execution—not the Attorney-General.

Mr. Dixon—I agree to that.

THE WATCH ON THE BORDER.

CATTLE CAPTURED AFTER EXCITING SCENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEWRY, Friday.

Last night the Newry Customs patrol (consisting of Sergeant McFettridge and Constables Maguire and Finlay) captured nineteen head of cattle on Carrickbroad Mountain.

The police, it appears, arrived on the scene as the cattle were being driven across the mountain.

They then went in pursuit of the drovers, who, having tried to stampede the cattle, went in different directions, and, under cover of the darkness, effected their escape.

The patrol then proceeded to round up the animals, and in so doing sustained several cuts and bruises in travelling through the rough mountain country.

During the last three months the Newry patrol have captured ninety cattle, sheep, horses and pigs.

Cattle-smugglers were also chased early yesterday at Mullyard, near Keady, Co. Armagh. The police seized five head of cattle, but the drovers escaped. One of the police was injured through colliding with a stone ditch in the darkness.

Sixty per cent. of the cattle on offer at Keady Fair yesterday, it is alleged, were smuggled animals from the Free State. A large number was sold.

CLOSE OF THE FEIS CEOIL.

SIXTY-THREE MEZZO-SOPRANOS.

BOY'S CLEVER SIGHT-READING.

GERVASE ELWES CUP.

THERE were some excellent performances at the Feis Ceoil yesterday, when the great musical festival entered on its closing stages. In a large class of over thirty entries for the boys' solo singing quite an outstanding performance in a class that was high in standard was that of the first prize-winner, Master Norman Metcalfe, whose sight reading was so perfect as to create in many minds the suspicion that he must have known the test. That, at any rate, seemed to be the idea in the mind of the adjudicator, Mr. Keith Falkner, when he recalled the boy and, in order to remove any suspicions, as well as to show how easy sight reading could be, asked him to sing another test. The boy came through the ordeal—and it must have been very trying—with flying colours.

There was not the same satisfaction with the singing of the sixty odd competitors who presented themselves for the mezzo soprano solo. The test song, "She wandered down the mountain side," by Clay, may possibly be a dreary affair, but, at any rate, it has the merit that it is a test for mezzos, and in a piece that tested voice control it showed up the singers in a bad light, and drew from Mr. Henderson the severe criticism that he had never in his life heard so much "dithering" singing.

As one expected, the standard in the senior piano class was very high, and won warm approval from Mr. Harold Samuel, whose demonstrations on the instruments of how the pieces should have been played were illuminating. Mr. Cundell also had a splendid competition for senior violin, and here the winner was not easy to place, but the cup was won by Miss Honora Greene, who showed most feeling in a class, which, while it showed splendid technique, lacked warmth.

In the competition for the John A. Pigott Memorial Cup for piano playing, which was won by Eric Marks, Vernon Gardens, Clontarf, the adjudicator, Mr. Grant, said that competitor No. 4 (Miss Mae Johnson), who was very highly commended, had given the best performance of the Bach test piece. Her playing of the Scriabin was slow and heavy, but if her Chopin had been up to the level of the Bach he did not know what would have happened—her Chopin playing, however, had let her down. The other competitor, who was also very highly commended (Miss Joan Trimble, Enniskillen) had also been let down by her Chopin playing, though her's had been a very musical performance.

MEZZO-SOPRANO.

There were sixty-three entries for the mezzo-soprano solo singing, the tests being: (a) "She wandered down the mountain side" (Clay); (b) "The Cuckoo Madrigal" (Wood), and (c) easy piece at sight.

1, Gold Medal—Berta Ardill, Ballysalla House, Clandeboye, Co. Down (175 marks); 2, Silver Medal—Robina McKay, Edenvale terrace, The Robbins, Larne, Co. Antrim (174½ marks); 3, Bronze Medal—Eire O'Reilly, Moorefield, Roebuck, Dundrum, Co. Dublin (174 marks).

Mr. Roy Henderson, the adjudicator, said that the test piece—"She wandered down the mountain side"—like most of these old "pot boilers," gave a chance for smooth legato singing, with musical expression and opportunity for shading and bringing out the nuances. There had, however, been far too much "dithery" singing. He had never heard so much in his life. He did not know whether it was nerves, but he rather believed that it was lack of breath control.

No. 18 (first prize winner) was the first bit of good singing he heard. This singer had splendid deportment, and had sung with pleasant, rich quality. The expression was everything he wanted, and she worked up a fine climax.

No. 60 (second prize winner) had a very beautiful quality, but there was in it a suspicion of unsteadiness, which she must work to get rid of.

No. 24 (third prize winner) had a very fine voice, but it was dreadfully unsteady, and she must work at it this year.

BOYS' SOLO.

There were 31 entries. The test pieces were: (a) "Where e'er you walk" (Handel); (b) "The Ninepenny Fiddle" (Hughes); and (c) piece at sight.—1, Gold medal Norman Metcalfe, King's Hospital School, Dublin, 181 marks; 2, silver medal, Kieran Kelly, 15 Airfield road Rathgar, Dublin, 176 marks; 3, bronze medal, William McBrien, O'Connell Schools, Dublin, 175 marks; highly commended, Terence Berit, O'Connell Schools, Dublin, and Stanley McNeilly, St. George's Church, Belfast.

Mr. Falkner said there was no great difficulty in finding the winner, but he had a little trouble about placing the second and third. In the singing of the winner (Master Metcalfe) there was hardly anything to criticise whatever. He was really the only boy who had any idea of singing within himself, holding it back, and giving the climax at the right place.

Referring to the Irish song ("The Ninepenny Fiddle"), the adjudicator said that he did not think that this was a good thing to give to boys to sing. It was not the type of thing they would sing naturally. Gesture was not necessary.

SENIOR PIANO.

Senior Piano (24 entries). Caroline Elizabeth O'Reilly Cup (presented by the Misses O'Reilly). Test pieces: (a) "Au bord d'une source" (Liszt), Adagio Espressivo and Allegro Vivace (Sonata Op. 27, No. 1, in E flat) (Beethoven), and an easy piece at sight—1, Margaret McNamee, 8 St. Teresa's place, Glasnevin; 2, Miss Norah Brady, St. Mary's School for the Blind, Merrion, and Miss Maura Concannon, Crofton Lodge, Crofton road, Dublin; 3, Miss Nellie Nugent, Greenmount, Glasnevin, and Miss Sybil Alexander, St. John's, Oaklands Park, Ballsbridge.

As Miss Brady won the silver medal last year, she was disqualified.

Miss Nugent was winner of the silver medal in 1932, and the bronze medal went to Miss Sybil Alexander.

Mr. Harold Samuel, who adjudicated, emphasised the necessity for keeping the correct shape in Beethoven. The standard in the competition had been exceptionally high, and the winner showed a good deal of ability.

Senior Violin (17 entries). Test pieces: (a) "Romance" (Sinding), (b) "L'abeille" (Schubert), and an easy piece at sight. The accompanist was Mrs. J. F. Larchet—1, Honora J. Greene, 52 Eblana Villas, Lower Grand Canal street, Dublin (90 marks); 2, Miss Ettie Mann, 94 Donore terrace, Dolphin's Barn, Dublin (88 marks); 3, Llewelyn Williams, 62 Lower Camden street, Dublin (83 marks); highly commended: Miss Joan Trimble, The Battery, Enniskillen; T. G. Davidson, The Hill, Castletownroche, Co. Cork; Terence Healy, 84 Rialto Cottages, South Circular road, Dublin, and Hazel de Courcy, Gorse Hill, Baily, Dublin.

The adjudicator, Mr. Edric Cundell, said that the winner played with assurance. It was a musical performance and always interesting. There was good feeling, and the phrasing was pleasing.

SCHOOL CHOIRS.

School Choir in Irish—Girls (2 entries)—1, St. Mary's School for the Blind, Merrion (84 marks); 2, Our Lady's Mount School (82 marks).

The adjudicator (Mr. Colm O Lochlainn) said that he awarded the prize to the first choir because they were a little more tuneful.

School Choirs—Boys (3 entries)—1, O'Connell Schools (Junior), North Richmond street, Dublin (92 marks); 2, Christian Brothers' Primary Schools, Dun Laoghaire (88 marks); 3, St. Kevin's Senior Boys' Choir, Blackpits (85 marks).

Mr. O Lochlainn said that the winners had sung Amhran Dochais with fire and spirit. He had never heard it sung better.

Speaking about the choral competitions, he said that it was very disappointing that there were only two girls' and three boys' choirs entered. He thought that with a bit of organisation on the part of the Feis Committee they could have twenty or thirty entries.

GERVASE ELWES CUP.

There were sixteen entries for the Gervase Elwes Memorial Cup, and, with the competition confined to medalists and cupholders at the Feis in previous years, the standard of performance was high.

The Cup was won by Mrs. Phyllis Huet, 7 Prince of Wales terrace, Bray, Co. Wicklow. (This lady also won the Denis O'Sullivan Memorial Medal.) Highly commended—Richard Midgeley, Clare road, Whitehall, Dublin; Donald E. Beaven, Castle avenue, Clontarf; Eileen Clancy, Ferncliffe, Lower Kimmage road, Dublin; Kathleen Moore, Dunshaughlin, Co. Meath; and Mrs. Sydney Giltrap, Sutton, Co. Dublin.

Mr. Keith Falkner said that the cup-winner's diction was excellent, and was the best he heard.

CHARLES WILSON CUP.

The competition for the Charles R. Wilson Cup for ensemble operatic singing provided the Feis with a really dramatic finish. The great festival ended on a really triumphant note, as the competition was outstanding. Three groups of singers entered, and the operatic selections submitted were:—The sextet from Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte"; scenes from Verdi's "Falstaff," and the quartet from the third act of Puccini's "La Boheme."

An audience that crowded the Metropolitan Hall from floor to ceiling were thrilled with operatic singing of the finest class. Amidst great enthusiasm, Mr. Henderson awarded the cup to the quartette from "La Boheme." The singers were:—Eileen Crowley, Kathleen Moore, Geoffrey Quaile and Michael R. O'Higgins.

The other groups were:—Scenes from Falstaff: Hilda White, Hazel Atwool, Mildred Atwool and Elizabeth O'Farrell; and Sextet from Cosi fan tutte: Renee Flynn, Dorothy Griffith, Eva Thomsohn, Joseph O'Neill, Mervyn Bell and Alfred Birch.

Mr. Henderson congratulated all the singers on the splendid entertainment they had provided.

In a short farewell speech Mr. Henderson thanked everybody connected with the Feis for the kindness and courtesy shown him during the week. The competitions had been most keen, exciting and thrilling, and he was taking away very happy recollections of his first experience at the Feis.

Mr Keith Falkner also expressed his thanks to everybody, and he singled out for special mention the official accompanists—Miss Eileen Buckley, Miss Dorothy Stokes, Mr. Turner Huggard and Mr. Fred Stone. One might add to these the names of Mrs. Alice Gore and Mrs. Larchet—the latter in particular for the splendid support she gave in the wind instrument classes.

Townshend Cup (presented by Miss Carrie Townshend) for songs with Irish words to competitor's own accompaniment on the Irish harp (2 entries)—1, Miss Maire Sheridan, Waltham terrace, Blackrock, Co. Dublin (86 marks). Mr. Colm O'Lochlainn said the standard of the competition had been high and the winner was almost perfect in tone and intonation.

Traditional Singing (13 entries). Tests: Own choice—1, Maire Ni Shuilleabhain, 42 Parnell square, Dublin (92 marks); 2, Padraig MacGreinne, Ballinalee, Edgeworthstown, Co. Longford (86 marks); 3, Mairead Ni Cheallaigh, 3 Ormond road, Drumcondra.

Mr. O'Lochlainn commented on the very high standard of the language of the competitors, which he said was the best in his recollection at the Feis Ceoil.

P. J. McCall Cup (12 entries) for accompanied singing in Irish—1, Patrick Kenny, 26 Duke street, Athy (92 marks); 2, Mairin Ni Sheaghdha, Corcha Dhuibhne, Dundrum, Co. Dublin (91 marks); 3, Elizabeth Quinn, Redford, Greystones, and Mairead Ni Cheallaigh, 3 Ormond road, Drumcondra, Dublin.

Mr. O Lochlainn said that all the competitors were very good.

EARL OF ANTRIM'S MARRIAGE.

BIG COMPANY OF GUESTS.

From Our Correspondent.

LONDON, Friday.

The Earl of Antrim, of Glenarm Castle, Larne, Co. Antrim, was married this afternoon at the Oratory, Brompton, London, W., to Miss Angela Sykes, youngest daughter of the late Sir Mark Sykes, Bart., and the late Lady Sykes, of Sledmere, Malton, Yorkshire.

Dr. Dunstan, chaplain, Ampleforth Abbey, officiated at the ceremony, and was assisted by Father John Talbot, of the Oratory.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Sir Richard Sykes, wore a long-sleeved gown of diagonally-woven chalk-white crêpe, the train, cut in one with the skirt, falling from the waist. Her long tulle veil was held with a simple wreath of white jasmine flowers, and a cluster of similar flowers was pinned to the front of the dress. She carried a bouquet of lilies.

The Hon. James MacDonnell acted as best man.

Ten child attendants—five girls and five boys—followed the bride. Their names were: Polly and Ruth Elwes, Sally Scrope, Zoe D'Erlanger, Caroline Worthington, Mark Elwes, Christopher Scrope, Archie Hunter, Nicholas Elwes and Charles Worthington. The little girls were attired in Empire frocks of soft primrose-yellow chiffon, mounted on silk, the long skirts being slightly trained, and the high-waisted puff-sleeved bodices finished with sashes of yellow satin. Bandeaux of yellow ribbon were worn on their heads, and they carried Victorian posies of primroses. The pages were dressed in trousers of tussore silk, also of primrose yellow, with blouses of chiffon to tone.

A reception was held afterwards at 3 Grafton street, which was lent by Mrs. Arthur James, great-aunt of the bride.

NORTHERN DIVORCE SUIT.

WIFE'S ALLEGATIONS AGAINST HUSBAND.

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

In the King's Bench Division, Belfast, this afternoon, before the Lord Chief Justice, a petition for divorce a mensa et thoro was brought by Mrs. Annie Priestly Adair, hotel proprietress, Queen's parade, Bangor, against her husband, Henry Adair, on the ground of cruelty and misconduct.

It was stated that the parties were married at Hamilton road Methodist Church, Bangor, in April, 1913, the petitioner then being Annie Priestly Mitchell. She alleges that her husband has been persistently cruel to her, and that on the night of June 26, 1931, at the Regent Palace Hotel, Bangor, he used abusive language and threatened her with a razor.

The respondent denies the allegations of the petitioner, and contends that, if at any time he was cruel to her, she condoned it.

Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., M.P., Mr. W. Lowry and Mr. P. A. Marrinan (instructed by Messrs. William Alexander and Company) were for the petitioner; and Mr. W. Beattie, K.C., and Mr. J. C. MacDermott (instructed by Mr. J. C. Taylor) for the respondent.

The petitioner gave evidence as to the cruelty and misconduct alleged, and was under cross-examination when the Court rose.

The case was adjourned until Monday.

Northern Ireland Pig Trade.—Farmers with pork for sale in Ballygawley market yesterday were indignant when only about one-third the supply of eighty carcases was purchased by curers' agents. Representations were made to the Pig Marketing Board and Belfast curing firms without avail, and arrangements were later made for having the unsold carcases put into cold storage.

THE CHARTERED SURVEYORS.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

Mr. T. Loftus Townshend presided at the annual general meeting of the Irish Free State Branch of the Chartered Surveyors' Institution at 110 Grafton street, Dublin, yesterday, which was attended by the Chairman of the Junior Organisation, Mr. J. A. F. Watson, and the assistant secretary of the Institution, Mr. H. Godfrey Evans, and the Chairman of the Northern Ireland Branch, Mr. R. Ingleby-Smith.

In the course of the annual report, which was submitted by the secretary, Mr. B. J. Newcombe, it was stated that the Land Act of 1933 became law in October. The provisions of the previous Land Purchase Acts were still further extended in favour of the tenants. The annuities payable by tenant purchasers and on advances on demesnes were halved. Owing, however, to the economic war any benefits arising are more than offset—the farmer in many cases not being able even to pay their rates.

The report was adopted.

THE ELECTIONS.

The Chairman proposed the election of Mr. A. Edward Smith as Chairman for the ensuing year, which was seconded by Major C. G. O. Hemphill, and passed. On the motion of Captain Willington Molony, seconded by Mr. D. R. O'Brien, Mr. C. A. Fentum was elected Vice-Chairman for the coming year.

In reply to a vote of thanks, Mr. J. A. F. Watson gave an interesting account of the junior organisation and its usefulness amongst the younger members of the Institution. It was decided that a branch of the junior organisation be formed in the Irish Free State.

The result of the voting for the Executive Committee was as follows:—Chairman, Mr. A. Edward Smith; Vice-Chairman, Mr. C. A. Fentum. Fellows—Messrs. E. J. Anthony, Claud J. Bourchier, Ernest H. Browne, Major D. N. Brunicardi, T. Henry Carter, J. Graves Clayton, Charles J. Dunlop, E. F. Leslie Ellis, Harry Franks, David Hall, Major C. G. C. Hemphill, William H. Hinde, Robert J. A. Jameson, V. C. Le Fanu, Harry Lisney, J. J. McAuley, J. K. McMillan, A. E. Moeran, Captain Willington Molony, D. R. O'Brien, William Power-Steele, John Ryan, R. H. R. Stewart, W. C. L. Sullivan, George C. Townsend, T. Loftus Townshend, Henry A. Vernon, W. H. F. Verschoyle. Professional Associates—Captain R. Beresford Gahan, Robert Stewart.

Subsequently, Mr. J. A. F. Watson, Mr. H. G. Evans, the President of the Royal Institute of Architects in Ireland, Mr. George F. Beckett, F.R.I.A.I., the President of the Institute of Civil Engineers, Mr. N. O'Dwyer, B.E., Mr. R. Ingleby-Smith, Chairman of the Northern Ireland Branch of the Institution, were entertained to luncheon in the Royal Hibernian Hotel, a large number of members of the Irish Free State branch being present.

A REPUBLIC FOR ALL IRELAND.

SENATOR CONNOLLY'S VIEW.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LIMERICK, Friday Night.

Under the auspices of Limerick Old I.R.A. Association, Senator Connolly, Minister for Lands, lectured in the Athenæum Hall tonight. He said that there were two types of opposition the Government had to contend with: There was one section who argued that the Government was not travelling fast enough, and that they had not gone far enough. The Government had gone very far, indeed in two years in advancing their national policy, and they would continue until they had achieved their ideal—an independent republic for thirty-two counties.

TRADES UNION TRUSTEES WIN APPEAL

SEQUEL TO CARRIERS' ACTION.

In the Court of Appeal, Belfast, yesterday, judgment was given in an appeal against the decision of the Lord Chief Justice in a motion arising out of an action in which William Drennan, carrier, William street, Donaghadee, Co. Down, was plaintiff and respondent, and Frederick J. Beecher, Walter H. Green, John F. Lukerift, Arthur Coult and William John, trustees of the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union, and William Magill, Trades union official, Altcar street, Belfast, were defendants and appellants.

Drennan had claimed damages for the alleged wrongful and malicious procuring and inducing of certain persons not to work for him and for interfering with his business in the carrying out of certain contracts entered into by him.

The defendants had moved to have the action dismissed on the grounds, among others, that the statement of claim disclosed no reasonable cause of action, and that the proceedings were vexatious and not bona fide.

The Lord Chief Justice refused this motion with costs.

The Court now held that the Lord Chief Justice was wrong, and that the appeal should be allowed and the action dismissed with costs.

Lord Justice Andrews said that the facts complained of were alleged to have been committed by Magill, who was a servant, or agent, of the union. The defendant trustees were sued as trustees, and Magill neither owed nor rendered them any duty or service. Magill was in no way under their control or answerable to them. The trustees had no power to direct Magill's activities, nor did they do so. They were not even aware of his existence. He was accordingly of opinion that no cause of action had been shown to exist against the trustees. To hold otherwise would be to nullify entirely the principle of immunity conferred by statute on trade unions, for no effective protection would be afforded to them if the trustees of a union who would be entitled to satisfy the damages out of the union's assets were held liable for the very same act in respect of which they were given express protection.

Lord Justice Best said that he thought that the liability imposed on the trustees was confined to matters in which some question was raised directly involving the property, real or personal, vested in the trustees, and did not extend to a case like the present, in which it was not and could not be suggested that the property vested in the trustees had been instrumental in injuring the plaintiff.

"SOCCER" VOTED CHINA'S NATIONAL GAME.

Association football was voted to be the national sport of China in a ballot among Chinese schools and sports clubs.

In Shanghai alone (states Reuter) there are more than 200 "Soccer" teams. Some of them play right through the hot summer months.

Shuttlecock came next in preference—then kite-flying. Basket-ball, volley-ball and tennis were equal rivals.

Cricket, hockey, badminton, squash and American football obtained no votes.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

CHICAGO'S REACTION A DISTURBING INFLUENCE: STOCKS CLOSE EASY.

Reuter's Telegrams.

NEW YORK, Friday.

The late reaction in wheat was an unsettling influence on the Stock Exchange, and the general list closed fractions to $2 lower after a turnover of only 1,000,000 shares.

The opening was irregular. Prices then displayed a quietly hardening tendency, but the gains were mostly fractional.

In the afternoon signs of internal strength appeared as yesterday's selling subsided, and the general sentiment of the market became rather more cheerful.

The week-end trade reviews were very optimistic in tone. The Dun and Bradstreet Agency reports a sudden spurt in retail distribution and a broader wholesale buying, while industrial operations in several divisions have reached new high ground for the year.

Renewed selling appeared in the late trading coincidently with the set-back in wheat, and the market closed easy.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Friday.

General buying and an increasing public participation, coupled with the decidedly bullish Government report, resulted in early advances on the Grain market to-day. Further helpful influences were advices of a continuance of the drought and crop deterioration reports, together with the strength of North-Western markets and a belief that there has been further depreciation of crops since the compilation of the Government figures. A reaction followed on an official forecast of showers in parts of the grain belts, which encouraged heavy realising and caused a nervous and erratic market.

Wheat eased on professional and local selling, combined with profit-taking on the advances. Maize, rye and oats fluctuated, principally in sympathy with the movements of wheat.

WHEAT opened firm, 1⅛c. to 1⅝c. up, and closed easy, 2c. to 1¼c. down.

JERUSALEM LOAN OF £2,000,000.

ORDERS FOR BRITISH GOODS.

From Our Parliamentary Correspondent.

WESTMINSTER, Friday.

THE House of Commons to-day considered a resolution guaranteeing the principal and interest of a loan of £2,000,000 to be raised by the Palestine Government for capital expenditure on public works.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister (Colonial Secretary), in moving the resolution, said that, though the financial position of Palestine was very much better than when a similar loan was made in 1926, the guarantee of the British Government would enable the money to be raised at a lower rate of interest than would otherwise be possible. It had been suggested that the loan would benefit the Arabs more than the Jews. On a calculation made on the basis of population and the areas to be benefited by the expenditure of the money it would appear that two-thirds of the benefit would go to the Arabs and one-third to the Jews. One of the conditions of the loan was that orders should be placed on Great Britain, and it was estimated that their value would be not less than £600,000.

Mr. Isaac Foot (Liberal) considered a good case had been made out for the loan, which was not a sign of distress, but of prosperity.

Colonel Wedgwood (Labour) declared that the circumstances did not warrant the guaranteeing of the loan. Education in Palestine was "rotten bad," and the Jewish children were being taught an absolutely unknown language, called Hebrew, when what they wanted was to learn English, so that they could get away to America. (Laughter.)

Earl Winterton (Conservative) deprecated the tone of Mr. Wedgwood's speech, and said that his attack was based on a complete misunderstanding of the situation.

Mr. George Hall said that the Labour Party would not oppose the resolution, as they wished to see everything possible done for the development of Palestine.

The resolution was agreed to, and the House rose at 3.20 p.m.

THE LOCOMOTIVE WHISTLE.

INVENTED BY ENGLISH ORGANIST.

The whistle on railway engines can claim a musical pedigree, for it was invented by an English organist just over a century ago after a collision had occurred on the Leicester and Swannington Railway. The inventor called it a "steam trumpet."

Besides serving as a warning, in which work it is supplemented in Canada by a swinging bell, it is used on the Canadian National Railways to signal messages to railway workers, and on one occasion replaced the telegraph. That was when the late Thomas Edison was a telegraphist on the Grand Trunk Railway at Port Huron, Ontario. The telegraph across the river between Port Huron and Sarnia having broken down, young Edison jumped on a near by stationary locomotive and sent messages to Sarnia in Morse, whistled in long and short notes from the engine.

DUBLIN YOUTH DROWNED.

A fifteen-year-old boy, Thomas Connolly, of Ballybough, was drowned in the canal, near Clonsilla, yesterday afternoon. He was cycling along the bank of the canal when, it is believed, his machine skidded and threw him into the water. There were no witnesses of the accident, but a boy saw the body floating in the water and informed the Civic Guards. The boy's father was driving a Tramways omnibus in the vicinity of the place where his son was drowned when he was told of the accident.

GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND AT PARIS FAIR.

Every visitor to the annual Foire de Paris can see the slogan, "Visitez la Grande Bretagne et l'Irlande," above the triple stand which the Travel and Industrial Development Association has taken at this year's Fair in collaboration with the Federation of British Industries and the British Chamber of Commerce in Paris.

At the Fair last year there were 7,8̣0 exhibitors and two million visitors from thirty-four different countries.

The Association's exhibit consists of a display of some of the best posters of the year supplied by the British Railways, the London Transport Board and the Association itself. Generous supplies of publicity material relating both to the pleasure resorts and industrial areas have been sent out for distribution. Some striking publications especially designed to draw the Frenchman towards Britain for his holidays have been prepared. These include the new French edition of the Association's 72-page illustrated booklet, "Les Iles Britanniques," and two illustrated folders in French—"Visit your Neighbours in East Kent" and "Norwich and the Norfolk Resorts"—in which the Association has collaborated with the Federation of the East Kent Chambers of Commerce and the towns of Norwich, Great Yarmouth, Gorleston-on-Sea, Cromer, King's Lynn and Hunstanton.

A TROUBLED CAREER.

OBJECTIONS TO ABBEY THEATRE PLAYS.

RIOTOUS SCENES.

(BY ANDREW E. MALONE.)

THE Abbey Theatre seems fated to trouble, but the recent disagreement is as nothing compared with the troubles it has successfully faced in the course of its thirty years' existence. Even before the Abbey Theatre came into being at all at least one of the plays which has since been associated with it met with a rather violent reception from audiences, or potential audiences, and on many occasions since its doors opened in December, 1904, have audiences demonstrated in varying degrees of violence their objection to its plays.

It was "The Countess Cathleen," the first play staged by the Irish Literary Theatre at the Antient Concert Rooms, in Dublin, which encountered the first troubles as long ago as 1899. "The Playboy of the Western World" received a riotous reception in the opening week of its presentation at the Abbey Theatre in January, 1907. Two little plays, "The Pie-Dish" and "The Piper," received somewhat adverse receptions on their first presentations in February and March, 1908. Lennox Robinson's "Harvest" was none too well received on its first production in May, 1910, and St. John Ervine's "The Magnanimous Lover" was similarly treated on its first production in October, 1912. After that a long period of comparative quiet was broken only in February, 1926, when demonstrations of protest were made in the theatre against Sean O'Casey's "The Plough and the Stars." There have been little ripples of protest during the past few years, but none of them was really serious.

All these protests came from audiences, but occasionally there was trouble also from the authorities at Dublin Castle. In 1907 there was controversy with the Castle about "The Playboy of the Western World," but, as the offending words were deleted from the acted play, that did not come to much. In 1909 much more serious trouble loomed up very suddenly when the Abbey Theatre announced its intention to stage Bernard Shaw's "The Shewing-up of Blanco Posnet" as its Horse Show Week attraction. This play had been banned by the Lord Chamberlain in England on the ground that it was blasphemous, and the Lord Lieutenant attempted to carry that ban to Dublin This attempt to impose a stage censorship through the Lord Lieutenant failed because of the strong attitude taken by the directors, particularly the late Lady Gregory, and no further attempt was afterwards made.

THE FIRST ATTACK.

That forerunner of the Abbey Theatre, the Irish Literary Theatre, was subjected to the first attack on its opening performance. "The Countess Cathleen" shocked uncomprehending sections of the audience in the Antient Concert Rooms, and was received rather uproariously. The play was attacked in a pamphlet entitled "Souls for Gold," which had been circulated before the performance, on the grounds that it was both anti-Irish and anti-Catholic. That there was no point in the attack is now generally recognised, as the play shows only self-sacrifice of the noblest kind. But public indignation had been aroused, and young men were exhorted to attend at the Antient Concert Rooms to protest against "this insult to their faith." They heeded this advice so well that the assistance of the police had to be secured to keep order. Police lined the gallery, and the Irish Literary Theatre was forced to commence its life under the ill omen of police protection. It might be said, with some residuary truth, that this first demonstration set the minds of many people definitely against the whole literary and dramatic movement, and that in consequence the leaders of that movement have always been somewhat suspect to a section of the population. Even the mind of the late Edward Martyn, himself one of the founders of the theatre, was a little perturbed; and it was only after he had received clerical assurance that the play was not anti-Catholic that his doubts were set at rest. "The Countess Cathleen" has been revived on many occasions since 1899, but not as often as its merits would suggest, and never since that famous time has any faintest hint of protest been made against it.

"THE PLAYBOY." RIOTS.

Mr. Yeats has spoken of critics defending their beliefs "among a wild people, and thinking mournfully of distant cities, where nobody puts a raw potato into his pocket when he is going to hear a musical comedy." He must himself have thought mournfully of these distant cities when the raw potatoes were taken from pockets to assail himself and his beliefs. It was his belief in John M. Synge which brought forth the worst attacks, on the ground that the plays of the National Theatre Society were "immoral." The attack was focussed upon a definite objective when "In the Shadow of the Glen" was staged for the first time in October, 1903. Synge was accused of being "a French decadent," whose only purpose was the perversion of the Irish mind. It was persistent propaganda of that kind, carried on over a long period, that finally produced the outburst at the first presentation of "The Playboy of the Western World," and the echoes of that outburst have not yet ceased to reverberate around the world. They were responsible for the "arrest" of the Abbey Theatre Company in America twenty years ago, and they are at the bottom of the noisy demonstrations that are still made against the play in America by organised bodies. Opposition to the grant of a patent to the Abbey Theatre in 1904 was grounded upon the alleged "immorality" of the plays presented by the National Theatre Society, and it was seriously alleged that the Society had produced a play "which had attacked the sanctity of marriage." So the plays of Synge had already excited suspicion and hostility, and it was not very surprising, therefore, that the production of "The Playboy of the Western World" should have led to scenes such as are rarely witnessed in a theatre and a vehemence of opinion such is rarely excited by any play. The first production was quiet enough, but as the week progressed opposition became more and more marked. At last the storm broke in real earnest. Early in the second act the disturbances began with boohing, cat-calling, yelling and clattering of boots upon the floor. Missiles of many kinds were hurled on to the stage. The police had to be called in, and every evening afterwards there were riots in the theatre When the demonstrators were removed from the theatre the fights were resumed outside, and by the end of the week about 500 police were needed to keep order in the theatre and its vicinity. The play was afterwards debated, and in the course of his speech Mr. Yeats said: "Gentlemen of the little clubs and societies, do not mistake the meaning of our victory; it means something for us, but more for you When the curtain of 'The Playboy' fell on Saturday night in the midst of . . . . 'thunders of applause,' I am confident that I saw the rise in this country of a new thought, a new opinion, that we had long needed." But that was not to be the end of the controversy.

THE LESSER DISTURBANCES.

The disturbances since those associated with "The Playboy" have been comparatively insignificant, but on at least one occasion Mr. Yeats scored rather neatly against the disturbers. The play on the occasion was Conal O'Riordan's "The Piper," in the course of which there is some strong language and the playing of the tune generally known as "The British Grenadiers." The tune was greeted with uproarious noises, and when the curtain fell at the end of the play Mr. Yeats came before it and pointed out in his most suave manner that the tune against which demonstration had been made was an old Irish folk-tune known as "The Bed of Feathers.'" So were the tables neatly turned, and opposition ceased. There was quiet afterwards until the colours were brought into the public-house in O'Casey's "The Plough and the Stars." But even that was a comparatively minor demonstration, which has never been repeated, although the play has been revived many times since. All the plays against which noisy protests have at one time been made in due course took their places in the repertory of the Abbey Theatre, and all have been more or less popular in their more recent revivals. Such plays as "Harvest," "The Pie-Dish," and "The Piper" might be revived as an experiment.

A BLIND HORSE-TRAINER.

One hears from time to time of blind men in unexpected situations, writes a correspondent, but surely the most unexpected must be that of a racehorse trainer.

Mr. Edgar Cox, who is well known on the Barbados Turf, has run a stable for many years, and, in spite of his blindness, is a successful trainer. Five of his horses won at a recent meeting. Mr. Cox trains almost entirely by sense of hearing, and claims to be able to distinguish the hoof-beats of any horse after having once heard it.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

SATYR'S SMART SCORE.

MEDIEVAL KNIGHT AGAIN FAILS: THE "JUBILEE" TO-DAY.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday Night.

RACING did not start here this afternoon until three o'clock, and there seemed to be an unusually good attendance, the weather being more like mid-summer than early May. It was good racing, too, but I am afraid that anyone who had hopes of Medieval Knight winning the Derby must have been greatly disappointed when he was beaten three lengths by Achtenan at 7lb. in the race for the Classic Trial Stakes.

NO EXCUSE.

Good odds were betted on the Beckhampton colt, who ran badly. There was no excuse this time for him, so far as I could see. He held a good place as they turned into the straight, but Achtenan went right away from him and beat him easily with a good deal more in hand than the 7lb. he was receiving.

The winner, who is by Achtoi, was bred by Captain Brassey, and is a colt full of promise. Frank Butters did very little with him last year, and he finished third behind Colombo and Valerius on this course last October. He was well beaten the other day by Dignitary at Epsom, but the extra distance here was all in his favour.

Bondsman, an American colt trained by Captain Boyd-Rochfort, improved on recent running when he finished third, with Primero fourth. If the Beckhampton stable is to win the Derby this year it is more likely to be with Lo Zingaro or its new purchase, the French colt, Easton.

A FINE PERFORMANCE.

One of the best performances I have seen for some time was that of Lord Carnarvon's colt, Satyr, in winning the Stewards' Plate under 9st. 1lb. from a big field of useful three-year-olds. He had a length and a half and half a length to spare from Garry and Shalfleet, but this hardly gives an index of how easily he won. They had not gone more than a furlong when he was galloping over them, and he won pulling up.

Bred by Mr. M. C. Carroll, who sold him as a yearling at Doncaster, this colt looks like proving himself a great sprinter. He was placed high in the Free Handicap last season, and once again we had the two-year-old form of last season working out well, which suggests that our three-year-old form this year is exceptionaly good.

Old Saint Reynard gave a splendid performance when he came from behind and passed half a dozen horses to get up and win the Ypsilanti Plate by a head and a short head from Ballyorgan and Polly Stephens, who had done most of the pace-making. Gordon Richards excelled himself on the old horse, and his gallant victory was greeted with a storm of cheers.

BIG PRICE FOR PLATER.

After he had won the Sunbury Selling Plate by two lengths and a short head from Royal Venture and Bill of the Play, Trio, a gelding by Fantomas, who cost 55 guineas as a yearling to his trainer, W. Smyth, was well bid for. Jack Jarvis, who once trained his sire, kept bidding for him, but he was beaten by Captain Bell, who bought him for Lady Ludlow at 1,025 guineas. This was one of the hottest selling plates that we have seen this season.

Mr. R. C. Dawson, who trains Satyr for Lord Carnarvon, won another race, the Fulwell Selling Plate, with Trelissick. This son of Tolgus, whom Vicomte de Fontarce owns, started at 20 to 1, and won by a length from another 20 to 1 chance, Tweedledum.

Mr. Persse had the favourite for the last race, the Spring Plate, Adonis, a gelding by Winalot, who won from the Naldera colt.

SELECTIONS.

It should be a good race for the Jubilee to-morrow, and there will be a number of horses fancied, like Leighon, Montrose, Snooker, Scarlet Tiger and Cotoneaster. Some good fillies have won this race, including Sirenia and Donnetta. I very much like in to-morrow's race the chance of a filly, who was second in the Oaks last year, and is well expected to win this race. The danger to her may be another filly, Cotoneaster.

SOLFATARA,

The Minting T.Y.O. Stakes may be won by DEBRETT and the Victor Wild Plate by DEMOCRAT.

GALTEE MORE.

VOTE FOR MONTROSE.

BECKHAMPTON COLT FANCIED FOR THE "JUBILEE."

THE Great "Jubilee" Handicap is the most important race decided at Kempton Park, and I anticipate some keen wagering on to-day's event, even though the ante-post betting indicates that Leighon is something in the nature of a "good thing."

The chance of Leighon is obvious; for when he dead-heated with Diamantee in the Rosebery Stakes over this course and distance in March he was trying to concede the latter 12lb. He is now 7lb. better treated with Diamantee, and also has a 5lb. pull with Scarlet Tiger, who was judged to be four lengths behind.

The only thing against Leighon is that he may find the going unsuitable. He must have soft conditions to reproduce his best form, and as the weather has been fine and sunny in the Sunbury district for two or three days the odds against him are slightly increased.

Statesman has class on his side, and although he failed this season in the Liverpool and Newbury Cups it is quite on the cards that he will do much better here. For one thing he will appreciate this course, which provides a pretty severe gallop, and the two races he has had have probably brought him on a good deal. Those who recall his great effort in the Derby last year will certainly not want to leave him out.

I cannot see Scarlet Tiger reversing the form with Leighon, because, although that was his first race of the season, he was backed in a manner suggesting that his connections were satisfied with his condition.

I am sure that The Blue Boy will be a danger; however; for he shaped well at Newmarket, where the distance was all too short for him. He wound up last season with a fine victory in the Free Handicap for three-year-olds, over ten furlongs, beating, among others, Snooker and Generous Gift. He can now meet Snooker on similar terms, and has to allow Generous Gift, who was fourth, only 1lb. As I know that he has made more than normal improvement, and is well fancied, I think he can be depended upon to account for the pair again.

Attwood has not run this year, and Thrapston has little or no chance with Statesman or Leighon on the Liverpool form. Montrose is a different propesition, as on last year's form he has an excellent chance. This season he started favourite for the City and Suburban, and ran as though in need of a a race. He came late on the scene to finish fourth, and I shall be surprised if he does not step up a place or two now that he has been sharpened up.

The Abbot will need to show tremendous improvement on anything he has done so far if he is to win, and there is more to like about Cotoneaster and Town Crier. Although Cotoneaster will be making her first appearance of the year, she is said to be fit, and I remember that her owner struck out the Oaks winner, Chatelaine, at the first acceptance stage.

My chief fancies are The Blue Boy, Montrose, and Leighon. The last-named will be at a short price, and as latest advices are very favourable to the chance of

MONTROSE,

I shall recommend his support each way.

The best bet of the day at Kempton may be on

for the Victor Wild Plate. This horse has been assisting the Derby candidate, Windsor Lad, in his work, and is thoroughly fit.

LONDON BETTING.

FINAL CALL-OVER ON "JUBILEE."

There was a fair amount of wagering at the call-over on the "Jubilee" and Derby at the Victoria Club, London, last night. For the "Jubilee" Leighon was a firm favourite at 4 to 1, being backed to win £5,000. Montrose was noticed to win £3,000 and Scarlet Tiger £3,500. Solfatara was firm at 1,000 to 90 (four times), and Generous Gift and Cotoneaster were each backed to win about £3,000. Minor sums went on the others dealt with. Prices:—

NEWMARKET HINTS FOR TO-DAY.

NEWMARKET, Friday.

At Kempton Park to-morrow I have no fancy for The Abbot, who is one of our seven runners for the Great "Jubilee" Stakes, and I prefer Diamantee to Town Crier and Generous Gift. Diamantee likes the Kempton Park track, and she dead-heated with Leighon for the Rosebery Stakes there in March, when Scarlet Tiger was four lengths away third. Scarlet Tiger is more full of muscle now, and carries a much brighter gloss on his coat. He is trained to the minute.

Solfatara is also in perfect trim, and her preparation has been splendidly timed by Basil Jarvis. She ran well for a mile and a quarter in last year's Oaks, and I have a very great regard for her chance to-morrow. For the winner, however, I depend upon

SCARLET TIGER (nap).

My other fancies at Kempton are:—3.0, Lady Jemima; 3.30, Exaggerated; 4.35, Ellanar; 5.5, Voice of Spring; 5.35, Pip Emma.

My fancies at Ripon are:—2.0, Welcome Dawn; 2.30, Santa Lucia; 3.0, Monte Carlo; 3.30, Swoon; 4.0, Lady Sudeley; 4.30, Lady-in-Waiting (next best).

A FINE STEEPLECHASER

AVONDALE WINS MacARDLE CUP AT DUNDALK.

THE enterprise of the Dundalk executive in providing a valuable steeplechase to be run for at their May meeting met with ample award, for the race was in every way a success. Few more interesting steeplechases have been seen throughout the season, and it was won by a good horse, Avondale, the property of Mr. A. P. Harris. Mr. W. S. Barber, one of the stewards of the meeting, was always a strong believer in promoting a well-endowed steeplechase as a means for popularising the meeting, and his untiring efforts in this direction were in every respect rewarded. The winner of the race, as well as gaining a year's possession of the Macardle Memorial Cup, received 225 sovs. in stake money, and the owner of the second and third horse received 45 sovs. and 30 sovs. respectively.

A SOUTH OF IRELAND WINNER.

The field, which numbered nine runners, included Cottage View, Lass of Rheims, Breagan and Capitulate, all of whom had shown considerable promise as steeplechasers in previous races; but all were beaten by the South of Ireland trained horse, Avondale, whose attention previously had been mostly confined to flat racing and who won the King's Plate at the Curragh April meeting.

Lass of Rheims and Moydrum were the pacemakers for most of the way, and the field kept close company until approaching the second last fence, where Speakeasy II., when going well, came down Avondale and Moydrum then drew away from the others, and in a splendid finish Avondale won by a length. Cottage View, who made a bad mistake early in the race, was never going well until close home he was running on and jumping better, and he filled third position, some six lengths behind Moydrum.

DOUBLE FOR MR. ARNOTT.

The chief race apart the racing was interesting, and backers of favourites had a right royal time, Avondale being the only non-favourite to score Mr. M. Arnott, whose luck turned when he saddled two winners at Longford, scored another double now with Millennium, who won the Castletown Hurdle Race in his usual accomplished style, and Linby Hall, the property of Mr. R. J. Duggan. The latter, though now a six years old, had not previously run, and his style of winning the Tally-Ho Plate from a big field of runners would suggest that he might be a really good horse. Mr. Arnott purchased him on behalf of Mr. Duggan from Mr. Justice Wylie. He is by Linby out of Little Hall, and was bred by Mr. Quinlan, of Tipperary.

F. E. McKEEVER'S SUCCESSFUL RETURN.

Another trainer to score a double was Mr. R. H. Walker. He won the Northern Steeplechase with the Duke de Stacpoole's Ardanew, who gave F. E. McKeever his first ride since his enforced absence from the saddle through injuries received by the fall of Millennium in a steeplechase at Naas. McKeever also steered his other winner, Ballymoe, who was making a re-appearance on an Irish racecourse after a more or less successful stay in England during the last jumping season. Cloncowan, who has been sold, was not a runner for this race, Mrs. Crofts being represented instead by Biddles.

Joe Canty, who is now riding with all his old-time artistry, was seen at his best when getting home Anna's Pride a neck in front of Peppernoot to win the Ravensdale Plate.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

THE PROFESSIONAL GAME.

TO-DAY'S RUGBY LEAGUE MATCH AT SHELBOURNE PARK.

(Starting time, 3.30.)

DUBLIN Rugby football followers will have their first opportunity this afternoon of witnessing what is claimed by its devotees to be the fastest football game in the world—namely, Rugby League, the professional code. There are various differences in the rules of this game compared with Rugby as we know it here, and in all cases they are designed to speed up the play and make it attractive to the spectator. The teams in opposition this afternoon will be Wigan, the League champions, and Warrington, one of their strongest rivals, and the Hospitals' Trust have put up a trophy for the winner. Both teams will be at full strength, and the players of principal interest here will be Sullivan, the Wigan captain, described as the finest full-back in the world, and a deadly goal-kicker; J. C. Morley, a brilliant three-quarter on Welsh Rugby Union teams; W. J. Shankland, the Warrington captain, regarded as the most dangerous three-quarter in the game, and an Australian international; and T. Griffin, the only Irishman taking part, who played for Garryowen and in Irish trials. Unlike the majority of ex-Rugby Union players, he has been a big success since changing over.

What the spectators to-day are likely to find is an absence of that scrappy, spoiling play which occurs so frequently in the amateur game, for the differences in the rules are all designed to get the ball away at the greatest possible speed from the scrum and out to the three-quarters. As kicking directly into touch incurs a penalty, there will probably be much less of this also, while the forward play will chiefly consist of loose rushes or bouts of close passing. On a dry ground the game is likely to be a revelation in speed to what we are accustomed to.

DIFFERENCES IN RULES.

The principal differences in the rules are as follows:—

Scoring.—In the Rugby League a goal counts two points, and this applies to drop goals and penalties. A try counts three points. It is not permitted to kick a goal from a mark.

Team Line Up.—There are only thirteen players to a Rugby League side, compared with fifteen players in the Rugby Union.

The formation of the backs is the same. There are six forwards, and they pack three, two, one.

Kicking to Touch.—A player is not allowed to kick a ball direct into touch except from a penalty. To find touch a player must kick the ball so that it "pitches" on the playing side of the line before bouncing into touch.

If a player kicks a ball direct into touch (except from a penalty) the ball is taken back to the place where it was kicked and a scrum formed there.

There is no line-up in the Rugby League when the ball finds touch properly. A scrum is formed at a spot exactly opposite where the ball went into touch and at a distance of ten yards from the touch-line.

Scrum-Half Rule.—The most important variation between the League and Union games is the rule designed to keep the game more open. Once the scrum-half puts the ball into the scrum he must retire immediately behind the scrum and on no account must he advance beyond the last man in his pack until the ball emerges.

Play the Ball Rule.—The "play the ball" rule of the Rugby League is entirely different from that of the Rugby Union. A League player who is tackled and brought down must immediately get up and put the ball on the ground in front of him, when it can then be played by either side in any direction. Only one player from each side is permitted to play the ball, and one player from each side (to act as half-back) is allowed to stand immediately behind the player playing the ball.

Dead Ball.—When the defending side make the ball dead in the Rugby League, the drop out takes place from the defending side's try line and not from the 25 yard line.

The purpose is to make the full-backs run the ball out.

GOLF.

AMERICA IN THE LEAD.

TWO UP ON FOURSOMES IN THE WALKER CUP MATCH.

AMERICA gained a valuable lead of three matches to one in the foursomes which constitute the first day's play in the Walker Cup contest against Great Britain at St. Andrews yesterday. Eight singles will be played to-day. America has never yet lost this trophy, and the ease with which they gained two of their victories yesterday, as well as the poor play of the majority of the British team, makes it appear that the visitors will continue their sequence of successes.

In the leading match in which Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered opposed Johnny Goodman, the American open champion, and Lawson Little, two golfers who never before had competed in Great Britain, and therefore whose acquaintance with all the curious runs of St. Andrews has only been acquired over a period of ten days, the exhibition of the home players was deplorable at times in its very feebleness. The two players who were placed in the forefront of the British effort to repel the Americans required for their first round 85 strokes to go round the course, which both by the frequency of their games must know by heart.

WETHERED'S WEAKNESS.

Wethered was the broken link, and as the game progressed he seemed to lose every shred of confidence. The circumstance that the British leaders were no fewer than eight down at the end of the morning round must have had a temperamental effect on the remainder of the team. Harry Bentley and Eric Fiddian, the two young English golfers, after making a praiseworthy recovery from an early set-back, badly cracked in the second round, and from their satisfactory position of square at the third hole they lost six of the next eight holes.

The Hon. Michael Scott, the British captain, partnered by S. L. McKinlay in the last game, put up a stout defence before going down at the thirty-fourth. They tasted the sweets of ascendancy at the first hole, but they lost their advantage at the third, and were never again in front until the twenty-first. A brave enough struggle followed, but the golf was never quite of the brilliance which should be associated with the supreme amateur international contest, and the significance of the American victory is increased by the circumstance that Egan and Marston are the two oldest golfers on the visiting side.

Jack McLean and Eric McRuvie, an all-Scottish combination, put up the most brilliant play of the day on either side by defeating Francis Ouimet and George Dunlap. In the morning they were round in 73, to finish 2 up, and for the sixteen holes necessary in the second round they were 4 over 4's. They achieved success because of the ability of McLean to place his iron shots in close proximity to the flag. That was precisely where the Americans in the other matches were so superior over their opponents. They possess the ability to play all distances of iron shots somewhere near the hole, and in the thirty-six holes match such accuracy in striking the ball does bring its inevitable reward.

St. Andrews is a course by itself, and from time immemorial golfers have regarded the run-up shot as an essential qualification in circumventing the little hillocks and gentle slopes of the ground in the vicinity of the putting greens. The Americans favour the "all-air" route, and Little is a brilliant exponent of how to strike the ball to a great height and bring it to a stop on the fast and fiery greens. It was a masterly exhibition by this golfer, and he was well supported by Goodman.

It was a gorgeous day, perfect for the game, and the matches were followed by large crowds, especially the one in which McLean and McRuvie figured, but throughout the day there was an absence of enthusiasm. The superiority of the Americans in all but one match was so very apparent that the spectators became imbued with the feeling that they were marching round watching the first stage in another annihilation of British golfing prestige.

FIRST QUALIFYING ROUND FOR BRITISH WOMEN'S TITLE.

The first qualifying round for the British Women's Championship was played yesterday at Porthcawl. Miss Aline de Gunzbourg, the Parisian golfer, who was runner-up for the British girls' title eighteen months ago, tied with Miss Diana Fishwick and Miss Molly Gourlay for the lead at 78. Miss Dorothy Pearson finished the day worse off than any of the national title holders. Her 91 placed her in a very dangerous position for an English champion. Miss Eithne Pentony, the Irish champion, would appear to require improvement on her first round of 88 if she is to enter the match-play stages. On the other hand, Miss Couper, Scotland's title-holder, and Miss Mary Jestyn Jeffreys, the holder of the Welsh crown, ended the day well up among the leaders.

Mrs. J. B. Walker (Island) finished five strokes behind those in the triple tie for the lead. Her wooden club play was up to a fine standard, and she showed herself to be a rival to any other championship aspirant at Porthcawl.

Miss Dorothy Pim in her 83 showed iron play which brought much admiration from the onlookers. Miss Daisy Ferguson, who finished the day in a comfortable position for probable qualification, was not satisfied with her short game in her round of 84. Mrs. E. L. Kidd finished late in the day with 86, being unsteady at times. Still, should she show but slight improvement to-day, she ought to be safe for the match play stages. Two strokes in front of Mrs. Kidd was Miss Ellis (Royal County Down), while Miss Jackson, many times Irish champion, was too inconsistent to do better than 87.

The greatest disappointment, from the Irish point of view, was Miss Pentony, the Irish champion. She was not favoured by fortune, but she did not play well, cutting her drives and being weak on several occasions in recovery in her round of 88. Miss M. Fitzgibbon (Greystones) in her 89 was inaccurate in her approach play, while Miss Patricia Sherlock (Hermitage) had a similar score. Miss Blake, Miss Sherlock's clubmate, had 91, which does not give her much chance of going into the match play, and Miss Hilda Wallis (Foxrock) almost automatically put herself out of consideration for a place in the championship on account of her 94.

FIRST ROUND SCORES.

THE JUNIOR CUP SEMI-FINALS.

A HERMITAGE-KILLINEY FINAL.

HERMITAGE and Killiney will meet in the Dublin Section Final of the Junior Cup at Milltown to-day at 2.15, and the winners will play the survivors of the "outside" clubs for the distinction of representing Leinster at Rosslare in the Irish Close Championship week.

The Lucan team last evening gave their best display of the week against Bray, but they lost the first match, J. E. Dalton being beaten by two holes by D. R. Roantree. The Bray man played very good golf after losing the first two holes, and it was an excellent finish. The match was level at the 13th, but Dalton won the 14th for the lead. He, however, required three putts at the 15th, which he lost, and Roantree forged ahead at the 16th. The Bray man was dormy one, and also took the home hole.

P. M. Corcoran produced some "fireworks" against P. Byrne to be four under fours at the 15th, and Gerald Downes, out in 35 against Wallen, was level with bogey, as was James Gibney in his match with A. J. McMullen, the three matches ending at the 15th, while Commandant Feely played sound golf to beat B. Scannell at the 17th.

After "Bob" Beattie had given Castle a good start against Killiney the match went against his side, who won only one of the remaining matches. Beattie put up a 3 against H. G. Moore to start with, and he also won the second in 4. A fine 3 at the 5th by Moore improved his chances, but Castle was 2 up at the turn. Moore got one back at the 10th, and then five holes were halved in two over four. Beattie, however, took the 16th in 3 and the 17th in 5 to win by 3 and 1. R. Ross-Todd, G. Walker and George Malcolm won their matches to put their side on top.

AUSTRALIANS' SECOND VICTORY.

With only four wickets standing, Cambridge University required 255 runs to save the innings defeat against the Australians at Cambridge yesterday; but, thanks to some fine hitting by Cox, who was well backed up by Davies and Grimshaw, the University put on 92 more runs before the last wicket fell. The Australians' fielding was rather slack, Cox being missed at the slip early on. The following are the scores of the various matches:—

At Cambridge. Australians won by an innings and 163 runs. Australians, 481 (for 5, dec.) (W. H. Ponsford 229 not out, W. A. Brown 105, L. Darling 98). Cambridge University, 158 (Grimmett 9 for 74) and 160 (H. R. Cox 51 not out).

At Lord's. Gloucester won by 60 runs. Gloucester, 351 (B. H. Lyon 91, Sinfield 83, Hammond 72) and 119 (Peebles 5 for 53); Middlesex, 213 (Hendren 53, Goddard 8 for 132) and 197 (H. J. Enthover 49, Parker 4 for 46).

ATHLETICS AND CYCLING.

TO-DAY'S SCHOOLS MEETING.

171 COMPETITORS FOR CROKE PARK.

THERE are three welcome additions to the list of entries for the Co. Dublin Colleges' and Schools' Championships, at Croke Park to-day—Colaiste Caoimhin, Colaiste Einde and Colaiste Muire. They bring the total to twenty, and the number of competitors (171) is a record for the meeting.

This is how each school will be represented:—

Blackrock, 12 boys; Castleknock, 12; C. Caoimhin, 5; C. Einde, 1; C. Muire, 10; C.U.S., 7; High School, 10; King's Hospital, 13; Morgan's, 5; O'Connell's, 13; Presentation, 9; St. Mary's, 12; St. Enda's, 6; Synge Street, 9; Terenure, 12; Wesley, 10; St. Andrew's, 3; St. Columba's, 5; Westland Row, 12 Mountjoy, 5.

For the Olympic Trophy and the two shields the competition is certain to be exceptionally keen. In training many of the boys have been achieving feats better than any accomplished at the meeting, and, provided the lads are not affected by "stage fright," "records" for these championships should be sent up in the sprint, jumps and shot.

The Minister for Education has promised to attend, and everything points to an excellent meeting. The first event is timed for 2.30.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE NOVICE EVENTS.

The University College novices' scratch events were brought to a conclusion at University Park, Terenure, last evening. The College sports will be held next Saturday. Details:—

GAELIC GAMES.

MANY CHANGES IN DUBLIN TEAM.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE FINAL AT CASTLEBAR.

(BY PAT'O.)

DUBLIN'S final placings for to-morrow's game at Castlebar in the final of the Football League are: McDonnell (goal), Brennan, McCann, F. Cavanagh (backs), O'Shea, Hickey and P. Cavanagh (halves), McMahon and Beggs (centres), Dowling and O'Brien (wings), Fitzgerald, Wellington, Perry and Keating (forwards). The team shows many changes from the side which performed so well through earlier rounds. The illness of M. Kelly caused the selectors to set about reconstruction, and on current form Perry, McMahon and Keating have found favour. The selection of the Young Ireland hurler came in the nature of a big surprise. His form for O'Tooles against Garda, however, has found him his place, and he is so tireless around centre that he was probably picked to mark George Ormsby, of Mayo, the most dangerous mid-field force in present-day football.

MAYO CONFIDENT.

News from Mayo tells of complete confidence, and they pin their faith to the brilliant fifteen which swept all before them in their section of the League against Meath, Galway and Louth, and held Cavan to a draw. Mayo's team will probably be:—Burke (goal), Loughlin, Quinn and Kelly; Regan, Rafferty and Collins; Flannelly and Ormsby; Carney and Laffey; Courell, Kenny, Munelly and Moclair.

FIXTURES.

Castlebar—Mayo v. Dublin (Nat. League Final).

Birr—Kilkenny v. Offaly (M.H.), 2.30; Offaly v. Laoighis (S.H.), 3.45.

Croke Park—U.C.D. v. Garda (S.H., semi-final), 1.30; Howth v. Westerners (S.F.), 12.0.

Parnell Park—Army Metro. v. Faughs, 11.45; Erin's Hopes v. Parnells, 5.0; Young Irelands v. Civil Service, 6.30.

Swords—U.C.D. v. Finngallians, 5.30; O'Dwyers v. McDermotts, 7.

Limerick—Thomond Feis Tournament. Limerick v. Clare. Cork v. Tipperary.

LABOUR DISPUTES IN DUBLIN.

THE FLOUR-MILLING INDUSTRY.

The Irish Transport and General Workers' Union will take a ballot at Liberty Hall, Dublin, to-morrow, upon the proposals for increased wages in the flour-milling industry. It is expected that the wages increases will be finally settled at the meeting of the Joint Council for the industry which takes place next week.

As a result of recent unrest amongst the deep-water dockers at the Port of Dublin, negotiations will be resumed to-day between Messrs. Palgrave Murphy, Ltd., and the Irish Seamen's and Port Workers' Union. The negotiations will be in connection with the recent agreement made by the parties.

The Irish Transport and General Workers' Union announced yesterday that if a settlement was not reached in the meantime, Messrs. Dixon's soap-workers would not resume work on Monday morning.

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN QUIET.

BANKS BUSY.

Dublin Stock Market was quiet yesterday. There was very little doing outside the sections mainly devoted to local securities. The Industrial list was stagnant, the further rise in Dunlops being the only transaction of importance.

Free State Funds were firm, and Land Bonds rose to 112. War Loan dropped 2s. 6d.

Banks were firm and busy, with improvements in Munster and Leinster, Nationals and Provincial New. Northern "A" lost 1s., and Bank Stock and Hibernians were unchanged.

The shadow of labour trouble is hanging over Railway Stocks. Great Southern Pref. and Guaranteed and Great Northern Guaranteed were weaker. Dublin Tram Ord. and B Debs. repeated last prices.

Guinness Units were three halfpence better, and Power Debs were unchanged. Cairnes Debs. marked 78. Bolands Debs. rose ⅜ to 10½. Alliance Gas, Pim Prefs. Chocolate Debs., Burke Debs and Artisans' Dwellings were all unchanged. Ranks (Ireland) rose 3d and the Prefs. 2½.

LONDON IRREGULAR.

BRITISH FUNDS STEADIER.

Although the volume of business passing in the London Stock markets as a whole yesterday showed a marked falling off, a number of outstanding features of activity and strength were in evidence, and substantially improved values were registered at the close in several instances. Markets were not devoid of dull features, however, and thus the list of price movements recorded at the close presented an irregular appearance. Following Thursday's burst of strength, Oil shares developed a reactionary tendency, especially in the late dealings, and the market finished on a weak note. Mexican Eagles were adversely affected by the strike. Rubber shares remained dull on the continuance of professional profit-taking, but Mines generally disclosed a firmer trend. Kaffirs attracted a good inquiry in the afternoon and developed fresh strength, while Copper issues improved. West Africans opened on a firm note, but lost ground later.

Although the turnover in the Industrial department was on only a moderate scale a number of bright features were apparent. Dunlops were favoured and Finlay (J.) rose smartly, while McNamara, Siemens, and Triplex were all appreciably firmer, the last-mentioned attracting attention on favourable trade reports. Among Motors Rolls-Royce developed fresh strength and Humber Prefs. improved. Marks and Spencer, on the other hand, failed to hold Thursday's advance, and "Emmies," London Brick, and certain of the Textiles lost the turn.

While it cannot be said that there was any material expansion in the volume of business passing in the Gilt-edged section, decidedly steadier conditions prevailed. Steadier conditions also pervaded the Foreign Government stock section. Japanese issues remained depressed and Belgian Sevens lost the turn. Little movement was shown among Colonial and Foreign Rails, business remaining on meagre lines. "Canpacs" however, rallied to 15¾, an advance of 1/16 on the day. American Rails disclosed an easier trend.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

TRIPLEX GLASS REVIVED.

Further support was again in evidence for several of the leading home issues in the Industrial Market yesterday; some irregularity developed during the afternoon. Most of the buying continued of a selective nature, and a fair turnover was reported in some instances. Motor and Aviation shares received a good attention on favourable trade reports, Rolls Royce being prominent. A renewed demand was witnessed for Triplex Glass, most of the buying emanating from the provinces. Dunlops were well supported, in anticipation of an advance in tyre prices next week.

The trans-Atlantic counters remained rather uncertain in their movements, but some improvement occurred in the late dealings.

Cables and wireless stocks continued a dull market.

Some irregularity was noticeable among Motor shares. Austins continued a firm spot. Humbers were also in request. On the other hand, Singers fell another 6d. to 25s., and shrinkages of a few pence were shown by Fords, Leylands, Standards and A.E.C.

*Close in New York, 5.11⅝.

There was not a great deal doing in the Brewery section, and prices showed no decided trend. Friary Holroyd were favoured at 46s. 6d., and City of London Preferred at 77s. 6d. Distillers were offered around 90s., and Vancouvers at 6s. 9d.

Among Tobaccos, "Cantabs" rallied to 45s., and support was again noticeable for Godfrey Phillips, while "Bats" and "Imps" were quietly steady. On the other hand, "Carreras" reacted somewhat, and United South finished slightly easier.

Movements were few and of an irregular nature in the Textile group, though a fair demand was seen for Salts (Saltaire), the Ord. moving up to 4s. 1½d. and the Prefd. to 12s. 9d. On the other hand, Patons and Baldwins reacted to 66s. 9d. English Sewing Cotton and Fine Spinners closed lower, and Woolcombers eased fractionally.

Among the leading Miscellaneous issues, Dunlops were bought on reports of an early increase in tyre prices. They touched 54s. at one time, eventually closing with a net gain of 9d. at 53s. 9d. United Molasses rallied to 22s. 9d., but Turner and Newall receded and Chemical Ord. and Defd. eased slightly. Harrisons and Crosfields Defd. were again lowered fractionally in sympathy with the easier trend in Rubbers. James Finlay were a bright spot following the "group" dividend announcement, being 2s. to the good at 81s. 3d.

The demand for Wallpaper Defd. was resumed, the shares advancing to 67s. Cement issues were rather subdued. Triplex Glass responded to renewed buying from the provinces, advancing 3s. 6d. to 87s. 6d.

RUBBER SHARES DULL.

Dull conditions again pervaded the Rubber share market yesterday, and, under the influence of a little profit taking, share values weakened afresh. The losses were usually confined to modest limits, but the downward movement was fairly general, and another lengthy list of recessions was shown at the close. Malacca, at 33s., were 9d. below the overnight level, while Linggi, at 23s. 6d., and Malayalam, at 36s. 3d., were each 6d. down. Telogoredjo went 4½d. lower to 18s., and Vallambrosa lost 3d. to 10s. 10½d. Djasinga were no better than 16s. 9d., against 17s. 3d. previously, while Highlands and Anglo-Dutch were 4½d. and 3d. lower respectively. Quiet conditions ruled in the raw material department, but towards the close a slightly firmer trend developed, and values finished rather higher. Spot and May sold 6¼d. to 6 5/16d. per pound, with July to September quoted at 6⅜d. and 6 7/16d. per pound, while October to December fetched 6⅜d., 6 13/32d., 6 15/32d. and 6 15/32d. per pound. It is expected that London stocks of rubber on Monday next will show an expansion of something like 500 tons, whilst Liverpool stocks may be 300 tons higher.

OIL SHARES EASIER.

It was demonstrated by the course of the Oil Share market yesterday that the advance which occurred on Thursday had been too rapid. As a matter of fact, the spurt had been due largely to professional operations, there being little public in the market.

The excellent showing made by the Burmah figures, together with the increased distribution and the proposal to make a bonus issue of one in three, continued to influence the market in the early hours, the shares further advancing to 5 15/32. Later, however, profit taking was encountered, and Burmahs receded to 5⅜, although this left them only 1/32 down on balance.

There was a large turnover in Burmahs, but the only other shares in which business was of an active character were Anglo-Persians and Shells.

LONDON MINING MARKET FIRMER.

PRICES BELOW THE BEST.

Interest in the Mining Market showed no signs of slackening yesterday, and although, as usual at the week-end, public business was on only a moderate scale, there was considerable activity in most departments.

The West African department still commanded considerable attention, the professional activity being supplemented by a growing public inquiry. There was, however, a good deal of profit-taking in progress and final prices were below the best.

A fair amount of business was in progress in the Kaffir department, and, although no further news was forthcoming regarding the new gold law and the E.P.D., a brighter view of the outlook was entertained. Many of the older favourites were in strong demand and rises were general throughout the list, while the few downward movements were insignificant.

Although there were no sensational movements in the Australian department, there were unmistakeable signs of growing interest. Wiluna were a strong spot, and Lake View and Star continued on the up-grade. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

New Chairman of Wiluna.

The board of the Wiluna Gold Corporation announces that, in consequence of other engagements, Mr. F. H. Hamilton has resigned the chairmanship of the corporation, and that Mr. John A. Agnew has been appointed as his successor. Mr. F. H. Hamilton is remaining on the board.

Mufulira Copper.

We are informed that it had not been possible to arrive at a basis of allotment in connection with the issue of £1,000,000 5½ per cent. Debenture Stock at 101 by Mufulira Copper Mines. The issue was very heavily over-subscribed. It is possible by working very late that allotments will be in subscribers' hands on Monday morning.

Australia's Recovery.

An extraordinary improvement in the Commonwealth Revenue position is revealed in the Treasury figures for the past ten months. After allowing for the bonus of £2,000,000 still to be paid to wheat-growers, a surplus of £500,000 is anticipated at the end of June. The estimated deficit in the Budget was £1,000,000, but the wheat payment was not included. According to the present position, there has been a definite improvement of £3,000,000, which it is anticipated will be increased by £500,000 by the end of June.

Consolidated Bank Notes.

The return of consolidated bank notes outstanding during four-weekly period ended 28th April, 1934, is as follows:—

Bank.	Quota. £	Daily Average. £
Bank of Ireland	1,760,000	1,091,049
Hibernian Bank	550,000	550,000
National Bank	1,318,000	1,041,000
Northern Bank	180,000	139,000
Munster and Leinster	900,000	900,000
Provincial Bank	649,000	512,921
Royal Bank	273,000	273,000
Ulster Bank	370,000	283,421
Total	£6,000,000	£4,790,391

The above figures do not include notes deemed to be consolidated bank notes in accordance with Section 60 (4) of the Currency Act, 1927. On the 28th April, 1934, these amounted in the aggregate to £1,198,881. (This figure on March 31 amounted to £1,206,479.)

Austrian Economic Development.

A review of the financial position of Austria is the subject of an article by Mr. H. T. N. Gaitskell in Lloyd's Bank monthly review. After dealing with the money problems which had faced Austria since the war, Mr. Gaitskell stated that the last fifteen months had been, financially speaking, very much calmer. One of the most satisfactory features of Austrian economy during recent months had been the stability and security of the exchange. "For some months now," proceeds Mr. Gaitskell, "Austria has been out of the wood of financial crisis. She has proceeded some little way along the road to economic recovery. Whether this progress will continue or not depends above all on the situation in the Danubian and Central European countries. A factor which must be regarded as discouraging, at least from the immediate standpoint, is the recent devaluation of the Czech krone. On the other hand," Mr. Gaitskell concludes, "the devaluation of the schilling and the improvement in the balance of payments, for which it must be mainly responsible, do seem to indicate that the period of post-war external disequilibrium is now over."

Cunard-White Star, Ltd.

There was registered yesterday, according to Jordans, the Cunard-White Star, Ltd., with a nominal capital of £10,000,000 in £1 shares. The object of the company is "to acquire all or any of the interests in the North Atlantic shipping trade of or formerly belonging to the Cunard Steam Navigation Company, Ltd., and the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Ltd., and to carry on the business of shipowners, etc. The directors are:—Mr F. Dutch and Rubber Restriction.

A Batavia (Java) telegram of May 11 says:—The details of the measures to put the recently concluded rubber restriction scheme into force in the Dutch East Indies were made known to-day. One of the draft decrees provides for the prohibition of export of rubber without licence and certificate of origin during four years and seven months, commencing June 1. The total basis of quotas of exports for the several years are fixed as follows.

	Dry Rubber. Metric Tons.
1934	357,632
1935	406,400
1936	450,088
1937	474,472
1938	492,760

Of these quotas the proportion of plantation rubber for each year will be, respectively:—208,532, 236,968, 252,442, 276,660, 287,324 tons.

The Government is considering a levy of export duty, varying with the several districts, on native rubber, with the object of restricting exports in this category to the desired proportions. The revenue from such duty would be applied to social measures for the benefit of the native population.

London Stock Exchange and Fixed Trusts.

It became known yesterday that the London Stock Exchange had set up a Sub-Committee to study and watch the progress of the fixed stock movement. It is acknowledged that up to the present the fixed trusts have been formed on sound lines, and at a period when the markets are favourable to their success, and if they are continued on such lines they may prove more successful than some of the similar trusts formed years ago. The Sub-Committee is to watch events and communicate any conclusions it may reach to the Stock Exchange Committee for publication if necessary, and its operations will be welcomed by the managers of the fixed trusts, as much depends upon the orderly development and control of fixed trusts obtaining their resources from the small investor.

TREASURY BILL RATE HIGHER.

Preliminary results of yesterday's Treasury bill tenders indicate an average rate of allotment of roughly 17s. 6d. per cent. This compares with last week's average of just under 17s. 2d. per cent. Tenders dated Monday to Friday at £99 15s. 7d. receive 28 per cent., and above in full, while tenders dated Saturday at £9 15s. 8d. receive allotment and above in full. Following the allotment, bill rates were firmer in the open market. A few deals were done in the "hot" Treasuries at ⅞ per cent., while three months' Bank bills were usually called 15/16 per cent.

Silver rallied after Thursday's sharp relapse, prices being fixed 1/16d. higher at 19¼d. for spot and 19⅜d. per ounce for forward delivery.

Gold was 1d. higher at 136s. 1d. per fine ounce. About £416,000 of the metal was on offer, and was taken on Continental account

Extremely quiet conditions were experienced in the Foreign Exchange Market yesterday, and movements of the principal rates were within narrower limits than for some time. Thus, the range of the dollar was no more than ½c., while the sterling franc exchange moved between limits of less than ¼fr. Rates were steady around the previous closing levels until late in the afternoon, but towards the close sterling developed a firmer tendency in terms of both the dollar and the European gold currencies. German marks were weaker.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

Ashanti Goldfields.—Interim dividend of 20 per cent., less tax, for 1932-33. Shareholders received two interims of 100 per cent., while a final dividend of 20 per cent. and a similar cash bonus were paid on the increased capital. The present payment is thus equivalent to 40 per cent. on the capital existing at the time of the interims last year. It is now stated that the directors have decided to increase interims in order that they should be more in proportion with the final payment.

Buchanan-Dewar.—Net profit of £803,858 for the year, against £770,918 for 1932-33. Final Ordinary dividend of 11¾ per cent., making 18¼ per cent., less tax, compared with the previous total of 17½ per cent. The carry forward is slightly lower at £109,429.

British Electric Traction.—Revenue for the year ended March 31, 1934, amounted to £421,272, compared with £400,017 in 1932-33, while net profit increased by £16,904 to £262,026. The directors recommend payments of 6 per cent. on the Cumulative Participating Preference stock, and a Participating dividend of 2 per cent., making the full dividend of 8 per cent. (of which 3 per cent. has already been paid); 8 per cent. on the Preferred-Ordinary stock (of which 4 per cent. has already been paid), and 5 per cent. in cash on Deferred-Ordinary stock (of which 2½ per cent. has already been paid), and a Scrip bonus of 10 per cent. Payments will be made less tax, and are at the same rates as those for 1932-33.

Chesters Northgate Brewery Co.—Actual interim dividend of 3¾ per cent., less tax, on the Ordinary Shares.

Dahan Rubber Estates (1933).—The report for the eleven months ended December 31 last states that the company acquired the assets of the Dahan Rubber Estates, Ltd. (in liquidation), subject to its liabilities, and commenced business from February 1, 1933. Debenture interest and expenditure in London absorbed £1,412, from which was deducted the working profit and interest amounting to £373, leaving a debit balance of £1,039 to go forward.

East India and Ceylon Tea.—Dividend of 6 per cent., less tax, on the Cumulative Preference for the twelve months ended 30th June, 1932.

F. W. Woolworth and Co.—Interim dividend of 30 p.c., less tax. For two previous years interims were at the same rate, and last year there was a final payment of 50 per cent.

Forestal Land, Timber and Railways Co.—The full accounts disclose that, while trading profits, etc., increased from £25,226 to £85,161, the big increase in the net amount available was due to the transfer of various reserves amounting to £97,100, against £70,564 in 1932. Allowing for these transfers and other special credits, the actual net profit for the year was £3,317, this comparing with a loss in 1932 of £42,225. The Preference dividend has been paid with the aid of draft on the carry forward, which is reduced to £4,002. It is stated that difficulties surrounding business all over the world tended to increase during the year. The balance sheet shows that the bank overdraft of £82,973 has been repaid, and the amount due to a subsidiary reduced from £122,255 to £56,665.

Ingersoll.—Net loss £1,978, against loss of £13,693 in 1932. Debit balance on profit and loss is raised to £13,190. Preference dividend paid to December, 1931.

Kalidjeroek Rubber.—Dividend on the 8 per cent. Cumulative Participating Preference Shares for the years 1931-32, 1932-33 and 1933-34, payable on June 1st next, less tax.

Kepong (Malay) Rubber.—Dividend of 5 per cent. out of accumulated profits for current year, making 10 per cent., against nil.

Manor Powis Coal.—No Preference payment for year to March 31 last. Dividend paid to March, 1933.

White Horse Distillers.—Net profit to March 31, £266,642, against £244,057.

Imperial Continental Gas.—Final dividend on the Ordinary capital of 7 per cent. actual. This makes 12 per cent. for the year. (Same.)

Wales, Ltd.—Net profit £15,622, against £11,916 in 1932. Transfer to reserve for contingencies £1,000, to general reserve £5,000. Final dividend on Ordinary of 7½ per cent., making 12½ per cent., free of tax. (Last year 10 per cent. Carry forward, £7,183.)

Chubwa Tea.—Dividend of 15 per cent. on Ordinary, making 20 per cent., less tax, for the year, against 5 per cent.

East African Power and Lighting.—Net profit £49,692, against £54,106 in 1932. Transfer to general reserve £3,500. Final dividend of 4 per cent. on Ordinary, making 7 per cent. (same), leaving to be carried forward £10,320 (£9,628).

Standard Tea of Ceylon.—Net profit £30,056, after writing down value of Ubber Estate by £1,500, against profit of £30,950 in 1932. Final dividend of 12½ per cent., making 25 per cent., less tax. (Last year 20 per cent. and to carry forward £35,745.)

DUBLIN CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

ALLEGED FRAUD IN SALE.

JUDGE'S DIRECTION TO JURY.

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

JAMES S. McMAHON, auctioneer, 182 Merrion road, Dublin, pleaded not guilty to obtaining £210 from Mark Holmes, with intention to defraud, and to an alternative charge of fraudulently converting £175.

He was defended by Mr. K. Dockrell, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.). Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

Mark Holmes, who was described as a foreman at a sugar and tea store at the North Wall, and whose address was given as 4 Castleforbes road, North Wall, Dublin, said that in the second week of January last he began negotiations with McMahon for the purchase of a house called Anradore, at Barnhill road, Dalkey, and on January 20th he called at McMahon's office and handed over £210—being a deposit of £175 and auctioneer's fees amounting to £35—for which he received a receipt. He signed a contract to complete the purchase of the house, the total price of which was to be £700. On February 19th he went to McMahon's offices, but found them closed, and also failed to find McMahon at his private house.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dockrell, Holmes said that he never asked McMahon for the money. He was not aware that on February 19th McMahon had been adjudged bankrupt.

Dr. H. J. W. Downey, solicitor, 118 Grafton street, testified that he was one of the trustees of the will of the late Philip Byrne, of Stillorgan, and that the house, Annamore, was part of the estate. He instructed McMahon to put the house on his books for sale at £800. It was to have been offered also by auction, but was withdrawn owing to a defect in the title. Witness had a letter from McMahon stating that he had been offered £700, and that a contract had been signed. After discussion with his co-trustees, he told McMahon a better offer was required. He received no money from McMahon, nor was McMahon authorised to accept a deposit on an offer of £700.

At the end of the case for the prosecution, Mr. Dockrell asked for a direction. While he was stating his grounds, the judge gave the jury permission to retire.

After he had been speaking for some minutes, Mr. Dockrell was stopped by the judge, who said that grounds on which a direction might be given were that McMahon had not been guilty of misrepresentations, although he thought that if McMahon had been indicted on misappropriation of Holmes's money the jury would have had no difficulty in finding him guilty. It would strengthen Mr. Dockrell's hand, he added, if the money were paid over to Mr. Holmes, though no undertaking would be given.

Mr. Byrne, the prisoner's solicitor, then went to the dock and consulted with his client. He returned and handed up to the Bench deposit receipts for £210.

The judge accepted the receipts, and said that it seemed to him that it would be unsafe to leave it to the jury to convict on misrepresentation.

The jury was recalled, and the Judge told them that he did not think there was sufficiently strong evidence of fraudulent misrepresentation by the accused man to entitle him to leave the case to them. "I am not saying that the conduct of McMahon is above reproach; I think it is most reprehensible, but it did not bring it within the criminal code. You will please find him not guilty on all counts."

McMahon was accordingly discharged.

PROVISIONS.

LONDON.—BUTTER—The market displayed firm features during the past week, and prices have further improved under a good demand. Perhaps the most important factor at the moment is the marked increase in consumption following lower prices, while the outlook is considered more healthy in view of lighter prospective supplies from the Colonies. Australian production is also declining rapidly, and supplies during the next three months are not expected to exceed those for the corresponding period last year. A small arrival of Siberian met a good demand. MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW.—Hay supplies small following holiday. Trade generally slow, except for real choice first crop, which repeated late rates, after which there was practically no want, and more than half the supplies were on hands at a late hour, when sellers were willing to accept any reasonable offer to clear. Best 1st crop 3/6 to 3/9, extra 4/- per cwt.; 2nd and 3rd 3/- to 3/3, old meadow 2/3 to 2/6, extra 2/9; other classes to best advantage. Straw also in small supply, but, with fewer buyers in attendance, sellers found it more difficult to repeat late rates, with closing sales late at 1/6 to 1/9 per cwt., both classes.
